JAPAN AND RUSSIA PLEDGE OPEN DOOR

Integrity of the Empire of China Assured in Notes From Both Powers.

STATUS OF NEW ALLIANCE

Nations Say Pact Does Not Affect Treaties of 1907 and 1910 With U. S. for Independence and Territorial Rights.

Washington—The State Department made public the substance of despatches received from Ambassador Guthrie at Tokio and Ambassador Francis at Petrograd giving further official assurances that the Russo-Japanese treaty, which has been viewed with apprehension here, does not affect the integrity of China or the open door policy, which both nations are pledged to maintain.

While the assurances are considered entirely satisfactory as far as they go, State Department officials were not prepared to say that the United States will pursue its inquiries no further. On the contrary, a high official said that up to date no authentic copy of the Russo-Japanese treaty has reached the State Department and that the text of the treaty itself would be the best possible evidence as to the purposes that lie behind it.

Japan particularly is emphatic in declaring its purposes in the premises. The State Department's request for information from the Japanese Government, transmitted through Ambassador Guthrie Aug. 16, brought forth an oral response reaffirming adherence to the "open door" policy. Now the Japanese Government has most courteously added, in a note to the Ambassador, dated Sept. 13, the following assurances:

"The Imperial Government desires to assure the American Government that the new convention is in no sense designed to repeal or modify the provisions of article 2 of the convention concluded between Japan and Russia on July 31, 1907, nor have the Imperial Government entertained any intention to depart from the policy to which they have avowedly committed themselves respecting the maintenance of the independence and territorial integrity of China as well as the principle of equal opportunity for the trade of all nations in that country.

"On the contrary, they are as strongly convinced as ever of the usefulness of that policy in the interest of the general peace and stability in the Far East, which they always have very near their hearts."

A State Department statement has the following to say regarding the result of its inquiries at Petrograd through Ambassador Francis:

"The Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Imperial Russian Government in like manner assured the American Ambassador, in response to his inquiry, that his Government had not withdrawn from the conventions of 1907 and 1910, but will maintain unimpaired the provisions of those agreements, notwithstanding the fact that no mention of them was made in the convention of 1916."

A statement compiled shows that on August 31 last 9,446 members of the Guard had been discharged for physical disability, 4,919 because of dependent families, 146 to return to Government civil positions, and a number for other reasons.

VILLA, LOOSING 250 IN BATTLE, FLEES

Fugitive's Own Forces Routed by Trevino in Attack on Chihuahua City

SEIZED PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Carranzistas Drove Them Out Where They Were Raked by Machine Gun Fire; General Trevino Wounded; Fight Lasted Entire Day.

El Paso, Texas.—General Francisco Gonzales in Juarez said that martial law had been declared in Chihuahua City following the repulse of Villa's attack on the southwestern outskirts of the town. He also stated that 157 were killed on the Villista side in the fight, while eighty-seven Villistas were taken prisoners and shot, and many others were being held for execution. The Carranza losses were not given.

Messages received by General Gonzales stated that Villa's men rode into the outskirts of the city from the direction of Santa Rosa Hill, and attempted to take the penitentiary and the palace by storm.

General Jacinto Trevino, the Carranza commander, was asleep at home when the call to arms sounded. Dressing in haste, he rushed to the leadership of his men. The Villistas quickly took the Federal and State palaces, which are opposite each other in the centre of the city, but the defenders drove them from these positions.

Trevino led in these attacks on the invaders and was shot in the left arm near the shoulder by a spent bullet in the early fighting. The battle lasted for an hour, and most of that time the outlaws were forced to fight in the open, where they were often exposed to machine gun fire, while the Carranzistas found cover in the adobe houses.

Messages to General Gonzales received in Juarez, after an interruption in wire communication, estimate the number of attacking Villistas between 2,000 and 2,500, and say that more than 200 of them were left dead or dying on the Chihuahua plains.

While no one saw Villa in Chihuahua City, prisoners from his command swore that he was on Santa Rosa Hill directing the fighting and that he carefully planned the attack. The bandit and his men are reported to be fleeing westward, toward Santa Ysabel. Troop trains are leaving Chihuahua in pursuit.

All prisoners taken are being executed without trial. It is reported General Trevino proclaimed martial law in the city immediately after the battle, and soldiers were detailed to patrol the streets. This action was taken to prevent a possible outbreak by Villista sympathizers, of whom there are large numbers in the Chihuahua capital.

PERSHING CLOSE TO VILLA BAND.

Captain of Garrison at El Valle Executed or Deal with Legalista Interests

Field Headquarters, American punitive expedition, Mexico (via Columbus, N. M.).—Pancho Villa and his band of outlaws are at Guerrero, according to unconfirmed reports which reached General Pershing's headquarters. It was at Guerrero that Villa was whipped by Dodd early in the life of the expedition and it was there that he sustained the wound that crippled him. There is no verification of border rumor that Villa lately has been in Santa Clara Canyon.

General Trevino, according to report, has left Chihuahua City for Guerrero. Another report declares that he and Obregon have made up their differences and that both have an understanding with the new legislative party. The captain of the Carranza garrison at El Valle, the southernmost point of the expedition force, and a citizen of that town, were executed on a charge that they were allied with the legalista interests.

New London, Conn.—The Mexican members of the Joint International Commission assured the American members here that recent decrees by Gen. Carranza fixing the taxation on mining properties in Mexico were not intended to be confiscatory.

PROCLAMATION

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF MARYLAND CREATING A BUDGET SYSTEM.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1916, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 159 of said Acts, being an Act to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State; and which said Act is in words and figures following:

"CHAPTER 159.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, regulating the making of appropriations by the General Assembly of Maryland in regular session, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two houses concurring): That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 52 of Article III of the Constitution of Maryland.

Sec. 52. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the Treasry except in accordance with the followin provisions:

Sub-Section A:

Every appropriation bill shall be either a Budget Bill, or a Supplementary Appropriation Bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B:

First. Within twenty days after the convening of the General Assembly (except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within thirty days after his inauguration,) unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the Budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding the current years, the assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (2) the debts and funds of the State; (3) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets; and (4) provided, any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any suggestion as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first part shall be designated "Governmental Appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the Executive Department; (3) for the Judiciary Department, as provided by law, certified to the Governor by the Comptroller; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of the debt of the State of Maryland in conformity with Section 31 of Article III of the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the establishment and maintenance throughout the State of a thorough and efficient system of public schools in conformity with Article VIII of the Constitution and with the laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution of the State.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified, and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill." The Governor may before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses, and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill nor to affect either the obligations of the State under Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, or the provisions made by the laws of the State for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, or the payment of any salaries required by the Constitution of the State of Maryland or by the Constitution thereof, and the General Assembly may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly, and by increasing the items therein relating to the Judiciary, but expenditures for the Judiciary, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein, provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be decreased during his term of office, and such bill when and as passed by both houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor.

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or supplying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, all have the right, and when requested by either house of the Legislature, it shall be their duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section C: Supplementary Appropriation Bills.

Neither house shall consider other appropriation bills until the Budget Bill has been finally acted upon by both houses, and no such other appropriation shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following: (1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, subject or purpose therein stated and called herein a Supplementary Appropriation Bill; (2) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said Bill. (3) No Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of a majority of the whole number of the members elected, and in the yeas and nays recorded on the final passage. (4) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said Section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the Legislature from passing at any time in accordance with the provisions of Section 28 of Article III of the Constitution and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Maryland within the protection of Section 10 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D: General Provisions.

First. If the Budget Bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such Bill, but no other matter than such Bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second. The Governor for the purpose of making up his budgets shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper State Officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative offices, bureaus boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for State moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. The estimates for the Legislative Department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the Judiciary, as provided by law, certified by the Comptroller, and for the public schools, as provided by law shall be transmitted to the Governor, in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget without revision.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and of all institutions applying for State moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third. The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this Section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out it provisions.

Fourth. In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this Section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this Section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 34 of Article III of the Constution or of any laws heretofore or hereafter passed in pursuance thereof, or be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by Section 16 of Article II, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriations.

If any item of any approporiation bill passed under the provisions of this Section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the Bill or of any other item of such Bill or Bills.

Section 2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing Section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next ensuing general election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, nineteen Hundred and sixteen, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in conformity with the directions contained in Article XVI of this State, and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be placed the following synopsis of said amendment under the caption of 'CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR A BUDGET.'

"This amendment provides that the Governor shall present to the Legislature soon after it is convened a Budget giving a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the two succeeding fiscal years showing clearly any surplus or deficit in State funds. In these estimates he shall make provision for the interest and sinking funds of all State debts, for all salaries as fixed by law, and for the public schools as fixed by law. With regard to most other matters he may revise the estimates presented to him either by State officers or State aided institutions. The Legislature may not increase the estimates presented by the Governor or pass any additional appropriation act except by a majority vote and must make provision by tax for such increase or additional appropriation. The Legislature may not alter in any appropriation act the provision made by law for the State debt, or for the judiciary, but may reduce all other items in the Governor's estimates; and the words 'for the Constitutional Amendment' and 'against the Constitutional Amendment' as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote in accordance with Article XVI of the Constitution.

Approved March 28, 1916."

Harrington, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct a copy of this Proclamation, containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 159 of the Acts of Maryland of 1916, published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which said newspapers in the City of Baltimore to be printed in the German language, once a week for three months next preceding the General Election to be held in this State on November 7th, 1916, and at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted, in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out. The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN OPENED

Last Friday Night When Senatorial Candidate Was Notified of His Nomination.

The formal opening of the Republican Senatorial Campaign in Maryland occurred on Friday night at Albaugh's Theatre, Baltimore, when Dr. Joseph Irwin France was officially notified of his nomination for United States Senator. The notification meeting proved to be a complete reunion of all the elements of the Republican party and demonstrated how completely the party is reunited. The lines drawn by the late Senatorial primary have completely disappeared and the enthusiasm of Republicans in their support of Dr. France is absolute assurance that there is no longer any disaffected element in the party.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Galen L. Tait, of the State Committee, with remarks appropriate to the occasion. Mr. Tait announced the decision reached by the Progressive party to support Mr. Hughes and Dr. France in Maryland and predict that the Republicans will carry the National and Congressional elections.

Mr. C. I. T. Gould, who was chairman of the Goldsborough Primary Committee was introduced and gave his hearty indorsement of the candidacy of Dr. France on behalf of the former supporters of Governor Goldsborough.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, was the visiting speaker and made an impressive address. Senator Borah represents the Progressive element of his party in the United States Senate.

The notification was made by Honorable Albert A. Doub, of Cumberland, and the principal address of the evening was made by Dr. France in formal acceptance of the nomination. The keynote of Dr. France's address was expressed in the following remarks comparing his platform with that of the Democratic candidate, Mr. Lewis:

"He stands for government ownership. I stand for government control. He stands for socialism. I stand for Americanism and individualism. He stands for more government. I stand for better government. He stands for the narrow appeal which brings misunderstanding and division. I stand for broad brotherhood which knows no class distinction. With me stand you splendid loyal Republicans and with us all will stand those fellow Marylanders of the Democratic party to whom fundamental principles are of more import than party labels.

"I hereby solemnly pledge you all that if elected to the Senate of the United States I will go there to defend and not rend our constitution."

UPHOLDS STATE TAXATION BOARD

Court Of Appeals Decides That Commission Can Proceed With Reassessment.

The Court of Appeals on Saturday handed down a lengthy decision, written by Judge Burke, in which the authority of the Tax Commission to conduct a general reassessment of property is upheld.

The question was before the court upon appeal from the Circuit Court for Frederick county, in which Judges Urner, Peter and Worthington had decided that the commission lacked authority, because the people in 1915 adopted an amendment to the State constitution providing for separate classifications of property for purposes of taxation, and the Legislature of 1916 failed to enact measures giving the Tax Commission the machinery necessary to carry out the intent of the amendment.

Judge Burke's opinion stated that, while the Legislature alone could provide the classifications, and while the last Legislature failed to do that, "it does not follow as a result of its failure of duty in this respect that any valid laws relating to assessments may not be available of for that purpose. The authorities appear to be uniform in support of the proposition that the failure of the Legislature to discharge a duty of the character imposed by this amendment leaves the valid and existing laws, not in conflict with any of its provisions, in full force and effect."

That was the contention of Attorney-general Ritchie, who went into the case for the State, with Edward M. Hammond, counsel for the commission, when it went to the Court of Appeals. Mr. Ritchie stated, after he examined the facts and law in the case, that he was confident the Court of Appeals would reverse the lower courts.

The Tax Commission immediately will complete its arrangements for the reassessment. Most of the machinery had been provided when the litigation arose, and very little will have to be done. The commission expects to complete its reassessment before cold weather sets in. One reason that the Court of Appeals was asked to hear the case before the regular October term was that the Commissioners feared it would be impossible to assess the mountain property during the winter.

The State officials confidently expect the new assessment to make a large increase in the taxable basis of the State, and consequently a big increase in the revenues, and also to do much toward equalizing the taxable basis as between the several counties. It has been notoriously true that some of the counties were very much underassessed, thereby causing injustice to other counties, for all paid the same rate of State taxation. There will be no reassessment in Baltimore city.

THE REPUBLICAN.

SPEICHER LAW IS UPHELD BY COURT

In Lengthy Opinion Judge Boyd Decided the Constitutionality of Act.

It will be remembered by the readers of The Republican that about six weeks ago two colored employes of the Deer Park Hotel were arrested for bringing into Garrett county quantities of liquor in excess of the amount allowed to be brought in under the amended Speicher Local Option Law. Following their arrest a hearing was given them by Justice of the Peace West and both men were sent to Jail in default of bond for their appearance at the December Term of the Circuit Court. Later they were released upon furnishing bail, but not however, until after proceedings had been instituted by their attorneys, Messrs. Renninger & Offutt, for their release upon a writ of habeas corpus. In the petition to the Court the constitutionality of the Speicher law was attacked and the opinion filed in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court Tower on Tuesday of this week, written by Judge Boyd and concurred in by Judge Henderson, upholds the constitutionality of the Act and dismissed the petition.

The opinion of the Court, being of interest to every reader of The Republican, is set out in full, as follows:

"These cases came before the Court on habeas corpus proceedings and were submitted on briefs by the attorneys. We were informed by the attorneys that after the petitions had been filed the parties had been admitted to bail, and as we desired to give the questions further consideration we did not act at once on the petitions. It is contended for the petitioners that the Act of 1916, Chapter 156, is invalid: 1. Because it is in conflict with Article 3, Section 26, of the Constitution of Maryland. 2. Because it is in conflict with the Commerce Clause of the Federal Constitution.

"1. The title of this Act is as follows: 'An Act to repeal and reenact with amendments Section 4 of Chapter 34 of the Acts of 1914,' entitled: An Act to enable the registered qualified voters of Garrett county to determine by ballot whether spirituous or fermented liquors shall not be sold in said county, or shall be sold only as hereinafter described, and to repeal all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this Act or any part of this Act.'

"The title of the Act of 1914 is as quoted above in the title of the Act of 1916. If section 4 was valid as originally passed by the Act of 1914, insofar as it made it unlawful 'to barter or sell, directly or indirectly, or to solicit or to receive orders for the purchase of, at any place in Garrett county, or to give away at his or its place of business, within the limits of Garrett county, any spirituous, fermented or malt liquors,' etc., then it would seem to be clear that Section 4 as repealed and reenacted by Chapter 156 of the Act of 1916, is not invalid by reason of the additional prohibition that no person, etc., shall knowingly accept or receive for shipment, transportation or delivery to any person or place within the limits of Garrett county, or to carry, bring into, transfer to any other person, carrier or agent, handle, deliver or distribute in Garrett county, any intoxicating liquor, etc.

"The Act of 1914 only used the term 'sold' in the title, and did not in terms refer to the other things therein prohibited, such as soliciting or receiving orders for the purchase of at any place within the limits of Garrett county, or giving away at his or its place of business within the limits of Garrett county any spirituous, fermented or malt liquors, etc. So far as we are aware the Act of 1914 has not been questioned—certainly not successfully questioned—by reason of those things prohibited not being metioned in the title. That Act was passed to enable the voters to determine whether 'liquor shall not be sold in said county, or shall be sold only as hereinafter described,' etc. It contained 34 sections—Section 4 being the one that prohibited the sales, etc., if

Last Friday Mrs. Walter and Asa Glotfelty and their sister, Miss Ethel Glotfelty, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Glotfelty, of McHenry, were brought to the Home Sanatorium in Oakland where they are being treated, having been stricken with typhoid fever A nephew of those above named, Harry Glotfelty, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Glotfelty, of Oakland, is also ill of the disease and is being nursed at his home on Second street. What caused the outbreak of the disease is purely speculative. About three weeks ago a family reunion of the Glotfelty's was held at the old homestead and it is thought that the water used at that time was contaminated.

Yesterday a marriage license was issued to Thomas Stanton Custer and Oma Weitzell, both of Garrett county.

Shipment of Sheep.

Last Saturday Mr. Henry Smouse, of near Oakland, shipped from the local station to Baltimore four cars of sheep and lambs, the shipment totalling 456 head. Fifteen minutes after the last car was loaded the cars were picked up by an engine and they were on their way to market.

Relic of Old Plank Road.

While excavating for street paving Tuesday morning the big six-horse plow turned up several plank that were used on the old plank road between Somerset and Cumberland. The road was built about 1852, and some of our older residents remember when the planks were put down and well remember the time is a well known fact that the P. R. R. considered a great feat in road-making and the stage coaches and large freight wagons made good time over the highway. The plank torn up Tuesday were in a fair state of preservation and did not look as if they had been in the ground for more than three score years. At this spot, in front of the old Lane property, West Main street, very few stones were found, the road bed being made from cinders from the old Stoner foundry, which went out of existence many years ago. Thus two means of road improvement of the past are giving way to our modern method of brick paving, and some of our people are wondering what will be used for making roads sixty years from now.—Berlin Record.

ALLIES TO MAKE MUNITIONS IN U.S.

Anglo-Russian Commission Acquires Stock of Eddystone Corporation

NEWS CREATES SENSATION

Several Million Dollars Are Invested in the Enterprise Which Gives Employment to More Than 5,000 Men —Locomotive Works Subsidiary.

Philadelphia. — The Anglo-Russian Commission has bought a controlling interest in the stock of the Eddystone Ammunition Company, the huge subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive Works which has been making munitions for the Allies.

Announcement of the sale was made by the Baldwin company. The Entente agents will continue the corporation in its present name, but will elect their own directors and manufacture shells only for Great Britain and Russia.

The Eddystone Ammunition Company was formed about fifteen months ago, built a plant at Eddystone, Pa., which has kept 5,000 men steadily employed, and has handled some of the largest munition contracts that have come to the United States. It is understood to hold a contract with the Russian government, not yet completed, for 2,500,000 shells at an average cost of $15.

In financial circles it was rumored that the business was taken over by the Anglo-Russian Commission because of the failure of the corporation to meet this contract. It also was said that the Russian government had advanced the corporation large sums of money and was not entirely satisfied with what it had received in return.

On good authority it was said that high officials of the British and Russian governments would be included in the directorate of the corporation.

1,000,000 CHINESE HOMELESS

Flood Destroys Crops and People Are Dependent on Charity.

Washington.—Nearly a million people have been made homeless by one of the greatest floods on record in that section of China where the American Red Cross already has spent $600,000 for flood protection.

Reports to the State Department from the American Consul at Nankin said the Hwai River had inundated an area of about 7,000 square miles in Anhui Province. Appeals for aid have been sent out for the homeless, who virtually are entirely dependent on charity, as all the autumn crops were destroyed.

The State Department in summing up its despatches announced:

"The flood extended throughout eight districts in northern Anhui. There are ten cities of considerable size in these eight districts with a total population estimated at from 800,000 to 1,000,000 people. The total population of the flooded region is approximately 2,500,000 people."

TAX SLEUTHS GET $21,000,000

Evasions and Frauds in Internal Revenue Stopped.

Washington.—Internal revenue sleuths during the fiscal year 1916 unearthed $21,000,000 in tax evasions, according to a statement issued from the Treasury Department. This is pointed to as evidence of the great efficiency of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the expenses of which including the field force, were $19,800,000. The $21,000,000 in added taxes was due to frauds, evasions and errors.

International Bird Protection

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19—In a few days there will take place in Washington a conference between the official naturalists of two great governments for the discussion of the best way to protect the birds that migrate from one country to another.

C. Gordon Hewitt, Entomologist to the Dominion of Canada, has written to the Chief of the Biological Survey here, asking for an appointment at which time he may learn from our government scientists how they have gone about the enforcement of the federal migratory bird law. For by a treaty recently concluded between the Secretary of State and the British Ambassador, the Dominion of Canada has agreed to cooperate with the United States in the preservation of migratory birds. This means that the great federal law, which for the first time gave uniform and scientific protection to birds of a nation, is now to have its jurisdiction extended over the whole of a continent, and from semi-tropical to artic regions.

The significance of this treaty is scarcely realized except by government officials and the societies of naturalists and sportsmen who have been working for the preservation of American wild life these many years. The naturalists say that the federal law combined with the treaty has saved the wild fowl of North America, and insures that they will be abundant for generations to come.

The saving of our migratory wild fowl means the saving of an asset which is worth millions of dollars, in sport, food, and in money brought to regions where sporting is good. It also means the saving of sport for the people at large, because the great American rivers, which are highways of travel for the wild fowl are about the only part of our domain that can not and will not be fenced and converted into game preserves.

The licenses taken out show that there will be over five million sportsmen to take the field this fall. This means that about one man out of every five who is old enough to carry a gun seeks the healthgiving exercise, the excitement, the adventure and the training of hand, eye and nerve which is found to be in the hunting field. Beyond a doubt, the love of outdoor sport is growing in this country, and along the cleanest and most sportsman-like lines. The old market hunter with his murderous swivel gun has practically disappeared. The light sixteen and twenty gauge weapon, which require the greatest skill and speed on the part of the sportsmen, are replacing the ten and twelve gauge shotguns. Everywhere are seen evidences of a sentiment in favor of game protection and game propagation.

But where these five million hunters are going to hunt is becoming more and more a question. Everywhere farms are posted against hunters, the farmers either want the shooting themselves or else they want to preserve the birds for their value to the crops. Many of the best hunting areas are being converted into great preserves, after the English fashion. The South Atlantic region, from Norfolk to Jacksonville, is now dotted with these great shooting estates, most of them owned by clubs, some by individuals. There is no free upland shooting left except in the West, where the mountains and desert have halted the advance of civilization.

But the great rivers, of which there are so many in the United States, can not be converted into hunting estates. The navigable waters of America remain free to anyone who can buy or build a boat, and these waters with proper restriction of shooting, are capable of supporting billions of wild fowl. To save the great fleets of wild wings that come down out of the North in the autumn, sending a tingle of excitement through the blood of every hunter, is to save the one sport that promises to remain free for all in the future.

The great importance of the Canadian treaty is that it has saved the breeding grounds of these wild fowl. Most of our wild ducks, and especially the more valuable fresh water species, such as mallard, teal, pintail and gadwall, breed naturally from the United States northward into Canada. Audubon's wonderful account of American birds as he found them in his day, show that wild ducks then bred many degrees farther South than they do now. The most important factor in driving them farther North was spring shooting. When the ducks began their northern flight in March and April, they met with a hail of lead from the Gulf to the Canadian line and beyond. They could not stop on the lakes of the middle west where they had bred for years. Each season they were driven farther and farther North, until gradually the Saskatchewan country, the lake strewn barrens about Hudson Bay, the Mackenzie River country, and other far wild places, have been their only refuge. These great wilds of marsh and lake are all that have saved them from destruction long ago. The depleted remnant that escaped the spring fusillade each year raised broods in the far North, and returned to the slaughter in the fall.

Now the federal migratory bird law has cut off the deadly spring volley and thereby has literally accomplished wonders. The number of waterfowl in the country has almost doubled. The president of the Nebraska Agricultural College has written the Biological Survey that not only ducks, but wild geese —the great gray hokers whose voices you hear from the sky—are again breeding on the Nebraska prairies. He says the old timers say it looks like old times.

Similar reports come from all parts of the United States. In the Dakotas ducks are breeding in every little prairie slough and creek, and they are reported from many other regions where a duck has not been seen in the summer for years. Furthermore, and most important of all, the people have been converted to the law; they have seen its value. A large organization which raised a large sum of money to have it changed seems to have evaporated. Many men who have opposed it have written to the Biological Survey to say that it is the wisest piece of conservation legislation on the books.

But without the Canadian treaty, this law would have been incomplete. The wilds of Canada and Alaska are bound to remain the great breeding ground of American wild fowl—the chief source of our game supply. If Canada had not agreed with us in this matter of protection, the ducks would have again been at the mercy of the hunters as soon as they crossed the line. Sportsmen would have gone from the United States to Canada for their spring shooting, and with the growth of population the ducks and geese would have reached their summer home in smaller numbers every year. By the Canadian treaty, the way is opened for them to travel unmolested from the Gulf to the Artic Circle, inside of which the hardy sea ducks breed.

By the treaty, Canada agrees upon practically the same closed seasons for ducks, geese, swans, brant, rail, cranes and shore birds that the government officers have established in this country. She also agrees to the protection at all times of the migratory insectivorous birds and to continuous closed season on our curlew, swan, wild pigeon, and other species threatened with extermination.

The only exceptions made by the Canadian government are that Eskimos and other Indians may take auks, auklets, guillemots, murries, puffins and other seabirds and their eggs for food, but not for sale. These provisions are necessary because some of the far northern tribes are absolutely dependent upon colonies of sea-birds for a living.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mrs. Campbell spent the past week at Norfolk, Va. In a few days she will return to Oklahoma for the winter.

Mrs. Charles Wilson and children, of Washington, D. C., spent the first part of the week with Mrs. Wilson's mother and sister in the Park. Her mother, Mrs. McLain and Miss Kate, will close their cottage and return to Wheeling tomorrow.

Mrs. Johns, wife of Baker Johns, who spent the past month in the Park, has returned to her home at Bridgeport, Ohio.

Quite a number of persons came to the Park last week to spend, some of them a few days, others two weeks.

Several of our boarding houses will remain open until the 15th of October. Never before in the history of the Park have there been as many people at the Park through September.

The price of property has advanced and several pieces of property have been sold. Everybody seems hopeful and predict a very successful season for 1917. A number of capitalists have visited the Park the past few weeks with a view of investment. They returned to their homes delighted. True, we have some kockers and they are knocking, but notwithstanding their knocks, the Park closes the season under most cheerful and promising conditions.

There is no question that the completion of the State road to Loch Lynn will attract many automobile parties to Garrett county, and scatter hundreds of dollars among our citizens.

Many people visited Mountain Lake Park for the first time this summer they have returned to their homes charmed with Garrett county. While here they planned for trips to many parts of the county and at times they could not get automobiler to take them on the contemplated trip. Grantsville, the Cove, Accident, Deer Park and other places were visited and during the winter months while seated around the comfortable fire place they will talk about the places visited in Garrett county.

On the 13th of October one hundred people will motor from Baltimore to Mountain Lake Park and spend the night here. The electric light plant will be kept in operation until after that date. These people will be Garrett county boosters on and after October 14. May the number of such excursions multiply, and they will as the good road system is increased.

The Mountain Lake Hotel will be open until the 15th of October, possibly longer. Why not? This is the time to see this mountain region in its beauty grandeur.

Mrs. Schrock's house is headquarters for week-end visitors from Baltimore city and they are many.

The weather permitting, the State road to G street of the Park, will be completed next week. Next will be the improvement of E street. It is hoped to have this work completed this fall.

The Methodist preacher last Sabbath reported everything paid up in full, benevolent collections, salary, etc. That sounds good. With such a record there is no question of his being returned to this charge for another year. That is Pastor Flanigan's way of doing things.

The weather of the past week has been ideal—no better to be found anywhere. Garrett county leads the world as a summer resort region.

The remains of Mrs. Bell, wife of telegraph operator Bell, of this place, were taken to Grafton, W. Va., last Saturday for burial. The death of Mrs. Bell was greatly regretted. She was a good neighbor, a loyal friend and greatly loved in the home circle.

Mr. Harrison Arnold, of Clarksburg, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Arnold.

A few guests are still enjoying their stay at the Arnold cottage.

The outlook for 1917 is very promising. Dates are being fixed for conventions that will take up about eight weeks. Applications have been received for meetings that will take up four weeks more. The season will open early in June and continue late in September.

During the past week a number of apple parties were held, visits being made to apple orchards and many bushels of apples gathered and brought home.

Plans are being prepared for considerable improvements to the Allegany House before its opening in 1917. Mrs. Martin has very successfully conducted this house during the past several years and in purchasing it the Park is assured of a first-class boarding house.

BITTINGER.

There having been no new developments in the recent infantile paralysis scare in this section, our public schools re-opened this Monday morning, with Prof. Jasper Fike and Miss Lillian Cutter in charge.

Mrs. Catharine Brenneman, who was critically ill all last week, is now much improved.

Austin Bittinger has earned the title of "Champion Hoss Swapper," he having made four trades in two days, last week.

Attendance Officer B. H. Wiley and Assistant Postmaster, George Rodeheaver, of Oakland, spent Sunday in this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bitner, of Mt. Lake Park, motored to this place last week, and they in company with Mr. and Mrs. Melchor Hetrick, spent Thursday and Friday of last week at the Meversdale Fair.

Miss Jennie Stanton is spending some time visiting her brothers, Messrs. Gustavus and Thomas Stanton, and their families.

John Walburn moved his family and household effects from Jennings to this place last Saturday, and we welcome these excellent young people into our community.

Farmers in this neighborhood report generally a very scanty potato crop.

The abundant crop of apples is making a good fall business for the owners of cider and apple butter factories.

TRACTOR GUNS FOR U. S. ARMY

Heavy Guns and Ammunition Will Be Hauled By Caterpillar Machines.

Plans have been perfected by the United States Army for the formation of a horseless regiment of heavy field artillery—the first of its kind in the world. To be more accurate, it will be "caterpillar tractor" regiment because all 24 of its guns will be hauled from point to point and then put upon the firing line by means of "caterpillar tractors" similiar to those which have been converted into what have been described as land dreadnaughts on the Somme front.

With this comes the further disclosure that the army is to have field guns of 9.5 calibre, and is experimenting with 16-inch field guns. These great increases in the calibre of field guns have been made possible through the development of this tractor.

The new regiment has been designated the Ninth Heavy Field Artillery and is to be stationed permanently in the Hawaiian Islands. The regiment has been formed, but its colonel has not been assigned. It is one of the three new regiments of field artillery authorized by the Defense act of June 3, 1916, all of which are now being organized.

The distinctive features of the Ninth Heavy Field Artillery which will single it out as the first of its kind in the world is as follows:

It will be thoroughly an exclusive motor traction regiment, motor tractors of varying types taking the place of about 1,000 horses.

Its colonel and other military officers will ride in a military automobile instead of on horseback.

Its heavy field guns and their heavy munition caissons will be hauled by powerful caterpillar tractors similiar to the novel machines variously described as "tank cars," "land dreadnaughts" and "Willy wagons," now being used by the British in the battle of the Somme. The American tractors will not be armed and will be armored only for the protection of their machinery.

The battery and store wagons of the regiment will also be able to follow the tractor-drawn field howitzers inaction over rough country.

The artillerymen who heretofore have ridden horses will hereafter ride on motorcycles with "bathtub" attachments, each motorcycle carrying three men.

The regiment will be provided with its own truck company of 27 motortrucks, which will carry ammunition to the firing line.

The reserve ammunition for the regiment will also be conveyed to the front by motortruck companies.

Two of the six batteries of the regiment will be equipped with the new model of 6-inch heavy field howitzer which have just been adopted by the army after successful experimenta tests at Fort Sill.

All the plans have been thoroughly perfected and the regiment will be ready for tactical maneuvers with its motor traction facilities within a year.

The General Staff of the Army is looking forward to the introduction of 16-inch field and siege howitzers, similar in power to the famous 42-centimeter guns of the German Army and which also will be drawn by motor tractors. It was learned definitely that the Ordinance Department has already completed in one of its arsenals a 9.5-inch field howitzer. It is a "pilot gun"—that is, it is the first of its type and size built for the American Army for field purposes. Plans have already been completed by the War Department for the construction of a "pilot" 16-inch field and siege howitzer which will soon be built for experimental test. The German 42-centimeter gun is a 17-inch gun.

This new howitzer will be virtually a counterpart of the German 42-centimeter gun in battering power. Four of these tractors will be required for moving each 16-inch gun and its ammunition, one tractor hauling the gun and three others hauling its mount and ammunitions. This gun will be moved to seacoast points for dropping shells on battleships approaching the coast where there are no defenses.

The Ninth Heavy Field Artillery will use thirty tractors. In this regiment there will be six batteries, and each battery will use tractors. Four of the batteries of the regiment will be equipped with 4.7 inch guns and the other two batteries will be equipped with 6-inch howitzers. On the basis of four guns to the battery, there will be 16 of the 4.7 inch guns and 8 of the 6-inch howitzers assigned to the regiment. Each of these 24 guns will be moved by a tractor. Thus, each of the six batteries will require four tractors for the movement of its guns.

There will also be assigned to each of the regiment's batteries an additional, or fifth tractor. In each instance this fifth tractor will haul two vehicles, a battery wagon and a store wagon, in which will be carried extra parts and other kinds of materials. Each of the tractors used for hauling a gun will also haul that gun's caisson or ammunition carriage.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

What Mr. Wilson Has Done Toward Conservation of Our Natural and National Resources.

Mr. B. H. Sincell, Editor The Republican, Oakland, Md.

MY DEAR MR. SINCELL:—Conservation of natural resources has become one of the largest issues of our time. In the campaign of 1912, it formed one of the chief planks in the Democratic platform, and was often endorsed in Mr. Wilson's speeches. His inaugural address committed him fully to support it.

For these reasons it is important to know what the Wilson Administration has done. As one man deeply interested in Conservation and familiar with the record, I am writing to lay it briefly before you.

When he took office, Mr. Wilson ceased to say much on Conservation, preferring to let the members of his Cabinet speak for him. After his inauguration, the friends of Conservation, regardless of partisanship, offered him their help in putting the Conservation policies through. The opportunity invited action. The fight to save Alaska from the Guggenheims had created a living body of public opinion which lacked only official leadership to save what resources still remained in public hands. It seemed at first that President Wilson would lead.

At the outset the work of the Wilson Administration in Conservation was good. Congress passed, and Mr. Wilson signed the Alaska Railroad Bill and the bill which assured Government control of coal lands in Alaska. These measures were excellent, and President Wilson deserves praise for their enactment. So he does for his veto of a bill to give away National Forest lands.

Unfortunately these creditable instances form but little of the record. Politics came into control. Thus a bill seeking to turn the natural resources of Alaska over to a political commission was repeatedly recommended by the Administration through the mouth of the Secretary of the Interior. If passed it would have thrown Alaska into the hands of the special interests and established a policy almost certain to destroy the National control of natural resources everywhere else as well. This measure we were fortunately able to stop.

When Wilson became President, the Reclamation Service, in its great work of irrigating the arid lands of the West, was wholly free from politics. By the mouth of his Secretary of the Interior Wilson advocated, and later signed, a bill which leaves the choice of lands to be reclaimed to a Committee of Congress, and so makes politics dominate the Service.

Director Newell was the man who created the Reclamation Services. He made and kept it one of the most efficient Bureaus under the Government. The secretary of the Interior forced him out, and replaced him by a Commission in which politicians control.

The Newlands bill is a Conservation measure which proposes to develop all the resources of our inland waterways—waterpower, navigation, irrigation, and domestic supply,—for the public benefit. Although Wilson strongly endorsed it during his campaign, as President he let it drop, and instead has signed two waterway bills of the old pork-barrel type, which is everything the Newlands bill is not.

Waterpower is the most valuable resources still in public hands. There is undeveloped waterpower in our navigable streams equal to twice the power of every kind now used in the United States. It is a huge prize. For years the waterpower interests have been fighting to seize it, and the Conservationists to save it for the people.

A waterpower measure, the Adamson Bill, came before the House in 1914. It favored monopoly, and gave the special interests, for nothing, the public water power on navigable streams. Nevertheless Wilson endorsed it.

On its way through the House, the bad parts of the Adamson bill were stricken out, and the public rights were secured. Thereupon Wilson reversed his previous stand, and endorsed the amended bill. This good bill then went to the Senate, where it was shelved, and the indefensible Shields bill was reported in its place. The Shields bill gives away the public waterpowers forever and for nothing. Both Roosevelt and Taft vetoed bills drawn on the same principle. Yet, by another reversal, the Wilson Administration got behind it and when a widely circulated appeal was made to the President for his help to defeat it, he refused.

As to waterpower on the public lands, there is but one reversal instead of two. Wilson first, by the mouth of a member of his Cabinet, endorsed the Ferris bill, which was mainly good. It was replaced in the Senate by the Myers bill, which is thoroughly bad. Among other things this bill actually throws the Grand Canyon, the greatest natural wonder of America, wide open to individual appropriation. Nevertheless, Wilson reversed himself in order to give it in the same way his endorsement.

Both as to waterpowers on navigable streams and on public lands, the last reversals leave the Administration standing with the special interests against the people.

The Phelan oil land measure, would hand over to private individuals who have no legal rights the valuable oil lands set aside as reserves for the Navy. The Navy Department has made public announcement that the mere threat of the Phelan bill's passage has caused it "to seriously cnosider the advisability of abandoning the policy of constructing oil burning ships." Only oil burning ships can develop and maintain the high speeds required in modern war, and without them no Navy can be even second class. The Secretary of the Interior actively supported this surrender of National safety to private greed. The Secretary of the Navy and the Attorney General opposed it. Wilson remained neutral and did nothing.

Because Wilson refused to take sides, or took the wrong side, the question whether the people or the interests shall win or lose in the Shields and Myers waterpower bills and the Phelan oil bill is still unsettled. These bills are still before Congress, and will pass or fail at the coming session. The public waterpowers and the efficiency of the Navy are at stake. There can be no compromise between the men who would grab the public resources for private profit, and those who would conserve them for the use of all the people. Either the interests will get them or the people will keep them. There is no middle ground.

To sum up, as in many other matters the promise made was not performed. Instead of progress in conserving our resources, the last two years have seen a bitter and often a losing fight to hold what we had. Wilson talked well, began to act well, and then yielding to the political pressure of the special interests, went back on Conservation.

Sincerely yours,
GIFFORD PINCHOT.

The Postmaster uses every precaution against robbers at all times of the day and night, and so far has been robbed but a very few times. A short while ago, he grew suspicious while engaged in a game of seven-up for a jug of licker, in the front end of the postoffice when he heard somebody fingering around in the back end, and as soon as he had played his hand he made an investigation and found that the intruder was only a postoffice inspector that had come in the back way.

Fearing an unexpected visit of the pure food inspector last week the editor of the Tickville Tidings sent his office towel out the back door.

A SUMMERLESS YEAR

Strange Phenomena Characterized That 100 Years Ago.

From the Youth's Companion

The summer of 1916 marks an interesting weather centenary: that of "The year without a summer," as the farmers generally called it, or sometimes, because of the ruined crops, "poverty year"; while others designated it with grim Yankee humor as "eighteen-hundred-and-froze-to-death."

Near the sea it was sometimes called "mackerel year," because, on account of the scarcity and high price of corn so little pork was fattened that the people used mackerel as a substitute. Snow fell that year in every month of the 12. At Salem, on June 5 the mercury stood at 92 degrees F.; the next day it fell to 43 degrees F.; on the seventh, in many places, ice formed on the ponds to the thickness of an eighth of an inch, and there were snow flurries and high cold winds. In some localities the snow melted as it fell, but in others it was blown about as in winter. In Maine, snow and hail together fell for an hour and a half, and the snow flakes were of extraordinary size, often as much as two and a half inches in diameter. The ground was frozen hard, corn and potatoes were cut down by the frost, and the farmers worked in their fields arrayed in great coats, mittens and earlaps. Thousands of birds were frozen to death and—less tragic—millions of the yellow cucumber bug; so many that the pest was practically destroyed and did hot re-appear to a troublesome extent for 10 years.

On June 8 there was more snow, "but not quite deep enough for sleighing" in Salem; but farther north the storm became really severe. At Peacham, Vermont, an old gentleman, lost in the woods, where he remained all night, was so badly frostbitten that one of his toes had to be amputated.

Many more birds were frozen, many flew into houses seeking shelter, and many were so benumbered that they allowed themselves to be taken in the hand without a struggle. Compassionate girls here and there rescued and cherished for temporary pets martins, yellowbirds, readstarts, robbins and humming birds.

Even in July there were frosts, and in the more northern regions there was light snow. In August the cold increased. In Berkshire county, Massachusetts, a killing frost caught the cornfields on the 29th; but the farmers saved a good deal by digging it up at the roots and placing the plants in shelter in an upright position, when the ears ripened upon the juices of the stalks.

The first general movement from New England to the middle west occurred the next season, and received perhaps its greatest impetus from the discouragements of "poverty year." Many of those who migrated believed the climate of New England permanently and disastrously affected. Not a few who remained were even more pessimistic, believing such a concatenation of unseasonable misfortunes could portend nothing less than universal destruction and the day of doom.

It was in this belief that a certain Widow Colton, of somewhat domineering unreasonable temper, who had long withheld her concent to the marriage of her daughters to two enterprising farmer brothers, the men of their choice, suddenly withdrew her objections, and bade them marry and go west if they pleased.

"This is a solemn time, and no occasion for bickerings and family dissension," she declared, "if you will marry, marry! and if you will migrate, migrate! it is all one to me now. How can it matter when so soon, wherever you may be, the trump will sound that will summon you to the skies? Have your way! But for myself, I fell more prepared and decent where I am, within a stone's throw of the family lot. There is something suitable and sustaining in the idea of relatives keeping together at such a time. There are 23 Coltons in the graveyard, and I wish to go to judgement as the 24th."

Four years later, the world still existing, she went west instead, to superintend the measles, mumps and manners of a growing brood of sturdy grandsons in Ohio.

MARYLAND A REPUBLICAN STATE

Every Voter Should Be Registered and Cast His Ballot.

Following the formal opening of the Republican campaign in Maryland at the notification meeting in Baltimore on the 15th of September, Republican workers throughout the State have become quite active in support of the senatorial, congressional and presidential candidates. Probably never in the history of the State has the party gone into a campaign with more sanguine hopes for victory or a better fighting ground than this year.

Dr. France, who one year ago was practically unknown in Maryland politics has been actively engaged ever since the primaries in meeting the people of all sections of the State. His pleasing personality and the forcefullness and directness of his speech are making a splendid impression upon the voters. Contrary to the expectations of many, Dr. France has proven himself to be what in politics is known as "a good mixer" without at the same time losing any of the dignity that is expected of a candidate for such high honors.

His friends are very much gratified over the fact that one of the principle issues between Dr. France and Mr. Lewis promises to be the radical attitude of Mr. Lewis on certain socialistic matters, particularly the postalization of the telegraph and telephone; in fact Mr. Lewis' ideas have impressed the business element of the State as being so radical and so purely socialistic, that he is not regarded as a safe man to represent such a State as Maryland in the Senate.

Whatever may be the merits of the parcels post, it has been demonstrated to the people of the State by reference to the congressional record that Mr. Lewis is not "the father of the parcels post" as he claims to be.

This will be disappointing to many of his admirers and especially since it has been shown by the records that when the bill which was written by Senator Bourne of Oregon was being considered in the House, Mr. Lewis is on record as having said in the debate that he was opposed to any parcels post, but favored the purchase by the Government of the express companies throughout the country.

The campaign in Maryland therefore seems to be one opposed to socialism as advocated by Mr. Lewis who represents the Democratic party on the State ticket. It would be difficult to imagine a sane and conservative statelike Maryland adopting the extreme measures proposed by Mr. Lewis, as they must do if they elect him.

Some months ago after studying the report of the Maryland census, Senator Jackson is said to have proved conclusively to the Republicans of Maryland that this is normally a Republican State if every eligible voter in the State were registered and cast his ballot. The fact is that the natural majority of the Republicans in Maryland over the Democrats, if all voted, is between five and ten thousand. The State Committee believes that it is quite possible to register a very large percentage of the vote this year, and if every interested Republican in the State will undertake to see that all Republicans in his district are registered, there is not the slightest doubt that in November this State will cast its electorial vote for Mr. Hughes and Dr. France and every one of the congressional candidates will be elected. The State Committee not only believes but knows that this is possible, but the State Committee cannot do it all. Every man must do his own part, and is being urged to do it promptly so that after the first registration day we will have only a few to gather up. It is hoped that every Republican in the State will see his duty and do it.

NEW GAME REGULATIONS

State Game Warden Cites The Law of 1916.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Inquiries still continue to arrive at my office relative to the new game and fish laws as enacted by the General Assembly of 1916. In reply to such inquiries, I take this means of informing the public of the construction of the new laws as handed me by Attorney General Albert C. Ritchie:

Open season for squirrel, in the following counties of Maryland, namely, Baltimore, Caroline, Cecil, Garrett, Horford, Howard, Kent, Montgomery, Queen Anne's, Somerset, Washington, Wicomico and Worcester, the squirrel season opens August 25th and runs open until Oct. 1st, then remains closed until Nov. 10th, then opens again until Dec. 24.

The following counties were exempt from this law on squirrels, and can shoot them only from Nov. 10th to Dec. 24th, namely: Anne Arundel, Calvert, Dorchester, Prince George's, St. Mary's and Talbot. Mr. Ritchie's opinion states that these counties only asked for exemption from the new dates contained herein above, and accordingly, their season remains as it was heretofore.

Squirrel season in Frederick and Alleghany counties—Frederick county has a special law allowing squirrels to be shot from August 25th to Dec. 24th. Alleghany county has a special law allowing squirrels to be shot Sept. 15th to Dec. 24th. These two bills were signed by the Governor at a later date than the State-wide bill on squirrels, therefore, the law in these two counties supercedes the State law.

Open season for Doves—Doves cannot be shot in any part of Maryland except in Talbot county, and in this county, from Aug. 15th to Dec. 24th only.

New Fish regulations—The new law specifies no person shall catch or kill any white or yellow perch less than 7 inches in length, or any pike less than 14 inches, or any rock or striped bass less than ten inches, or any tailor (or blue fish) less than 8 inches, or white catfish under 7 pounds. Or any sturgeon less than 20 pounds, or any rock over 20 pounds. This law prohibits the buying or selling or exposing for sale of any fish herein mentioned, also ths catching of under and oversized fish. No dealer receiving under or oversized fish can expose or offer same for sale at any time. I especially call attention of all fish dealers in Maryland to this new law, and shall expect them to take notice and govern their sales accordingly, as the Deputy Wardens have orders to strictly enforce this law.

I shall expect all Deputy Wardens to be on the lookout for violators of our game and fish laws. This unlawful catching and sale of undersized fish has worked very injuriously to the industry in our State for years past, and I appeal to the Justices of the Peace and Judges of all Courts to help the Commission break up this wholesale slaughter of our food supply by prosecuting all offenders brought within their jurisdiction.

We have opening for some good men to act as Deputy Wardens in the following counties: Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Wicomico, Somerset, Worcester, Calvert, Caroline, Charles, St. Mary's and Howard counties. The other counties of Maryland are very well covered. Anyone wishing to act, will please notify the State Game Warden, at which time he will take the matter under consideration.

E. LEE LeCOMPTE,
State Game Warden.

Rev. Boyer Takes New Charge.

Rev. E. B. Boyer, who was born and reared at Accident and who entered the ministry some years ago, having filled a number of pulpits of the Lutheran denomination, has resigned his pastorate at Confluence, Pa., to accept a call to East Carnegie, Pa. The Confluence correspondent of the Meversdale Republican thus writes of Mr. Boyer:

The many friends of Mr. E. B. Boyer will be pleased to know that he received a unanimous call from St. Andrew's Mission, East Carnegie, which he will likely accept and take charge Sunday, September, 17. East Carnegie is a town of 1800 inhabitants with no other Protestant churches and within 30 minutes ride of Pittsburgh on the trolley cars.

Rev. Boyer was pastor of the Lutheran church of Confluence for six years and three months, from May 22, 1910, to August 31, 1916. During that time he was not only an energetic pastor, but a gentleman who took an interest in every movement for the benefit of the town and its religious and moral uplift, and was always one of the most ear est and aggressive workers in the cause of temperance, and he leaves behind him hosts of true and warm friends without regard to the denomination to which they belong. He was no shirker in ministerial work and he will certainly be missed, as will also Mrs. Boyer, who lived in Confluence since childhood, and who is an estimable and talented lady, a hard worker both in the church and the Sunday school and a fine musician and vocalist, and who will no doubt prove a most efficient helpmate to her husband in his new field of labor.

LOOKOUT FOR THE SLUMP

The manufacturing boom that has been sweeping the United States as the result of the allies' war orders is about to wane. A big slump is looked for in the business of making munitions for the entire powers, and, in fact, has already set in. Thousands of workmen have been dismissed by various firms who have closed the doors of plants created or enlarged for the purpose of putting out arms, ammunition and war materials for England, France and Russia. Most of the contracts let early in the war have been filled. In many cases there were no renewals.

To-day England has more than ninty arsenals and 4,000 controlled firms putting out munitions, and this goes to show that the relapse will come. The Democrats are making the most of this show of prosperity, but the people are being urged to be not deceived by this falseness. If the truth of the situation were known this country is in a bad condition. What of all the corporation taxes, the income taxes, the special war taxes, the franchise taxes, that have been levied to fill the big hole left in the United States treasury by Democratic legislation. Four years more of this madness will wreck our country.

What we need is confidence to go ahead. Millions of dollars are now being hoarded because the control does not know which way the cat is going to jump. You never can tell about a Democratic cat. A sweeping Republican victory at the polls in November will give us this confidence to advance. We need prosperity with a foundation under it, and at that, not one built with the blood of the nations of Europe.

MR. LEWIS IN WRONG PARTY

Mr. Lewis is in the wrong party. There is a Socialist party in this country, standing squarely and fairly on a socialist platform—denying the right of private property, denying that individualism which has been the strength of Americanism, denying the restricted function and sphere of government, and widening it to the very bounds of life—a Socialist party with a perfectly definite creed and a quite considerable following.

Mr. Lewis ought, by all the proprieties to be enrolled in that party. It is where he belongs. He is utterly out of place as a candidate for United States Senator of the Democratic party. In fact, so utterly out of place, that one cannot help suspecting that he is simply using the Democratic party for the furtherance of his personal ambition.

If the Democratic party were not the majority partin this State; if, for instance, the Socialist party were numerically as strong as the Democratic, do you believe Mr. Lewis would be running as a Democrat instead of as a Socialist? By that same token, do you believe the Democrats of Maryland are going to be led into following Mr. Lewis and his socialistic doctrines, simply because he succeeded in scooping a Democratic nomination at the hands of the Smith-Harrington machine? Hardly. Democrats of sense and principle have a right to demand a Democratic candidate, and will hardly permit themselves to be lined up for a Socialist.

Mr. Lewis will, of course, get the Socialist vote. By what right, then, can he expect the Democratic vote, unless he wants to contend that Democrats are Socialists? And thousands of Maryland Democrats will not stand for that contention.

THE CASE FOR MR. LEWIS.

Under date of September 22nd, the Baltimore Sun published an editorial on "Mr. Lewis and the Parcel Post," which merits a blue ribbon for wilful misrepresentation and cowardly inuondo. The editorial sets out with the statement that the parcels post has been such a blessing that no man or party would dare to attempt its repeal.

It then proceeds to charge the Republicans with a "Sinister state of mind" toward the parcels post, because they have been exploding Mr. Lewis' claim to having fathered it. In other words, we entertain a "sinister state of mind" toward the blessings of telegraphy because we explode Sam Smith's fake claim to having fathered the telegraph. Some reasoning, that, for the Baltimore Sun or anybody else.

In the next place, the Sun simply "perverts the record," wilfully and with malice propense. It says, Mr. Lewis, more than any other man, deserves credit for what was accomplished in the matter of the parcels post, and this in face of the fact that the Members of the Post Office Committees in both Senate and House, Democrats and Republicans, alike, deny in the official record that he is entitled to any such credit. The Sun simply makes the bald declaration without regard to the facts, trusting that the people will never come to know the facts. In fact, the Sun does a lot of that sort of trading on its readers ignorance.

And, finally, the Sun, with cowardly inuondo, intimates that, because Mr. Lewis' claims to distinction in this matter have been disproved, therefore, Dr. France's candidacy is "inspired by interests that want to get Mr. Lewis out of the way, and which would like to cut the throat of the (parcel-post) system." The Sun, of course, says it doesn't know this, and all the other balder dash by which cowardly journalism states in inuendo what it dare not state explicitly.

And there is the whole case for Mr. Lewis, according to the Sun, which is his party advocate. And a pretty case it is. Summed up, it amounts to just this: send Mr. Lewis to the Senate because he fathered the parcel post, and is its chief protagonist. The Congressional Record confounds and disproves both these claims. Ergo, Mr. Lewis is left with no reason for asking to go to the Senate at all.—Cecil Whig.

THE DEMOCRATIC RECORD

With the adjournment of Congress the Democratic record upon which Woodrow Wilson will make his bid for re-election is virtually complete says the Pittsburgh Gazette Times, editorially, in its issue of last Saturday. It is, in fact, the personal record of Mr. Wilson as administrator of the government of the nation. Properly it will be the subject of close scrutiny between now and November 7. In it will be found whatever of justification there may be for retaining Mr. Wilson in office and the Democratic party in power. The party must uphold it and defend it. Assuredly that is some job.

Passing by foreign relations for the time being, in all charity, how have Mr. Wilson and his party served the nation in domestic administration and legislation? They came into power on a pledge to conduct the government economically. The first Democratic Congress increased the expenses of government $177,000,000 above the amount which the last Republican Congress had found sufficient for the country's needs. The Congress just closed, which was absolutely dominated by the President, was even more extravagant, its appropriations mounting to nearly two billions. Excluding the extraordinary appropriations for preparedness for defense, the expenses of government were increased $140,000,000 over the stupendous amount appropriated by the preceding Congress. In thrusting on the country impractical and socialistic schemes of governmental activities in competition with private enterprise, the Democrats have added prodigiously to the payroll and have taken over $100,000,000 from the treasury for class benefit with the sole object of winning votes from the beneficiaries of their mismanagement.

How has the country fared in the provisions made for paying these unnecessarily swollen bills? In peace the Democrats have resorted to direct taxes that should be reserved for times of emergency. Nor have they been practical or fair in their levies. Income taxes have been increased, but the imposts have not been distributed over a larger number of people able to pay. Inheritance, a proper subject of taxation by the states, have been levied on by the national government. Munitions of war, which can yield anything only so long as the European war lasts and therefore are not dependable for replenishing the treasury, have been taxed. There are new corporation taxes, which are unjust since they are unnecessary burdens upon industry and enterprise. The means of providing all the money required for the ordinary expenses of government economically administered are to be found in tariff on imports. But this the Democrats rejected. It is common knowledge that the Underwood law was a failure as a revenue raiser and that under its operations the country was facing industrial ruin when the war intervened to give us an artificial prosperity that must end with the coming of peace in Europe. The Democrats, to save the treasury from bankruptcy, had to repeal their free sugar provision. And they have, for political purposes only, assented to a measure of protection for some American industries. But they have repudiated free trade, though they know it spells ruin for the nation, and all the rest of the world is scurrying to protect itself against industrial invasions. Mr. Wilson and his party have adheared to no principles. They have made a record of pretense rather than construction. In the Philippines bill they made no real advance in granting self-government to the Filipinos, though they had promised independence and profess to have accorded a large measure of freedom. In yielding to the demands of the trainmen's brotherhoods they pretended to pass an eight-hour law, but in reality merely granted an increase of wages, which is an act of doubtful legality and to-day all true friends of labor are deploring the abandonment of the principle of arbitration, which was the best hope of the nation in the just settlement of labor disputes.

Mr. Hughes, as he meets the people of the country, is analyzing the record the Democrats have made. It is not one that will appeal to voters who have a sense of fitness and a patriotic regard for the future of their home-land. The Democratic administration has been a failure. Only by placing responsibility in the hands of the Republican party can we be assured of preparedness, protection and permanent prosperity. That is not mere assertion. The proof of it is in the record.

SPEICHER ACT VALID

In upholding the validity of the Speicher Local Option Law by an opinion filed in the local Circuit Court Tuesday of this week, Judge A. Hunter Boyd went into the matter thoroughly and leaves no room for doubt as to the intent and meaning of the Act. As a matter in which all residents of Garrett county are vitally interested we publish in full the opinion of the Court so that all who will take the time to make themselves acquainted with the ruling will be thoroughly informed. The matter as finally decided by the Court is a distinct victory for the temperance people and fully accords with the expressed views of Senator Speicher when the bill was presented to the Legislature for adoption at Annapolis last winter, upon which occasion exceptions to the real meaning and intent of the Act was taken by some alleged temperance members of the House.

FRANCE'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

Dr. France's speech of acceptance has made him hosts of friends and supporters amongst the voters of the State.

Its statesmanlike grasp of the great governmental problems that face us; its broad humanitarianism; its soundly progressive spirit have made the people who have read the speech realize that, in Joseph Irwin France, they have a candidate for United States Sentor who is not only a deep student of the principles of government, but who is practically and sympathetically alive to the real problems which we face as an organized society, if we are going to intelligently and effectively fulfill our mission as a great, free enlightened Republic.

After analyzing the doctrine of governmental ownership, and showing its utter inefficiency, as well as its burdensome taxation, Dr. France shot out such pithy and wise epigrams as the following:

"I am not after more government so much as I am after better government."

"I am not so anxious to see the Government do more things as I am to see the Government do things more effectively."

After emphasizing the disastrous effect of governmental ownership and other socialistic schemes on individual opportunity and efficiency, Dr. France stirred his audience deeply by this sentence:

"Equality of opportunity is the very breath of our nostrils on this side of the Atlantic."

And so the speaker went on from one great subject to another, touching each in turn with the sure, strong hand of a master thinker and a red-blooded American, until he came to a great climax, in the following passage:

"He stands for government ownership. I stand for governmental control. He stands for socialism. I stand for Americanism and Individualism. He stands for more government. I stand for better government. He stands for the narrow appeal which bringf misunderstanding and division. I stand for a broad brotherhood which knows no class distinction. With me stand you splendid loyal Republicans, and with us will stand those, our fellow Marylanders, of the Democratic party, to whom fundamental principles are of more import than party label."

THE National Democratic Committee has issued a book entitled "Wit and Wisdom of Woodrow Wilson." "Watchful Waiting" would have been a better title.

THE DEATH RECORD.

LESTER LEWIS LAWSON.

The thirteen months old child of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson, of near Ottaway this county, was burried in the Oakland cemetery on Thursday afternoon, its death having occurred on Tuesday of cholra infantum. Rev. O. A. Bremer conducted the services at the cemetery.

MRS. FRANK BELL.

Mrs. Rose Beyer Bell, wife of Frank Bell, died at her home in Mountain Lake Park, at 8:15 o'clock Thursday evening after an illness of one week. Mrs. Bell was reared in Grafton, having been the daughter of the late Louis Beyer and Mrs. Margaret Beyer, now living at Blueville, W. Va. She leaves her husband and five children, Charles, of Cumberland; Mrs. J. B. Watkins, of Johnstown, Va., and Helen, Bertha and Howard, at home. She also leaves her mother, Mrs. Margaret Beyer, and two sisters, Mrs. Henrietta Gigley and Mrs. Emma Myers, of Grafton, and two brothers, Charles D. Beyer, of Pensacola, Fla., and William Beyer, of Blueville.

The body was taken to Grafton Friday evening to the residence of Mrs. Gigley on Beech street. The funeral occurred Sunday from St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Grafton.

MRS. ELIZABETH BITTINGER.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bittinger, widow of the late Amos Bittinger of the Pleasant Valley section of Garrett county, died suddenly at her home Saturday evening whilst seated on the porch. She was aged fifty years, three months and twenty-four days and is survived by a number of children, all of whom are grown. Mrs. Bittinger died under similar circumstances as her husband, the latter being taken suddenly ill while attending divine service and his death occurred before his friends could get him to the home, just a short distance away from the church. The funeral of the deceased lady took place Tuesday morning and was conducted in the Pleasant Valley U. B. church by the Rev. O. A. Bremer, pastor of the Oakland Lutheran church, of which denomination Mrs. Bittinger was a member.

MRS. JANE ANN GLOTFELTY.

Mrs. Jane Ann Glottelty, wife of Mr. Mahlon Glotfelty, well known throughout Garrett county, died at her home one mile north of McHenry Monday morning, Sept. 25th, at 5:30 o'clock of valvular heart disease with which she had been a great sufferer for a number of months, her last illness, however, being of short duration but of intense suffering. The deceased lady was born near Mill Run, this county, more than sixty-two years ago and was married to Mr. Glotfelty about forty-four years ago. To this union were born eight sons and three daughters, all of whom with the exceptian of one son, Edward Pierce, who was killed about twelve years ago on a saw mill at Friendsville, survive the wife and mother. The surviving children are Mrs. Emma Specht, of Deer Park; Lucinda and Ethel, at home; Franklin O., of Oakland; Judson, Henry, Beeson, Asa and Walter, who reside at home or upon adjoining farms at McHenry, and James, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Glotfelty's funeral occurred yesterday morning from the new United Brethren church near McHenry, of which denomination she was a consistent member, the interment being made upon the old Glotfelty homestead on Meadow Mountain, Rev. O. A. Bremer, of the Oakland Lutheran church officiating.

BLOOMINGTON

Great preparations are being made by the members of Bloomington Lodge, I. O. O. F., to receive the Grand Lodge officers of the state at their grand visitation to the lodge at this place on next Monday evening. A full attendance of the members is desired. A banquet—big eats—big smokes—followed by big talks, for the boys after the regular order of business is through will undoubtedly add to the pleasure of the occasion.

Mr. Jack Rhine and Mrs. Melissa Buckhannon, both of this place, were married at Cumberland on last Saturday evening. The bride was the widow of the late Hanson Buckhannon, for a long time a resident of this place.

Rev. A. R. Snedegar was a visitor to Cumberland the first of the week.

Mr. Clarence Miller, the Bloomington merchant, returned home this week from a business trip to Allegany, N. Y.

Mr. Martin Watson, son of Mr. J. C. Watson, of Keyser, head of the Mastellor Coal Co., operating at Hampshire, has established a wireless at the company's store at the mines and has been quite successful in picking up messages flying through space. The young man is quite clever in this kind of work and takes a great interest and pleasure in pursueing his inclinations toward a thorough understanding of electrical appliances.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

One Death and Two Cases Reported by State Health Officer.

Dr. R. H. Riley, State Health officer, visited Garrett county on Monday and Tuesday and reported two well developed cases of infantile paralysis and one death as a result of the disease. All persons connected with the families wherein the outbreak has occurred have been quarantined and every precaution has been taken to prevent a further spread.

The fatal case reported by the physician is that of Stanley, aged five years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Fresh, residing in the Flatwoods section of the county, who died Sunday after an illness of three days and whose funeral took place the following day, the interment being private.

The children now suffering as a result of the attacks are Pearl Thelma Fresh, aged seven years, a sister of the boy who died on Sunday, and Arvil Keynold Weimer, aged seven years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Weimer, who resides at Deep Creek. The latter child is paralyzed in both arms, while the son of Mr. Fresh, when seen by Dr. Riley was in the first stage of the disease and the paralysis had not yet developed.

Subscribe for The Republican.

Notice to Subscribers.

Beginning November 1st, 1916, the subscription price of The Republican will be advanced from $1.25 per year to $1.50 per year. This advance in price is made unwillingly by the publisher, but at the same time it is absolutely necessary by reason of the fact that every single item going into the making of a newspaper, including inks, paper and fixed charges has so advanced that the present subscription price of $1.25 per year is much less than the cost of production.

News print paper has advanced from $2.40 per hundred pounds to $7.00 per hundred pounds, while inks have advanced from 6 cents per pound to 15 cents per pound within the past six months. It was the hope of the management that prices would become normal and this advance in the price of subscription would not be necessary; but instead indications are that all material will become higher.

Anyone desiring to pay their subscription in advance prior to November 1st may do so at the present rate for a period of not more than one year. All subscriptions that are now paid in advance will be continued the full time paid for. All subscriptions in arrear must be promptly settled as we cannot longer carry delinquents.

Important Notice to Taxpayers.

Your attention is directed to the tax law of 1916, which provides that no discount is allowed on State Tax, and after September 1st, 6 per cent. interest must be charged and collected on the same.

Finnegan's Philosophy

BALAAM

Well do I mind the story, said Finnegan. Balaam was a highbrow that knowed less than his Jackass. He took an office to curse the people. The Jackass saved them. 'Tis all in Numbers Twinty-two. Och hone! 'Tis different these times. The Jackass knew better till Balaam tamed him.

"Lave me ride ye," says Balaam, "an' I'll make ye the biggest Ass in the wurld."

"Great," says the Ass; "what d'ye feed?"

"Pork," says Balaam.

"Me savior," says the Ass.

So Balaam mounts. But soon the Jack balks.

"Phwat is it?" says Balaam.

"Snakes," says the Ass; "Ut looks like the jawbone uv me mother."

"G'wan," says Balaam, hittin' the Ass a clip, "'tis me furren' policy," he says.

"Phwat's ut for?" axes the Ass.

"Ut definds the nashun," says Balaam.

"How?" says the Ass.

"Faith," says Balaam, "ut takes a bigger Ass than you to know that. Lave it to Brine," says Balaam to the Ass; an' the Jack walks on meditatin'.

"Hee, haw," says the Ass, balkin' an' kickin'.

"What now?" says Balaam.

"Divil a Jackass ever seen the like," says the Ass. "Ut could be a frog," says he, "for ut stands up in front an' sits down behind; an' 'tis mos'ly mouth," says the Ass. "Ut has white feathers," says the Jack, "wid yaller streaks, that changes," he says, "to Very Crooz Red, or Niagaray Blue, an' now they're Carrysall Yaller again," says he. "Hivins, have I been drinkin'?" screams the Ass to Balaam.

"Saints be praised," says Balaam. "Me Watchful Waitin' can still change its mind," he says. "G'wan, where glory waits," he says. "G'wan, in the service uv Mankind," says Balaam to the Ass, touching him up. An' the Ass shuffles ahead, wavin' his ears in admiration.

"Hee-haw! Hee-haw!" says the Jack, rearin' up wid his eyes bulgin'.

"Phwat's grippin' ye now?" says Balaam, impashunt like.

"I donno," says the Ass. "Ut looks like the Flyin' Dutchman with a Socialist Crew," he says.

"'Tis me Ship Bill," says Balaam. "Side step to the right," he says; "side step to the left," says he, weltin' him. "Back up," says Balaam, near wrenchin' off the Jack's jaw. "Now forward for the Merchant Marine an' fifty millyun pork," says Balaam wid a shower uv blows; an' the Ass goes on thremblin'.

"Wah-hee! Wah-hee! Wah-hee!" says the Jack, shyin' so he near threw his rider.

"I'll learn ye to shy at me Naval Bill," says Balaam, lar-rupin' the baste so he cud scarce stand.

"Ye can't pass ut widout wearin' Republican clothes," says the Jack in a coarse whisper.

"Ye Ass," says Balaam. "Don't ye know that anny cloes is bethter nor nakedness? G'wan," says Balaam, in tones uv thunder. So the poor baste lopes on, limpin' wid pain.

I've not time to tell ye all the adventures they had, but they kep' on over rough roads, now an' then crossin' a ditch on a wan term plank, which made even Balaam uneasy. Iviry time the Jack kicked, he got short rations an' a wallup. So when the journey was near over, the poor baste wus all in, and far too proud to fight. Any Jack-Ass can be that when he's licked.

Wan stormy night, the Jack blooms into a harmony like a Dimycrat Tariff Hymn played on a gaspipe wid the feet.

"Phwat ails ye now?" calls Balaam, clubbin' him wid both hands.

"Nivver did I pass the like," yells the Ass, sweatin' and thremblin'. "Ut says ut's an eight hour law. Oh, phwat is ut?" screams the Ass to Balaam, feebly waggling' his ears.

"I dinno phwat ut is meself," says Balaam, "but I know phwat ut's got," Balaam says.

"Phwat?" axes the poor Ass.

"Five hundther thousand votes," says Balaam, wid a pious air. "G'wan, ye big Ass, an' dount ye argue wid an Idaylist," says Balaam to the Ass.

"We can't pass ut in the dark," pleads the Ass. "Lave us wait for light," moans the Ass, weepin'.

"Nix," says Balaam, "There's a hot time comin' an' the votes'll spile. Do ye thurst for sixteen more years in the wilderness? Giddip," says he, "purgin' ye'r heart," says Balaam, "iv iviry thought that's selfish," says Balaam, "or personal," chants Balaam to the poor Ass ticklin' the Jack's slats wid a touplin' pin.

By this time, the Ass was so wore out wid his ardyous labors, that he knew no more than Balaam himself. So, wid one despairin' cry, he dropped his ears, as he an' his master stumbled forward into the dark.

SURRENDER TO FORCE WOULD TEND TO DISASTER.

"That kind of virus in our life—surrender to force—would bring us no end of disaster. If we let capitalists or workingmen, any interest, learn that the way to get what is wanted is by applying pressure and if we continue in that course for a few years, democracy will be a failure, and we might as well give up our force of government." — Mr. Hughes in His Speech at Portland, Maine.

HUGHES FOR ARBITRATION.

He Would Be First to Accord to Labor All Rights Found Just After Consideration.

In his Maine speeches Mr. Hughes made it plain that he was not attacking labor or the equity of the proposed increase of wages for the railroad men. He was simply contending for the all important principle of arbitration as the right means of settlement of such questions. Speaking at different places in Maine Mr. Hughes dwelt upon this question, saying:

"I deeply deplore, in the name of labor, in the name of justice, in the name of American ideals, the surrender of the Executive and of Congress to force, instead of permitting reason to relan.

"The measure to which I have alluded was not, properly speaking, an eight-hour measure. It was a wage measure. It was a plain proposition for a change in the wage scale. I do not speak of the equity of that. That is a matter to be fairly considered. I want what is just and right with respect to wages. I am for the arbitration and the peaceful settlement of these industrial controversies. We can settle everything in this country if we approach those matters with a fair and open mind and an examination of the facts.

"This particular measure shows on its face that it was legislation in advance of the investigation, instead of investigation in advance of legislation. It is said that there was in its favor the judgment of society. The judgment of society in this country has never been passed in favor of legislation without knowledge of the equity and regardless of the facts of the case. There was no judgment of society in favor of the roads which were excepted from its provisions. If there was a judgment of society, why not apply the rule to electric or other kinds of roads or roads less than 100 miles in length? I say, away with such pretense! It was a surrender to force instead of a clear, candid, faithful framed examination of the facts, and then action in accordance with American principles.

"Autocracy represents force; tyranny represents force. Democracy represents the rule of the common judgment after discussion, after an opportunity to know the facts."

It All Depends.

"If Hughes wins an Oregon town will get a new shingle mill employing fifty men," says the Olympia Recorder, "according to an announcement of the individual who took an option on timbered land. If Wilson wins the option will be allowed to lapse. That's the way with a thousand and one enterprises, all waiting to see which way the wind blows. The moment it is assured that Charles E. Hughes is elected, just watch the wheels of industry spin and listen to the hum of business."

ADVICE FOR SEED POTATO GROWERS

Selection for Next Year Should Be Made Before This Year's Harvest.

John McGill, Jr., the Allegany county agent is suggesting to growers of seed potatoes plans for next year. He states the 1916 crop is ready for harvest, but before this is done, the selection of the growers seed for next year should be made.

The quality and quantity of seed produced this year by the Western Maryland Seed Potato Growers Association as a whole is excellent and that with the exception of a very little, it is above the standard set, which is a very high one, and is eligible for certification, and will add to the price obtained for it, but that the growers who have been so successful this year should be very careful in selection of their seed for next season.

To equal this year's yield and quality the following suggestions by Prof. Temple of the Maryland Agriculture extension Service are being sent out to potato growers:

Good seed potatoes should be true to name, of medium size, free from disease, and capable of producing sprouts that will grow vigorously. The planting of mixed varieties on the Eastern Shore has resulted in more or less loss to the growers. In at least one case, the writer found recently as much as 25 per cent. of Green Mountain in a field of Irish Cobbler, and only rarely did he find a field of unmixed Cobblers, even though he traveled more than two hundred miles through the potato region. It should be noted in this connection that Green Mountain plants in a field of early Cobblers are not more than so many weeds. It should be noted also that of the many fields observed, those planted with northern seed showed the most mixture and the most disease. From these observations, it would seem that some effort should be made to obtain or produce seed potatoes free from mixture. It is understood that certain growers in Maine are making considerable progress in the production of unmixed seed by roguing their fields and by practicing the seed plat and hill section methods. Seed produced in this way is very desirable, and it should be obtained by our growers. In the Frostburg region of Western Maryland, 800 bushels of this select Main seed is being planted this year in an attempt to produce good seed potatoes at home. The conditions of Western Maryland are similar to those of Maine; and, the seed has been handled and the fields are going to be cared for in the most approved manner for the production of A No. 1 seed.

We are beginning to learn in the improvement of any plant, or any domestic animal, that it is the behavior of the individual which is of prime importance. To improve the egg production of our poultry, we trapnest our hens; to improve the production of our dairy herd, we test our cows for butterfat; and in like manner, we improve the production of our corn, wheat, tomatoes and potatoes, we must know the production of the individual. In every case, whether plant or animal, we must eliminate the low producers and propogate from only the best. As in other plants, and in animals, there are many strains in every variety of potato; for example, there are low yielding strains and high yielding strains with knotty tubers or subject to second growth, and strains in which these characters almost never appear; and, there are strains that are susceptible to disease and strains more resistant to disease. By hill selection, many of the undesirable characters are gradually eliminated although they may never entirely disappear. On the other hand, by the bin method of selecting seed, the undesirable characters can never be eliminated; a smooth, medium sized tuber from the bin or barrell might appear desirable for seed, yet it may have come from a hill that had in it all the undesirable strains mentioned above. The bin method of selecting seed, therefore, cannot be depended upon to materially improve the potato crop. The hill method requires extra labor, as the selected hills are usually dug with a fork before the vines die. It is important to select first a thrifty plant, and if the tubers on it do not come up to your standard of size, yield, type, earliness and freedom from disease they may be covered up and left till digging time. Enough should be selected in this manner to plant a separate lot or a number of rows in the field which we may designate as a seed plat.

Every grower who raises his own seed should have a seed plat. The best hills in the seed plat will furnish the seed for the seed plat the following year, and the others will furnish the seed for the general crop the following year.

If this method is practiced for a number of years, it will repay any-one for the extra labor required. He will not only eliminate certain disease, but he will also grow a better quality and a greater yield of potatoes, thus profiting doubly by the practice.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

Entrance Examinations
State Scholarship in Engineering Courses

Entrance Examinations for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in the Academic Building of the Johns Hopkins University, Homewood, Baltimore, September 18-21, 1916, beginning at 9 a. m. each day.

Application For Scholarships in The Department of Engineering, established in the Johns Hopkins University under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, may now be made. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken in the Academic Building, Homewood, on September 22, 1916, beginning at 9 a. m.

Each County of the State and each Legislative District of Baltimore City, with the exception of Charles, Harford, and Queen Anne's Counties will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1916-17, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the three counties mentioned above all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books, and exemption from all regular fees. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is no greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College; and one scholarship will be awarded "At Large."

Applicants should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for further information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction.

MILLIONS WON BY BLACKMAIL BAND

Two of the Gang Confess and Dragnet Is Set for Their Leader

CHIEF PREY IN NEW YORK

Searched From Coast to Coast, Federal Authorities Say, for Rich Victims—Net Spread by Government for Members of the Syndicate.

Chicago.—Hinton G. Clabaugh of the Investigating Bureau of the Department of Justice said that he had secured enough evidence to convict the gang accused of using the Mann White Slave Act as a weapon to blackmail wealthy men and women in New York, Philadelphia and other places, without exposing the names of some of their victims.

These victims, principally wealthy men whose flirtations with pretty women led them into traps from which they escaped only by payment of large sums, will be shielded from publicity except as a last resort, it is said.

The two who have made full confessions, "Dick" Barret and Edward J. Thompson, probably will get immunity. They have given to the agents of the Department of Justice an abundance of information relative to the movements of H. C. Woodward, alleged director of the blackmailing syndicate.

According to the Federal authorities the confessions which have been made show that the operations of the swindlers netted them $1,000,000 in the last year.

Sixty suave blackmailers were in the syndicate, according to Barret and Thompson, and twenty of them were women. In silks and jewels the women stalked their prey, finding victims among justices, lawyers, bankers, merchants and even clergymen. So well developed was the system that few "prospects" nosed out by the scouts escaped.

The men were scarcely less impressive than the women in appearance and address, and frequently were able to edge their way into supposedly exclusive circles by reason of the acquaintance they claimed, which was seldom denied. To their share fell the subsidiary plants of the system, including gambling houses, poolrooms and opium resorts, all lavishly furnished and accessible only to the initiated.

PREDICTS EGGS AT 75C A DOZEN

Secretary of Massachusetts Board Says There Are Fewer Hens.

Boston.—Fresh eggs will sell at 75 cents a dozen, retail, in this State within a short time, Wilfred Wheeler, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, stated. This almost unprecedented price was inevitable, he said, because of the high price of poultry, which has reduced the number of hens, low fertility of eggs laid last spring, which lessened the season's hatch, and higher prices of food products and labor. He said storage supplies are not as plentiful as in former years, and that the increase probably would affect this product.

WRITES STORY OF HIS SUICIDE

Reporter Then Carries Out Plan Except That He Takes Poison.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Harry Howland, a newspaper reporter, wrote the story of his proposed suicide and then carried out his plan, except that he took poison instead of shooting himself, as he had said in his story.

Howland took poison at his desk in a newspaper office here. The copy was found after his death. Howland had grieved over the death of his wife and child in Kansas City a year ago.

WORLD'S NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

WASHINGTON.—The deposits in postal savings banks, according to an announcement by the Postoffice Department, show a record-breaking gain of nearly $3,000,000.

LONDON.—The Dutch Government has prohibited the export of cattle, says a Reuter dispatch from The Hague. All preserves containing meat also will come under the prohibition.

ATHENS.—The revolutionary movement in Crete is completely successful.

PITTSBURGH.—Shell Steel contracts now looming up are likely to be a factor on the steel market.

NEW YORK.—The Conference Committee of Central Labor bodies unanimously voted for a "general suspension" of all work in all trades and industries in the metropolitan district, in aid of the street car strikers. The order affects union workers under contract with their employers.

LONDON.—The continued depletion of the world's supply of tonnage as a result of the operations of the submarines of the Central Powers will be met by an increase in stringent measures by which the Entente Allies design to control the world's shipping.

ZEPPELIN ATTACK ON BRITISH ISLES

Two Giant Airships Lie Wrecked in an English Village

MANY HOUSES ARE WRECKED

London.—Of the twelve Zeppelins which invaded the British Isles two lay blackened masses of steel and aluminum in the little village of Mangold, Essex county, victims of the anti-aircraft defenses of London and outlying districts.

The airships were of a new and larger type than heretofore known.

One came down a flaming torch, as did the Zeppelin L-21, destroyed in the raid three weeks ago, while the second, disabled by gunfire, effected a landing, which saved the lives of the crew of twenty-two men, who are prisoners in England.

The crew of the first raider died in the flames of their own ship, which was consumed much more quickly than was the L-21. It is possible though that some of the men were still living when the great vessel struck the ground. The captain's body was found some ditance frosm the wreck.

The burning of the first Zeppelin was seen by tens of thousands of London's residents, but the crippling and descent of the second raider was a matter of doubt until official statements were given out. Few details are available of this second airship's condition, but it is reliably reported that the crew surrendered to special constables.

Many who saw the shrapnel bursting like skyrockets about the invader, which subsequently caught fire, think there must have been several direct hits. Many aeroplanes were aloft and attacked the Zeppelins from all sides.

The raiders took a heavy toll of lives before destruction, 30 persons being killed and 110 wounded.

Outside of the London district two persons were killed and eleven injured in an East Midland town.

The casualties in the metropolitan area, in the southern and southeastern sections of London, according to an official compilation are as follows:

Killed—Men 17, women 8, children 3; total, 28.

Injured—Men 45, women 37, children 17; total, 99.

RUMANIANS ROUT TEUTON ARMY

London.—The Russo-Rumanian troops have won the big Dobrudja battle. Von Mackensen's army of Germans, Bulgars and Turks is retreating southward, burning Rumanian villages in its fight, the Rumanian War Office announces.

For six days the battle raged, when the strong Russian re-enforcements which were brought up turned the tide. An earlier Rumanian statement had announced that the Allied troops were counter attacking the Teutons and German statements lately have spoken of "fluctuating" fighting.

The heavy fighting went on all along a line of forty-five miles about ten miles south of Constanza, on the Black Sea west to Cernavoda, on the Danube. The Rumanians, retreating before Von Mackensen's sudden invasion of the Dobrudja from Bulgaria, were forced to give up Tutrakan and Sillistria, but were joined by the Russians in time to stand at this strong line. Then came more Russians, who were distributed along the Constanza-Cernavoda Railroad along the battle front, and the Teutons were thrown back.

If the Russo-Rumanians press their advantage and throw the Teutons out again from Tutrakan and Sillistria and out of the whole Dobrudja, they will be able to commence the crushing of Bulgaria between their army on the north and the force of Gen. Sarrail in Macedonia on the south. Von Mackensen's invasion of the Dobrudja was aimed to prevent this.

The official statement, which tells of the victory in the Dobrudja, also tells of the capture of Ordernei, better known as Szekely Udvarhely.

GERMANY OPENS FRONTIER

Belgian Families Pouring Across Border Into Holland.

London.—A despatch to the Evening News from Amsterdam reports that the German guards along the Dutch frontier toward both Belgium and Germany have been withdrawn. From Belgium, adds the despatch, numbers of Belgian families who for months had appealed for permission to enter Holland are now streaming across the line with their belongings piled on every kind of conveyance.

BERLIN BREAD PRICE CUT

Four Pound Loaf Sells Now at About 17 Cents.

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville.—In reporting the recently announced cut in the price of bread in Berlin, by which the four pound loaf sells at about 17 cents, the Overseas News Agency tells of decreases in the price of oats and barley. All the reductions are "in consequence of the abundance of the new crops," it says. The price of oats has been lowered from 45 pfennigs a pound retail to 28 pfennigs.

GERMAN FORCES FAIL IN BIG DRIVE

Bavarian Crown Prince's Army Makes Desperate Attempt to Penetrate Iron Ring

FIGHTING LASTS ALL DAY

London. — The Bavarian Crown Prince's army north of the Somme made a desperate attempt to drive back the French from the Peronne-Combles highway and thus break the iron ring that has been steadily closing in on these two important bases. The French War Office in its communique reports that the attempt failed completely, the French holding their positions everywhere intact.

The British suddenly shifted the fighting to the northern end of their line, capturing 200 yards of German trenches. On the Somme, Sir Douglass Haig's troops beat off all Teuton counter attacks.

The Germans again attacked French positions in the Champagne, east of Soutain Hill, but were repulsed. Similar action in the Vosges, northwest of Altkirch, also broke down under the French curtain of fire.

At Verdun the Crown Prince's infantry wrested from the French a small portion of a trench on the western slope of Dead Man Hill, west of the Meuse.

The outstanding event of the fighting was the German effort north of the Somme. The battle centered around Bouchavesnes, about half-way between Combles and Peronne. From 9 o'clock in the morning until nightfall Teuton infantry was hurled against Gen. Foch's lines in a series of fierce counter attacks in massed formation. They were met by a hail of bullets and shells from the French machine guns and artillery. That the Bavarian throne heir meant to make a supreme effort to re-establish the communications between the two vital bases was indicated by the terrific drumfire which preceded each infantry attack made by the large contingents thrown into battle.

GREAT SERBIAN GAIN CLAIMED.

Paris.—Serbian troops have set foot again on their own soil. Unofficial reports say the Bulgarians are removing their archives from Monastir and preparing to evacuate that stronghold. Allied advances are reported elsewhere along the Macedonian line.

On the other hand, the Bulgarians and Germans assert the Rumanians and Russians have not been able to hold the new line they had selected as the strongest and most easily defended in the Dobrudja.

The campaigns in the southeast thus change complexion every hour and the situation is for the moment the most interesting in the whole theatre of the world war.

The problem all along has been, can the Rumanians make enough progress to force the Central Powers to choose which line—the Serbo-Greek or the Rumanian—they will hold and which relinquish? The answer must come soon.

The Serbians after a night of desperate fighting took the highest summit of the Kaimakcalan range, north of Lake Ostrovo, which the Bulgarians had been ordered to defend to the last man, and they held the peak, more than a mile and a half high, in the face of counter attacks, according to a report from Saloniki.

The French, Serbians and Russians who expelled the Bulgarians from Florina and thus menaced Monastir have not been molested in their new gains, according to the official communique of the War Office, which said no counter attacks had been attempted by the troops of the Central Powers. Apparently the force of the Bulgarian counter attacks was spent at other points, against the Serbians, who held their ground.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

Forty-eight aeroplanes were shot down on the western front during the past twenty-four hours, according to official reports from Paris and Berlin. Aerial combats were fought almost continuously during the daylight hours. Airmen on the entire front from the region of Havre to the Vosges were engaged in the battles.

The French official statement enumerates 24 German machines brought down, making no mention of casualties suffered by the French air corps. Berlin admits the loss of but six machines, and says "we shot down 24 machines."

The number of German prisoners captured by the French and British in the Somme battle from July 1 to September 18 aggregates more than 55,800, the French War Office announced. Of this number 34,050, about five-eighths, were taken by the French troops.

Field Marshal von Mackensen, whose army in Dobrudja, it was reported, was retreating before an onslaught of the Russo-Rumanian army, has turned the tables on the defenders, according to an official announcement from Berlin, by means of an encircling counter-attack.

Sec. 52. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the Treasury except in accordance with the followin provisions:

Sub-Section A:

Every appropriation bill shall be either a Budget Bill, or a Supplementary Appropriation Bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B:

First. Within twenty days after the convening of the General Assembly (except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within thirty days after his inauguration,) unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the Budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any suggestion as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first part shall be designated "Governmental Appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the Executive Department; (3) for the Judiciary Department, as provided by law, certified to the Governor by the Comptroller; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of the debt of the State of Maryland in conformity with Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the establishment and maintenance throughout the State of a thorough and efficient system of public schools in conformity with Article VIII of the Constitution and with the laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution of the State.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill." The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect either the obligations of the State under Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, or the provisions made by the laws of the State for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, or the payment of any salaries required to be paid by the State of Maryland by the Constitution thereof; and the General Assembly may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein provided; however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be decreased during his term of office; and such bill when and as passed by both houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor.

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or supplying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either house of the Legislature, it shall be their duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

(3) No Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of a majority of the whole number of the members elected; and in the yeas and nays recorded on its final passage; (4) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said Section shall apply.

Sub-Section D. General Provisions:

First. If the Budget Bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such Bill; but no other matter than such Bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second. The Governor for the purpose of making up his budgets shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper State officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative offices, bureaus boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for State moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. The estimates for the Legislative Department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the Judiciary, as provided by law, certified by the Comptroller, and for the public schools, as provided by law shall be transmitted to the Governor, in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget without revision.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and of all institutions applying for State moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third. The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this Section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out it provisions

Fourth. In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this Section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this Section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 34 of Article III of the Constution or of any laws heretofore or hereafter passed in pursuance thereof, or be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by Section 16 of Article II, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this Section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the Bill or of any other item of such Bill or Bills.

Section 2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing Section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next ensuing general election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, being the Presidential and Congressional, election, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in conformity with the directions contained in Article XVI of this State, and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be placed the following synopsis of said amendment under the caption of 'CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR A BUDGET.'

"This amendment provides that the Governor shall present to the Legislature soon after it is convened a Budget giving a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the two succeeding fiscal years showing clearly any surplus or deficit in State funds. In these estimates he shall make provision for the interest and sinking funds of all State debts, for all salaries as fixed by law, and for the public schools as fixed by law. With regard to most other matters he may revise the estimates presented to him either by State officers or State aided institutions. The Legislature may not increase the estimates presented by the Governor or pass any additional appropriation act except by a majority vote and must make provision by tax for such increase or additional appropriation. The Legislature may not alter in any appropriation act the provision made by law for the State debt, or for the judiciary, but may reduce all other items in the Governor's estimates; and the words 'for the Constitutional Amendment' and 'against the Constitutional Amendment' as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote in accordance with Article XVI of the Constitution.

Approved Marah 28, 1916."

Now, therefore, I, Emerson C. SPEICHER LAW IS UPHELD BY COURT

the majority of vote were cast 'Against License.' A number of sections provide for the regulation of sales, etc., in case a majority vote were cast 'For License.' It is a character of legislation that has become quite familiar in this and other states and it would be unreasonable and useless to require that every proposed prohibition, if the vote be against license, be in the title. It is not necessary, as might be shown by reference to numerous decisions. The subject of the Act was the prohibition or regulation of the sale of liquor, as determined by the people, and no one who saw or heard the title could suppose that an Act with such a title would simply submit the question of 'Against License' or 'For License, without more. It would be worse than useless to submit the question to the people whether liquor shall be sold and stop there. If determined that it should not be sold then it was eminently fitting, and it may be said, necessary, in order to properly give force to the law, to enact some provisions and penalties to that end."

To strengthen the opinion as above the Court sited a number of decisions bearing upon the question and continued:

"The attorneys have shown commendable zeal in the preparation of their briefs and have cited, any of the great number of decisions on the subject, but we will not prolong this opinion by referring to or discussing many of them.

"As the title of Act of 1916 was to repeal and reenact with amendments Section 4 of the Act of 1914, which is the section that had the prohibition in it, no one ought to have been misled, but if interested, should have examined or inquired into the Act to see what changes were proposed to be made.

"That section, as repealed and reenacted with amendments by the Act of 1916, simply took the place of the section as originally enacted, and it was not intended, and there was no occasion to resubmit the question whether liquor should be sold. The title did not indicate that it was so intended, but on the contrary it was simply to repeal and reenact Section 4 of the Act of 1914, which did submit the question of license or no license. Section 6, which prescribes the penalities for violations of the provisions of the proceding sections, is still in force, and is of course applicable to Section 4 as reenacted.

"We are therefore of the opinion that the contention that the Act is invalid by reason of Section 29 of Article 3 of the Constitution, is not sustained.

"We do not deem it necessary to discuss at length the Webb-Kenyon Act. It is sufficient to say that so far as we are aware the Supreme Court has not thusfar any construction on this Act which prevents the prosecution under our Act. If it was in violation of the laws of Maryland to bring liquor into this State, as the petitioners are charged with doing, then the Webb-Kenyon Act 'divests' such liquors of their 'interstate character,' and the Inter-State Commerce Clause is not a defense. Without attempting to discuss the many authorities on the subject, we might state that the case of Adams Express Company vs. Kentucky, refers to many of the cases. As each of the warrants under which these parties were arrested alleges that he 'did unlawfully carry and bring into Garrett county intoxicating liquors, in quantity greater than one quart, to-wit: 12 quart bottles and one pint of whiskey,' the very language of the statute is followed, and it was a violation of the Maryland law, if as charged in the Warrants."

The order of the Court directed that 'In each of the above cases the petition for habeas corpus be dismissed.

FALL WAS FATAL TO AGED WOMAN

Mrs. Wm. Ryland, Friendsville, Died As A Result Of Injury

Mrs. Wm. Ryland, aged sixty years, one of the oldest and most respected residents of Friendsville, died at her home in that town last Thursday evening three hours after she had fallen down a cellar-way at her home and sustained such injuries that she never recovered consciousness.

From what can be learned of the accident Mrs. Ryland was just returning to the house after doing some chores and not being aware, or at least not seeing that a trap door in the rear porch that led down to the cellar was open, walked into space and striking upon the cement floor of the cellar on her head suffered a fractured skull and other injuries.

The injured woman was found where she had fallen a few minutes afterward and carried from the cellar to her room in the house where everything was done to revive her but her injuries were of such nature that death ensued in about three hours.

Mrs. Ryland was the widow of the late William Ryland, who was a leading merchant at Friendsville a number of years ago and whose death occurred within the past three years. She is survived by her son, E. C. W. Ryland, of Friendsville. She was a consistent member of the Disciple church, her funeral occurring Saturday and was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Young, of the Lutheran church, in the absence of the pastor of the Disciple church.

On Monday Mr. R. S. Jamison, proprietor of the 5 and 10 cent store, sold his stock of goods to Mr. A. C. Whetsell, who has taken charge and will enlarge the stock of goods and reopen the store within a few days.

HAMMOND HOME RUINED BY FIRE

Destructive Fire Wrecked Palatial Residence in Oakland Saturday Morning.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hammond, located on Second street, in Oakland, which was erected a few years ago at a cost of some twenty thousand dollars, was badly damaged Saturday morning as the result of a fire which broke out in the building about one o'clock and which was discovered by Mr. Hammond shortly afterward and who gave the alarm, which brought hundreds of people to the scene within a comparatively short time.

Mr. Hammond had retired at his usual hour (Mrs. Hammond being on a visit to friends in Meyersdale) and was awakened between the hours of one and two o'clock by smoke pouring into his sleeping appartment and upon making an investigation of the cause found that the upper floor of the buildlng was on fire, the flames having gained considerable headway. He at once called to his neighbors and they responded by going to his assistance in saving some of the furniture of the first floor and in giving an alarm by telephone and otherewise with the result that in a few minutes the town turned out.

The hose reels were soon at the fire and the work of extinguishing the flames was begun. For more than three hours thousands of gallons of water were poured into the building. The fire seemed to be confined to the third floor of the structure and in the roof timbers and at times it appeared that the flames were under control, only to burst through the roof at other points which was disheartening to the fighters, but they persisted and at last they were the victors, but only after the roof had been almost entirely burned off and the third floor burned out, with damage by fire and water to the two lower floors.

Nothing whatever in the way of furnishings was saved from the second and third floors of the house, and it was only through the hard work and persistent efforts of those who got to the scene earyl that the furniture on the first floor of the home was carried out.

The fire from its incipiency was hard to fight and was the hardest proposition ever undertaken by the local firemen, to whom is given the credit for saving even a portion of the building, the side walls being intact as well as some of the interior.

Insurance amounting to $14,000 on the building and its contents was carried by Mr. Hammond, which amount will probably cover the loss. Adjusters were here yesterday making an inventory of the damage and as soon as their report is received Mr. Hammond will begin the work of restoring the building for occupancy.

DEER PARK WANTS ROAD

Improved Highway From Sand Flat to That Town Petitioned For

Yesterday a delegation of citizens from Deer Park appeared before the Board of County Commissioners and presented a petition for the building of a State-Aid road from Sand Flat to Deer Park, a distance of about five miles and at the same time filed a bond as required by law governing the matter.

With this road completed it will give the residents of Deer Park an improved highway from their town to connect with the State road and will be of decided advantage to the entire community.

Cattle Poisoned.

Dr. Melody, of Oakland, treated the affected animals and they are now fully recovered.

The Former Last Friday Night and Dedication Services Sunday Morning.

The organ recital and vocal entertainment at St. Mark's Ev. Lutheran church on last Friday evening was liberally patronized by the people of Oakland and the audience was gratified with the program rendered by those taking part.

The organ, a new instrument built and installed by the H. P. Moller Company of Hagerstown, Md., was constructed especially for the local church and its completion is a socrce of congratulation to the membership who have looked forward to this occasion ever since the new church was erected some ten or more years ago.

The instrument is fitted with all the latest improvements, mechanical and otherwise, and its tone is pronounced by those who are judges to be the best.

The service was brief but impressive and was conducted by the pastor Rev. O. A. Bremer.

WILL ERECT NEW CITY BUILDING

Action Was Taken By Council at Its Meeting Monday Night.

At the meeting of Council Monday night it was decided by that body to erect a new city building to occupy the site of the old building which was torn down some months ago, Mr. Bolden being appointed a committee to draft the plans and prepare the specifications of the structure which will include quarters for the hose reels, council chamber, Mayor's office and lock-up. It is the plan of Council to begin work upon the building at an early date and have it completed before winter. It will be constructed of brick or concrete blocks.

Council also ordered the purchase of automatic nozzles for the fire hose, something that has been greatly needed ever since the installation of the fire protective system.

The contract for the erection of a retaining wall along Liberty street adjacent to the lumber and tie yards of Merchant Dixon was awarded to J. W. McCue, who has started the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond Extend Their Thanks.

We wish to thank the people, one and all, who worked so nobly trying to save our home and contents during the fire which almost completely destroyed it last week. The fire laddies were brave—our heart thanks to you all.

MR. AND MRS. C. F. HAMMOND.

FREDERICK FIGHTS TAX COMMISSION

County Board Refuses to Admit Mr. Gorman to Meeting.

Frederick County Commissioners, or at least a majority of the board, have again taken the bit in arranging for a new assessment of real estate, to begin on October 9. They have appointed the tax supervisors and other officials, and, in defiance of orders of the State Tax Commission, have instructed them to assess real estate at 70 per cent. of its value. The state commission insists upon a full valuation on a "uniform and fair basis."

Chairman A. P. Gorman, of the state commission, visited Frederick Saturday to attend a meeting of the county assessment officials in order to inform himself fully on the plans which the county commissioners have laid down.

Accompanied by Alfred W. Gaver, Frederick county supervisor of assessments, he went to where the conference was being held between the county commissioners and the recently appointed listing clerks to conduct the general reassessment, but was refused admittance.

"No this is our meeting, said President of the Board of County Commissioners Frank M. Stevens when Supervisor Gaver asked if he would not like to have Chairman Gorman address the listening clerks. "You and Mr. Gorman," continued the president, "can have your meeting in October."

Chairman Gorman afterward told the county commissioners that the local board had no authority to instruct listing clerks as to the standard of values to be taken in appraising property. He protested against any valuation under 100 per cent. Any instructions the commissioners had to give along this line, explained Mr. Gorman, were out of order.

RUMANIAN ARMY CUT TO PIECES

Decimated by Von Falkenhayn When Von Delmensingen Forces Flank

RESUME DRIVE AT LEMBERG

London.—The Allies are making further gains on the Eastern and Western fronts, the Russians forcing back the Teutons in another great offensive directed towards Lemberg; the French and British taking new ground in the Somme region.

Another Zeppelin is reported to have been shot down during a raid, over London.

Field Marshal Sir John French, commanding the Somme forces says that a number of hostile airships crossed the east coast between 9 o'clock and midnight. A few bombs were dropped near the coast. An airship is reported brought down in flames north of London.

The Rumanian army evidently is not in as desperate plight as the first German accounts of the victories four days ago seemed to indicate. South of the Red Tower pass, which the Bavarians captured, the Rumanians have reorganized and are making strong attacks on the heights commanding the pass west of Caineni, the Rumanian frontier post.

The two-pronged avance of the Russians on Lemberg is again gathering such headway that the Austro-German armies of Prince Leopold of Bavaria and Archduke Karl have been pushed back. Both northeast and southeast of the Galician capital the Russians have registered advances, capturing, according to the official report issued in Petrograd, more than 4,000 prisoners. Russian gains were admitted by Berlin.

The two main actions are being waged in the region of the Brody-Krasne railway, about 30 miles northeast of Lemberg, and in the Brozosany sector on the Zlota Lipa river, fifty miles southeast of the city.

In the former district, the Russians have pressed forward against heavy resistance, taking about 2,000 prisoners. A Teuton Lipa was carried on the southeastern prow of the advance.

A war office report from Vienna says that four Russian officers and 532 men, together with eight machine guns were captured in the Ludova sector.

ALLIES CONTINUE SOMME DRIVE

London.—Giving the Germans no rest, the victorious British and French troops are driving forward on the Somme front. Both armies won more victories along the same front where they made their important progress. Every German attempt to turn the tide failed, all counter attacks being beaten back.

The British pushed home their capture of Thiepval and placed themselves firmly on the main ridge northeast of the village. They stormed the German work called the Stuff Redoubt, 2,000 yards from Thiepval. Five miles east they pushed forward north of Flers, taking German trenches on a 2,000 yard front and threatening Eaucourt l'Abbaye.

The French swept the Germans still further back from Rancourt and penetrated the large St. Pierre Vaast Wood, directly east of Rancourt. They also captured a fortified wood east of Vermandovillers, south of the Somme. The Germans counter attacked the French positions at Bouchavesnes again, but the French dashed out to meet the attackers, threw them back broken and took 250 prisoners and eight machine guns.

The French also got much booty.

A British statement estimates the number of prisoners in the last fortnight at 10,000, while despatches from the front say that upward of 5,000 of these have been taken in the last two days, when Combles, Thiepval, Gueudecourt, Morval, Lesboeufs and other places fell. In Combles the British captured 1,800 rifles, four liquid flame throwers and much ammunition.

More than 1,800 rifles, four flammenwerfer and many thousand rounds of artillery ammunition and grenades were taken in Combles, where our Allies also made large captures of material.

NEW LIGHT ON CRIME

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

An English jurist who visited Chicago not long ago remarked that the United States had developed two courts of international importance—courts the form and principle of which would spread to other nations. One he said was the United States Supreme Court; the other was the Municipal Court as an institution.

The Municipal Court of Chicago was the first of its kind, as it still is the largest. It is a court organized on business principles, and as a result of its form of organization it has developed a number of branch courts of much interest and of national importance.

When the necessity for a new court called for its organization, the business men of Chicago got together and put in a few suggestions as to how a court ought to be run. They thought a court ought to be organized like a corporation, with an executive officer and a board of directors, The executive is the Chief Justice, and the board of directors are the thirty-one judges who meet with him once a month to talk over the administration of justice. The judges are all elective, of course; but in between elections they have a pretty free hand, and make and adopt their own rules within the limits. The Chief Justice has large powers. He can assign any one of his thirty-one judges to any class of cases he sees fit.

The most interesting thing that has resulted from this way of running a big court is the specialization feature. About 200,000 cases of all sorts come before the Municipal Court every year. They include every kind of a case that can come before a court, from the trial of the tobacco-masticating enthusiast who expectorates on the public pavements to judgments like one which the court passed affecting the validity of a $6,000,000 bond issue. It has always been a great court to give experience to its judges, and the idea of specialization has enhanced this advantage until it makes experts of them in their lines.

The Chief Justice having power to assign any case to any judge, all that is necessary to create a specialized court is to assign all cases to a certain judge. Then he will get such cases in an unending procession until he knows every variety and sub-species like his middle name. They have a special court, for instance, for auto speeding cases. One judge hears all the speeders. He is probably the nation's leading authority on speeders by this time. Another judge sat and heard cases of a certain involved civil type until he was able to write a book about them that is the recognized authority. What he didn't know to start with, the ablest lawyers in Illinois were sitting up nights to study and tell him. The special knowledge that the judge thus acquires is a good thing, not only for the greater weight that it lends to his decisions, but because lawyers know that he knows and respects him accordingly. It is an excellent thing for the community when the judge knows more than the best attorney either side can hire.

The special branches of the Municipal Court that interest the average man most—and they are the most truly significant—are the Domestic Relations Court, the Boy's Court, and the Morals Court. Here the advantages of specialization show up more clearly. The judge of the Domestic Relations Court gets all the cases involving trouble between husband and wife, and wrongs against women and children.

Consider what that means. Not only is it possible to select a judge who has a special aptitude for dealing with such cases, and give him every opportunity to learn by hundreds of instances what is at the bottom of them and what measures are efficacious in restoring domestic bliss where it is possible to restore it, but by lumping the cases in one court it became possible to build up around that court an elaborate machine for helping the parties concerned. Domestic Relations cases are cases of a very human nature. All the family cases of the poor come up for redress. And as a result of the bringing them altogether, relief agencies get about thirty times as good a chance to work on them as if they were scattered in thirty different courts.

The Domestic Relations Court is perhaps the best known of all the courts. People from the poorer quarters who have a case in which they are concerned in progress anwhere drift into the Domestic Relations courtroom and ask for directions. It has proved necessary to take one of the big court rooms of the building and use it for a waiting room for the families concerned in the Domestic Relations cases. The families come in force and bring the children. There is a special room provided where babies may be stowed for safe-keeping, in charge of a very competent nurse who is generally able to give the mother valuable medical advice incidentally. They have had as many as thirty-two babies in that room at once.

The cases take the usual run of such cases in a big city—desertion, cruelty, non-support. Before they actually go to the judge the workers attached to the court try to straighten matters out without actual trial and sentence. They have before them lists of all the social welfare associations in Chicago; they can lay their fingers on the right one at a moment's notice. If it is a Polish or a Bohemian or a Jewish family that is having difficulties they can call in the proper society and the society will come and add its influence in the matter, pointing out what a disgrace it will be to the race involved if the matter goes up to court. If the principals are Catholics the priest may be asked to help. No court in the world has such an immense machinery of social welfare at its back as the Domestic Relations Court.

The Boy's Court established by Chief Justic Oslen in 1914, is a similarly specialized branch, where all boys between the age of 17 and 21 come up for trial. The tremendous significance of this court lies in the fact that this is the critical age in the boy's life, when he has got to be handled right if there is to be hope for his future. The great majority of crimes are committed between the ages of eighteen and twenty-four. The "criminal age" all over the world ranges from 16 to 24—here in the United States from 19 to 24.

The third special branch court, the Morals Court, bears about the same relation to young girls that the Boy's Court does to boys, and is similarly important. Younger children of both sexes who are arrested go to the Chicago Juvenile Court, which is not a part of the Municipal Court, but is famous in its own account. It was the first Juvenile Court in America, and has its own psychopathic laboratory, also a pioneer in the field.

The specialization of the Municipal Court branches has made the operation of the psychopathic laboratory established in connection much easier. Most of the subjects taken to the laboratory for testing of their minds and examination for mental defects come from these three courts—the Domestic relations, the Boy's, and the Morals. Here are gathered the criminals who are most significant psychologically—young people starting out of their somewhat unpromising careers, and husbands and wives who suffer from exaggerated jealousy or seclusions as to the faithfulness of their helpmates—both common enough afflictions in court cases.

The laboratory is finding a high percentage of feeble-mindedness and mental derangement among those that it examines. Since they are largely selected cases, the laboratory does not go in for general conclusions as to percentages as yet, but any one can look at the results and see that the percentages run high. It is a new conception in some ways for society to adjust its viewpoint to, but many of these criminals and most of the more serious ones, have something the matter with their minds. Such being the case, it is hard to see where punishment helps.

In some ways the outlook is more discouraging than the older one, which saw the criminal knowing good and evil and choosing evil. But a certain minister after studying the work of the experts said to a judge, "I feel that I am going to sleep at nights again. I have been working with these people, and the thought that I was making no progress has kept me awake. If it is true that their minds are wrong—and I feel that it is, in the light of what I have seen—then my failure is no fault of mine." And a woman said to the same judge, "I have more faith in God and humanity since I know that it's not their fault that they do what they do." So apparantly some consolation can be extracted from the new viewpoint; and perhaps a plan for bringing about better things, not in this generation but in the next.

GRANTSVILLE.

The macadam road is a thing of beauty without doubt and almost, not quite a joy forever. At least so think Grantsville housewives and proprietors or business places since tar has been applied to assist in resurfacing the pike a process which is carried out once each year and is most necessary to the perfect roadway, but decidedly a nuisance to the motorist and pedestrian, as well as to those who have the sticky substance carried over their floors and pavements. Last week the tar was spread with a lavish prodigality, or so it seemed, and automobolists vainly tried to avoid having their tires covered, while tourists swathed in paper covers was no uncommon sight. One irate gentleman on a motorcycle shook his fist after the offending tar wagon and exclaimed vehemently of the outrage to his machine and feelings. All day the swish, swish of the spattered motor wheels could be heard and at no time did any one attempt to exceed the speed limit when passing. The condition of the roads kept a number of people from different parts of the county from attending both the Oakland and Meyersdale Fair, but the circumstance was unavoidable and Garrett county rejoices in an almost perfect roadway of which she is justly proud and which makes traveling a pleasure and delight.

A Rally Day service will be held in the Lutheran church on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 8th, at 2:30, the song service being "Our Rallying Host," with exercises for different departments.

The trial of Platter vs. Folk, of Jennings, held at this place Saturday, resulted in Magistrate Dorsey fining each of the men one dollar and costs. A number of witnesses were summoned on either side.

Bill, Mrs. Charles Getty, Mrs. G. C. Keller, Miss Mollie Dorsey and Miss Ethel Broadwater, of Grantsville. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Getty entertained the Cumberland ladies and Mrs. J. O. Getty at a most elaborately appointed dinner served at the Casselman Hotel, at noon Wednesday.

On Sunday, Oct. 8th, in the morning at 9:30, a Rally Day service will be held in lieu of the regular Sabbath school. Preaching service immediately following.

CENTENNIAL TO BE NOTABLE AFFAIR

Pittsburgh's Celebration Will Be Held Oct. 29-Nov. 4

GORGEOUS PAGEANT PLANNED

Early Characters of City and Country Will Be Represented In Parade by Descendants of Old Families—100 Allegorical Floats Promised.

The City Charter Centennial celebration was postponed four weeks, or from the week Oct. 1st-7th to the week Oct. 29th-Nov. 4th, because of the order of the state health department closing the schools during September. This prevented rehearsals being held for the great historical pageant to be held at Forbes Field in which many young people will take part. The postponement, while regretted at the time, has, however, resulted in the assurance that the whole celebration will be much greater than it would have been if it had taken place on the days originally named.

The pageant and masque of freedom, which will now be held at Forbes Field on the evenings of Oct. 31st, Nov. 1st and 2nd, will be presented in much better and more complete form by reason of the additional time secured for perfecting arrangements and holding rehearsals. In this pageant 1,500 young people belonging to the various educational institutions and dramatic associations of Pittsburgh will take part. An interesting feature will be the fact that descendants of prominent early residents of the city will assume historical characters such as Washington, Celeron, Monroe, Lincoln, Grant, Langley and other noted Americans and Frenchmen who figured largely in the early history of this section.

The Book of the Pageant, written by Professor George M. P. Baird of the University of Pittsburgh, who is also director of the whole affair, has been pronounced by competent authorities to be one of the best ever written in this country. The stage setting for the pageant will contain some notable features, including a steam curtain which will be used between scenes of the pageant. During the intervals between the pageant scenes, a chorus of 1,000 voices will entertain the audience with music, while at the same time a large number of character dances will be presented. It is planned that there will be "something doing" every minute during the performance, either the pageant scenes, singing or dancing, so that there will not be a dull moment for the audience.

Another result of the postponement of the celebration will be that the parade on Friday, Nov. 3rd, will be much greater than was originally contemplated. In fact, it is now assured that it will be the largest procession ever held in Pittsburgh. Already more than 100 artistic floats have been promised and the number is constantly increasing. In the great Sesqui-Centennial celebration of 1908 there were only 60 such floats.

The celebration will be immediately preceded by a special Charter Centennial Night at the Pittsburgh Exposition on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 28th, at which Creator's fine band will render a special program of music by Pittsburgh composers.

On Sunday, Oct. 29th, there will be special religious services in all the churches and a great union service at the Soldiers' Memorial Hall in the afternoon.

On the evening of Monday, Oct. 30th, Education Day, prizes will be presented to the school children of the city for the best essays on subjects relating to the history of Pittsburgh.

The next three evenings, Oct. 31st, Nov. 1st and 2nd, will be occupied by the pageant at Forbes Field. On Friday, Nov. 3rd, the great parade will take place, which will be participated in by many organizations of Pittsburgh and of Allegheny county. In the evening a great banquet will be held at the William Penn hotel at which men of national reputation will speak and at which members of the State Editorial association will be guests. On Saturday, Nov. 4th, there will be a football game at Forbes Field and other sports.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Destruction of the Foundation.

There are times when men ask themselves, does God care for me? Why does He permit so much evil? If I am His why am I so sorely pressed? Such questions indicate a weak faith and all the ills of life, and the misfortunes that befall us, instead of driving us from God and tempting us to distrust Him should lead us nearer to Him and establish our faith in His goodness and providences. We should reexamine the foundations on which we rest, and having these secure we may then build a strong superstructure against which the storms of persecution may beat in vain.

If we are securely planted on the Rock of Ages, and the principles of His word, all the things which seem to be against us, will be found in reality to be for us. Every victory over our foe, or adverse circumstances will then tend to strengthen our faith in God and we shall be able, like David, to gain a great victory. It is natural for us to trust our own strength and when that fails we are tempted to say hard things against God. Why does He permit us to suffer? How short sighted we are! If we had no trials or afflictions that were an evidence that we are not the children of God. David was feeling the resentment of Saul. The javelins had been hurled at him and Saul would have been glad could he have slain him.

His friends tried to get him to flee. No, I'll stand my ground. How say ye to my soul, flee as a bird to your mountains, out of the neck of the fowler. Was he too much of a soldier to flee? Would it be cowardly for him to act thus? Not that, for it may be an act of valor to flee and the worst kind of cowardice to hold our position. What decided David, was that such a course would savor of unbelief. They enforced their advice by personal interest. You are not safe and your usefulness will be at an end, for if the foundations be destroyed what can the righteous do. They assumed too much.

Did they suppose Saul had the power to destroy the civil state and government. What can you do David, to redress the grievances. Better abandon the ship to her fate and secure your own safety by flight.

Maybe his enemies were taunting him and trying to shake his confidence in God. If that were so, then we have David's answer to their sarcasm in Ps. 11:3. He complains of their malice and then resists it with abhorrence. He regards this as striking at the foundations upon which every true Israelite built.

Destroy the hope of the Christian, persuade him that it is false, convince him that religion is a sham and you make him miserable indeed.

The righteous build their hopes on the principles of religion. These are our bulwarks and we hold fast to them against the attacks of skepticism and infidelity. True, the foundations of law and justice were destroyed under Saul's reign, but what was that to David, His trust was in God. He does not say that the foundations can be destroyed. The case is suppositive. It is a sad case, if the foundations be destroyed.

It is a sad question, what can the righteous do? A sad answer is implied, viz. that they are powerless to do anything in re-establishing the destroyed foundations. When once the laws and constitution of a people are destroyed what can the best and wisest do under such circumstances.

Christians sometime despair and suppose that all is about to be lost. The ark of the Lord has been carried off. The Goliathes of skepticism and infidelity come out and defy the armies of Israel, who are thus made to quail before their defiant challenges.

These clarion mouthed, braying giants say, come to me and we'll show you how easily the foundations can be destroyed. What can you do now? Timorous Christians affrighted at these blatant assumptions hang their harps on the willows and refuse either to sing or fight; they throw down their weapons and huddle together like sheep in a storm, with their heads to the earth instead of looking up and encouraging themselves in the Lord and valiantly sallying forth against the enemies, who would be like a pack of wolves in close quarters.

If they would take some of the smooth stones of God's promises and put them in the sling of prayer and then with the strong arm of faith hurl them, these boasting clamoring giants would fall, and upon their great mailed carcass, they could stand and behead them with their own weapons. We needn't worry about the foundations of our Christian religion ever being destroyed. That has been tried too often the devil himself with all his power can't destroy the church. The gates of hell shall not prevail against her. Timid Christian heed this, "The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are his."

Men may boast that they have succeeded, they may think they have done it, as the Caesar Augustus did, when he issued a decree that all the world should be taxed, whereas he only had a part of Europe, a little bit of Asia, and a mere speck of Africa—he thought, in his pride of heart, that he had all the world.

Modern Caesars think they have destroyed the foundations of Christianity. In persecution the church is like a ship in a storm. She may be forced to pull down her sails, not a bit of canvas, plays in the wind, but when the storm is over they hoist up all sails and spread the canvass to the winds. So the church in afflictive times loses all the gayness that attracts on lookers, but sinning times are the praying times of saints. There are days of national confusion, when the foundations are destroyed and iniquity with a high hand seems to rule.

It seems like it now when the hideous evil "Intemperance and kindred vices strike at the roots of law and order, virtue and honors, when law is defied and rulers conniye at intrigue and vice and sell themselves for money or office, betray their country and defy God, the righteous can do little but pray and seek unto God.

In spite of the combined attacks, to destroyed the foundations, shall the rightous be dismayed? No, rather say with David, "In the Lord we put our trust." What are some of the foundations, which wicked men are trying to destroy today. We will notice some of them in our next. Yours truly,

JOANNES.

The Late Rt. Rev. George W. PeterKin.

To the Editor of The Republican.

The secular, no less than the religious press, has given wide publicity to the death in Parkersburg Friday, September 22nd, 1916, of the Rt. Rev. George W. Peterkin, the presiding Bishop of the Diocese of West Virginia. By automatic operation of Canonical law, and of the ancient usage of the Established church, without any official formality or ceremonial, the Rt. Rev. William L. Gravatt, the Coadjutor Bishop, is elevated to the head of the West Virginia Episcopal See and is made its presiding Bishop.

This diocese, carned from the mother commonwealth, and co-equal with the bounds of the State of West Virginia, is as distinctly the creation of Bishop Peterkin's head and heart as is a master piece of molded design new from the Potter's hand, bearing the stamp of his individuality and evincing his Godly teachings. The out come of his choice for a seemingly impossible undertaking is an enduring pillar of support to the belief that there is an exercise of hidden wisdom over labors in the Lord's vineyard..

Responding to an inquiry as to how early to begin to teach a boy to be a gentleman, a philosopher replied, "not less than one hundred years before his birth." Few, even in the most exclusive walks of life, ever came nearer this exacting maxim for a gentleman than did the beloved prelate to day mourned by multitudes ever beyond the limits of the wide territory over which he so lovingly ministered. He was of honorable lineage both as to church and State and:

"The earth that bears him dead,
Bears not alive a truer gentleman."

He served with accomplished fidelity in the four years of Civil War, a large part of the time upon the staff of Brigadier General William N. Pendelton, Chief of Artillery Army of Northern Virginia, a West Point graduate and a minister of the Protestant Episcopal church. This station about Headquarters, brought young Peterkin frequently in contact with General Lee and his subordinate commanders, and the opportunity contributed no little to make the youthful member of Genl. Pendleton's staff one of the best informed authorities upon the events of that great conflict today surviving among its participants, and he has left among, his voluminous writings, valuable contributions to the history of that war.

At the incipiency of this long career of this eminent churchman the present writer received a letter from a prominent resident of a town within the jurisdiction of the then newly formed diorses, asking if a clergyman of the Episcopal church could be sent the following Sunday for a service in that town, stating that a certain congregation was broken by dissensions and that the dissenting element was looking to the Episcopal church. Just then the recently consecrated Bishop for this western part of old Virginia, was in Mountain Lake Park to deliver his lecture on "Principalities in the Air." After the lecture, the writer hereof, laid the whole prospect of a new church in the town named before the Bishop. At the close of a sober and patient listening he said with calm firmness, "This Sir, is a matter in which we can afford to wait six months or a year. It will not do to attempt to build our betterment upon the distress of our brethren of another denomination." My eyes were lifted to him in an admiration that increased and deepened with all the years of subsequent relationship.

In the robes of his high office and in the policies of his sacred administration, he was sound in the best type of Virginia churchmanship; and stood in his diocese, in the general councils and wherever his voice was heard or his example felt, among the most resistless breakwaters of the American church against the advanced practices and innovations from whatever quarter eminating.

Several years back he found himself leaning so heavily on his pilgrim staff as to admonish that, at last, the arduous labors his office imposed had become more than could be borne by his broken health and enfeebled frame. Consequently he wrote urgently to each of three successive councils to be released from duties he was incapacited by nature of ability to perform. Each of these councils while trying to relieve him from the weight of responsibility and contribute to the comfort of his declining years, in a spirit of devotion and proof of loyalty, refused to accept the resignation, wishing him to continue as their Bishop and to pass the closing evening of life in the shade of the glorious diocesan monument built by his thirty-eight years of wise and devoted labors. Thus, from the heat and burden of a long day, with an unrelaxed grasp upon the pilgrim staff, he journeyed by faith down to a serene sun-set hour to the God he served. And, of all wearing this mortality, few ever possessed a better claim to the white flower of a blameless life, or, were richer in possession of those comforting assurances, that come to the righteous as such priceless pearls from the Masters' lips. "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

DODGE

Not seeing any items from our community, I shall attempt to pen a few of the happenings and if they are not consigned to the waste basket you may occassionally hear from me again.

Our farmers are finishing their fall work here, and seem well pleased with their crops, except potatoes which were not so good.

Our school is again being successfully taught by Miss Della Savage. We hope our patrons obey the compulsory school law, which is not unreasonable.

We are glad to know the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Holtsnider, who have been seriously ill with typhoid fever, are improving.

Miss Helen Tasker is teaching the Fork Hill school. This is her first experience in teaching and we wish her success.

Mr. I. A. Paugh sold some valuable cattle to Mr. Wm. Mattingly recently.

The Messrs. Garrett, of Tunnelton, W. Va., who have been visiting friends and relatives here, recently returned to their home.

Mr. Sailor Browning, of Denver, Colo., is spending some time here visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Browning. Mr. Browning went west six years ago and this is his first visit to his home and friends of Garrett county since going away. The west seems to have used him well as he will soon return to Denver.

The people of this vicinity are delighted to know that Rev. Frank McCamic will be returned to them as their pastor for another year.

Mrs. Minnie Cunningham, of Pittsburgh, has been spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Allen Paugh. She will be joined by her husband soon when they will go to Atlantic city to spend a week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jorden, of Shaffer, W. Va., have recently been visiting relatives and friends here.

Miss Nellie Jorden and Mr. Wallace Kimmell, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. We wish them Bon-Voyage over life's matrimonial sea.

Mr. B. F. Paugh lost a valuable cow recently and we are informed had others treated by Mr. Melody.

We are glad to state that Mrs. Mahlon Schooley's health is much improved,

Mr. Carroll Paugh, accompanied by Misses Oca and Mamie Garrett, spent several days visiting Misses Sadie and Bertha Spoerline, of Accident.

Mr. John White recently motored to Cumberland. Mr. White is a careful driver but on his way a Pennsylvania car ran into his car. However it did very little damage. Mr. White states he was keeping his side of the road and there was plenty of room but some drivers take the whole road, hence the need of considering the rights of others in motoring as in other affairs in life.

Miss Effie Paugh contemplates making a visit to relatives and friends in W. Va., soon.

Our teacher, Miss Savage, is planning for a parents and teacher's meeting soon.

Miss Olia Browning left Saturday for Buckhannan, W. Va., where she will enter school. We wish her success.

The youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cuppett died this morning. They have our deepest sympathy.

HUGHES PITILESS ON MEXICAN DISGRACE

In His Mind and on His Tongue More Than Any Other Single Problem With Which Mr. Wilson Has Paltered.

CRAZY CHAPTER OF BLUNDERS

No One Can Hear Him Speak Without Seeing the Reality of His Indignation Over the Heartless Policy of the Democratic Administration Toward American Men, Women and Children, American Citizens, Soldiers and Sailors Along and Across the Rio Grande.

Soon after Mr. Hughes was nominated a friend said to him, "Governor, if the American people forget the Mexican disgrace they do not deserve to have you for president." Quick as a flash he replied, "The candidate who dodges the Mexican disgrace does not deserve to be president." He did not pass around his address of acceptance for compliment or criticism in advance of its delivery, but the amount of space he devoted to the Mexican disgrace—"that confused chapter of blunders"—surprised no one who had talked with him since his nomination. It has been in his mind and on his mind more than any other single problem with which Mr. Wilson has paltered. To talk with him is to see at once the reality of his indignation over the heartless manner in which American men, women and children, American citizens, soldiers and sailors have been abandoned by the administration along and across the Rio Grande, the victims of Mexican armed forces, outfitted with American ammunition and American rifles. Mexicans whom Mr. Wilson has coddled one day as patriots only to chase the next as bandits.

It is apparently the belief of Mr. Wilson that the people of the United States are not interested in Mexico. His defenders have declared that it was an "old story and out of date." Mr. Hughes has a better opinion of his fellow countrymen. He has proved himself a better judge of their feelings. He has made "the Mexican disgrace" a foremost issue of his campaign. He has assailed the record of the administration in that respect in almost every speech he has made. He has never failed to strike a responsive chord in the hearts of his audience, whether speaking in Carnegie hall, New York, from the platform of his train at Grand Forks, N. D., to a vast audience at Portland, at the exposition at San Diego or in the prairie states of the middle west. He has refuted the slander, sometimes heard in the effete east, that the people of the great west do not care what happens to their fellow citizens in Mexico or to the flag beyond the border. No man born in the west has a firmer faith in the fundamental patriotism and "dominant Americanism" of the people of that section than Mr. Hughes. He holds them responsible in large measure for th encouragement and support he received while governor of New York in his war upon political graft and political bossism. He thinks they had much to do with conscripting him as the champion of nationalism in the current campaign. He showed his confidence in their practical idealism when he made "the Mexican disgrace" an uppermost issue of his campaign. He has been vindicated by the response his arraignment of the administration on this score has everywhere evoked. From Maine to California "the Mexican disgrace" is a sore subject with red blooded Americans today. But nowhere between the oceans are the outrages inflicted in Mexico upon American honor, life and property more keenly resented than around the firesides of the great west. Mr. Hughes is no stranger to the west. His straightforward talk on Mexico proves it.

HUGHES OR WILSON? ROOSEVELT'S ANSWER

"Against Mr. Wilson's combination of grace in elocution with futility in action, against his record of words unbacked by deeds or betrayed by deeds, we see Mr. Hughes' rugged and uncompromising straightforwardness of character and action in every office he has held. We put the man who thinks and speaks directly and whose words have always been made good against the man whose adroit and facile elocution is used to conceal his plans or his want of plans. The next four years may well be years of tremendous national strain. Which of the two men do you, the American people, wish at the helm during these four years—the man who has been actually tried and found wanting or the man whose whole career in public office is a guarantee of his power and good faith? But one answer is possible, and it must be given by the American people through the election of Charles Evans Hughes as president of the United States."—Roosevelt in Maine Speech.

BLOODY SHIRT IS NOT BEING WAVED

Governor Hughes States Facts That Stirs Up The Democrats.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3.—In reply to criticisms of the Democratic press that Governor Hughes is waving the bloody shirt and stirring up sectionalism in his remarks on control of National government by the South, Representative Fess, of Ohio, Chairman of the Publicity Committee of the National Republican Congressional Committee, gave out the following statement today:

"The Democratic press editorially takes to task Governor Hughes for calling the country's attention to the sectionalism of the Wilson Administration. It denies the fact of sectionalism—the editorial writers lack information—that's all.

"No man who knows would deny that the Underwood bill retains duties upon southern products—cotton goods, rice, tobacco, Angora goat hair, etc., and places twenty articles of agriculture on the free list all northern products. That is sectional legislation.

"If any citizen calls attention to these facts he is at once accused by Democrats of raising a sectional issue. This Congress is responsible for this sectional spirit. The Congressional Record of June 3rd, 1916, records some interesting data. By special order of the House previously made, Representative Aswell, of Louisiana, was given a stated time to eulogize Jefferson Davis as one of the country's patriots. The Record shows his speech was punctuated by frequent 'Applauses' and when it was finished the Record reads—'(prolonged applause)'.

"Immediately following this speech Representative Kinheloe, of Kentucy, by special order of the House, previously arranged, pronounced a second eulogy upon the head of the Confederacy, which was closed with '(loud applause)'. When these two eulogies were finished the House adjourned making a day's work of two eulogies upon Jefferson Davis.

"This is but one item of others indicating the sectionalism fomented by the present Democratic Administration that Republicans are expected to grin and bear, but say nothing. It is in keeping with Wilson's statement in Philadelphia: 'I look across the Potomac from the White House and view my country.'

"On March 1st, the Congressional Record gives an interesting item of the same import. Both the 63rd and 64th Congresses had witnessed efforts to do away with the element of loyalty as a necessary condition for southern claimants to establish a case against the government for damage arising during the Civil War. This proof of loyalty has been steadily adhered to. On March 1st when the House was considering the subject of 'captured or abandoned property,' an amendmeut was affered as follows: 'Provided, that no claim shall be allowed any claimant unless it is proved that the original owner was loyal to the U. S. government during the Civil War.' This amendment was rejected upon a standing vote, ayes 58, 74. A motion was then made to recommit the bill to the Committee on War Claims with instructions to report back with an amendment requiring loyalty as a condition for any claim. Upon this the yeas and nays were ordered by Republican members. By a vote of 187 to 170 loyalty was again made a requirement. Of course the solid south voted against it. They were joined by forty-three northern Democrats, five of whom were from Ohio,—Allen, Ashbrook, Gordon, Key, and Overmeyer. Neither Brumbaugh, Gard, nor Crosser voted. Seven of the forty-three came from Indiana,—Barnhart, Cline, Cox, Dixon, Gray, Lieb and Morrison. Neither Adair, Rauch nor Cullop voted. All the Democrats from Kansas voted against requiring loyalty.

"The Committee on War Claims which has charge of these matters has fifteen members, nine Democrats and six Republicans. Of the nine Democrats six are from the southern states including Chairman Gregg, of Texas, of the three from northern states two voted with the Democrats against loyalty. One only joined the Republicans in their demands for loyalty.

"If the national treasury is required to satisfy all the war claims that grow out of the exigencies of a four years civil war, whether the claimant was loyal or disloyal, can any expert accountant place a limit upon the demands from that source?

"In the 63rd Congress Mr. Underwood, taking advantage of his position as floor leader, secured passage through the House of a special act, granting a claim without reference to the loyalty. This was carried after the most determined opposition by Minority Leader Mann. This was the opening wedge. In the light of recent legislation of the most wasteful character where the federal treasury is drawn upon for southern projects, and in the glare of the proceedings of March 1st and June 3rd of this year, the strictures of the Democratic press against Mr. Hughes for calling the country's attention to the sectionalism of the government as now administered are but whimperings of troubled minds seriously disturbed by the strength of the criticism."

REGISTER TUESDAY.

Republicans will have but one more opportunity to get their name on the registration books so that they may vote at the election in November. Final registration day will be Tuesday, October 10, and Republican committeemen will make vigorous efforts to have all those who have not yet qualified to cast their ballot do so on this day.

From all indications this rock-ribbed Republican district is going to out-do itself in November and national as well as state party leaders are looking to this section of Maryland for one of the heaviest Republican Majorities in years. To bring this about it is desired that every voter who believes in Republican principles and proponents of those principles be able to express his belief at the polls November 4.

Under direction of Senator F. N. Zihlman, candidate for congress from this district, registration day is being earnestly brought to the attention of Garrett Republicans and few of those qualified will fail to get their names on the poll lists before the registration officers close next Tuesday evening.

Senator Zihlman has just returned to his home in Cumberland after a week's campaign in Frederick county. He will devote the entire week, helping in the work of registration and with his aides, will then concentrate his energy on the big Republican rally to be held at the Maryland Theatre, Cumberland, October 17.

Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, one of the foremost orators of the Republican party, a presidential possibility at the last convention, at which he sounded the keynote of the campaign, will make the principal address. Senator Zihlman and Dr. Jos. France will also address the meeting.

The Republican county committee is planning to make the rally a hummer, every band in the county having been engaged, free trains will be run from the Creek region and Republican enthusiasm will be ebullient.

HUGHES AND THE WAR BOGY

If President Wilson can convince the country that the election of Mr. Hughes means that the United States will be headed for war with either Germany or Mexico, he will be well on the way to assuring an overwhelming Republican defeat. In his speech Saturday the President said:

There is only one choice as against peace, and that is war; some of the supporters of that party outspokenly declare that they want war, so that the certain prospect of the success of the Republican party is that we shall be drawn in one form or another into the embroilments of the European war, and that to the south of us the force of the United States will be used to produce in Mexico the kind of law and order which some American investors in Mexico consider most to their advantage.

At the present moment a Joint Commission is in desultory session endeavoring to settle our differences with Mexico. It has been marking time for weeks. If anything has been accomplished, the country has been left in ignorance of what it is. The stiff-necked de facto President of Mexico seems to be the real boss of the Commission. He gives it to understand what it may discuss and what it may not discuss. He is determined upon one thing—that is, to get American troops out of Mexico. We do not accuse the President of playing politics with the situation, but there is not the slightest indication that the Commission is going to do anything other than keep the Mexican muddle in the background until the election is out of the way.

In what way will Mr. Hughes, election make matters worse? All he has done is to give Carranza and everybody else to understand that American citizens and American interests in Mexico will have the strong hand of this Government back of them. The News believes that that is precisely what is needed in order to bring Carranza off his high horse. So far from threatening worse trouble with Mexico, a mandate from the American people to their President that they expect him to see that these rights are protected should serve, and probably will serve, to avert intervention. Nobody in the United States know how far Carranza will be permitted to trifle with us. No wonder Mexico thinks there is no limit to American patience. We shall be surprised, indeed, if victory for Mr. Hughes does not produce a sudden and helpful change in Carranza's attitude.

As for Germany, war can only come from such a defiance of neutral interests as will necessitate our entry in the conflict. Hughes is not going to force Germany's hand. He is not going to bait her into ruthless submarine warfare. The only conclusion from Mr. Wilson's speech is that Mr. Hughes as President would go farther than Mr. Wilson in upholding American rights and protecting American interests. We believe he would. But we believe, further, that is the only way to maintain peace with honor.

Aside from these considerations, if the President is now going to rely on a war bogy to get votes, what will become of the hyphen bogy? When war is spoken of it means war with Germany. That is the country the President and his supporters have in mind. It will be interesting to see how they are going to reconcile their plea for the defeat of Mr. Hughes on the ground that he will precipitate war with Germany with their strenuous appeal for his defeat because he is bowing his neck to the hyphenates.—Baltimore News.

Mr. Hughes' Visit to Maryland.

The people of Maryland, and particularly the politicians, both Democrats and Republicans, are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the visit of the Republican candidate for President of the United States, Hon. Charles Evans Hughes next week. Mr. Hughes will spend but one day in Maryland, and that day will be Tuesday, October 10th.

Mr. Hughes will make but two speeches in Maryland. The first will be at Elkton, where his train will stop but a few minutes. At Elkton the meeting will be addressed also by Dr. Joseph Irwin France, candidate for United States Senator and Hon. Robert F. Duer, candidate for congress, in the first Congressional district.

Mr. Hughes' utterances in his campaign speeches have been so forceful and so direct that it is now conceded he is one of the most effective campaign orators in the history of the country.

Both in his speeches and in his private life Mr. Hughes is as intensely human as Roosevelt, and is thought by many to be even more cordial in his treatment of those who are not his most intimate political associates. But it is about his official character that the people are most concerned. It is stated that throughout his professional life he never would accept a general retainer, and would never put himself in a position where he would even professionally be obliged to present an argument in the court which was not backed by his real conviction. Furthermore, it is conceded even by his most critical enemies that in official life as Governor of New York he was never swerved by considerations of political or personal expediency, and that in his judicial career his opinions were based wholly and absolutely upon the logical and necessary interpretation of the Law.

In fact he is one of the few men who have reached great prominence in American politics whose record has not at sometime been marred by very evident show of ambition.

The Baltimore meeting will be at 8:15 o'clock, in the evening at the Fifth Regiment Armory and it is expected that the attendance from the City and from all portions of the State will be large. This is one of the largest buildings of the kind in the United States, but it will be so arranged that every person in the audience will be able to hear practically every word of the Hughes' speech.

FATAL DISEASE AMONG CATTLE

Twenty-Seven Have Died As a Result of Outbreak.

During the past week an epidemic of anthrax among cattle in different localities of Garrett county has broken out and as a result twenty-five head have died, the disease having its inception at a point near Hutton where the heards of Mr. D. N. Sanders, Mr. Fred A. Thayer and Mr. Bert C. Scott were attacked, the former losing some eight or ten within a few hours.

It was thought by Mr. Sanders that lightning had killed five head during a thunder storm, but upon the following day he discovered that several others were sick and called Dr. Melody, who upon post morten and microscopical examinations pronounced the disease anthrax and ordered all dead animals burned and isolated all infected ones.

The disease rapidly spread and in a days it was found to have infected animals on adjoining farms and as a result it became necessary to quarantine and vaccinate several hundred cattle against the disease which work has been accomplished by the local veterinarian.

THE DEATH RECORD.

GEORGE I. RICHARDSON.

Monday's Baltimore Sun contained the following account of the death of the late George I. Richardson, who made Mountain Lake Park his summer home from the time the Park was founded until about three years ago when he sold his property at that place which has since been remodeled.

George I. Richardson died at his residence in Lutherville, Md., yesterday from a complication of diseases incident to old age.

He was born at Warren, Baltimore county, on March 12, 1830, and resided in Lutherville for about fifty years. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Mary Bowley, of Baltimore, and the result of this marriage was one son, G. B. Richardson, now residing in Pittsburgh, Pa. His second wife, who was Mrs. May Hundley Bowley, widow of Louis Bowley, of Essex county, Virginia, survive him.

Mr. Richardson was in the employ of a large life insurance company for 53 years, and had sold over $6,000,000 of insurance, $1,000,000 of it having been solicited by him after he reached 70 years of age.

Mr. Richardson had been a member of St. John's board of beneficence of Baltimore since 1879 and was its president for about 15 years; he was one of the charter members of St John's Methodist Episcopal Church, Luthervill, and was an active worker in the church. He was a very remarkable man in many respects and retained his full mental vigor until the beginning of his last illness, several week ago. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, Lutherville, the Rev. Frank Steelman, pastor, and the Rev. Joel Brown officiating.

Fannie, aged 13 years and a few months, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Swartzentruber, of near Gortner, a few miles south of Oakland, died at her home on Friday, September 29th, after an illness of two weeks. Her funeral took place from the home with interment in the Union church cemetery at Gortner on Sunday morning, the Rev. Jonas Petersheim officiating. The young girl was a prime favorite in the community where she lived and her death is sincerely regretted by a large circle of friends and relatives.

BRISON and JOSEPH MEESE.

Brison, aged two years, and Joseph, aged ten years, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus C. Meese, of Paradise, died at their home, the former on Saturday and the latter Sunday morning, of diphtheria, with whice they were attacked but a few hours preceding their demise. Five other children as well as Mrs. Meese, are yet suffering with the disease, but they are now well on the way toward recovery. The bodies of the children were interred privately near the home. WENT OFF ROAD IN AUTO

Mr. W. G. Hinebaugh and Party Had Narrow Escape Last Thursday Night.

Last Thursday night Mr. William G. Hinebaugh, of Oakland, driving his Saxon car from Cumberland, where he had been in company with Mrs. Hinebaugh and two little daughters and Mrs. Louis Walters, had a narrow escape from more or less serious injury when the car left the road just north of McHenry on Commissary Hill during a terrific thunder storm and went down in the woods quite a distance where the machine turned on its side, throwing the occupants out but fortunately all escaped without even a bruise and the car without a scratch aside from slight damage to one fender.

Mr. Hinebaugh, who was driving, was blinded by a bright flash of lightning just as a curve was reached and before he recovered his vision the car was off the road as above stated. The machine was brought into Oakland the same night under its own steam.

Notice to Subscribers.

Beginning November 1st, 1916, the subscription price of The Republican will be advanced from $1.25 per year to $1.50 per year. This advance in price is made unwillingly by the publisher, but at the same time it is absolutely necessary by reason of the fact that every single item going into the making of a newspaper, including inks, paper and fixed charges has so advanced that the present subscription price of $1.25 per year is much less than the cost of production.

News print paper has advanced from $2.40 per hundred pounds to $7.00 per hundred pounds, while inks have advanced from 6 cents per pound to 15 cents per pound within the past six months. It was the hope of the management that prices would become normal and this advance in the price of subscription would not be necessary; but instead indications are that all material will become higher.

Anyone desiring to pay their subscription in advance prior to November 1st may do so at the present rate for a period of not more than one year. All subscriptions that are now paid in advance will be continued the full time paid for. All subscriptions in arrear must be promptly settled as we cannot longer carry delinquents.

Important Notice to Taxpayers.

Your attention is directed to the tax law of 1916, which provides that no discount is allowed on State Tax, and after September 1st, 6 per cent. interest must be charged and collected on the same.

ALBERT H. BOZMAN FREED

Woman Who Charged Him With Fleecing Her Doesn't Appear.

The case against Albert H. Bozman, of Baltimore, who was alleged to have fleeced Mrs. Margaret Ridge, a wealthy widow, of Brownsville, Pa., out of $1,400 on a pretense of marriage, was dismissed at a hearing before Alderman Kirby in Pittsburgh yesterday morning, when Mrs. Ridge failed to appear at the hearing to sustain the charges, according to a dispatch from Pittsburgh. Charges of larceny and false pretenses were preferred against Bozman by Mrs. Ridge after she had learned that her alleged suitor had married Miss Alvira B. McKeen, of Friendsville, Md.

Bozman was arrested last Tuesday and had been in jail at Pittsburgh since awaiting a hearing.

Two Stabbed in Fight.

In a fight with four Italians on the Piedmont end of the interstate bridge crossing the Potomac at nine o'clock last night, Charles Jeffries was stabbed in the jaw and Ercil Fike received a gash in the stomach and a severed ligament in the right arm. Besides, both men were considerably pummeled. According to their story, one of the Italians made an insulting remark as the quartet passed and when Jeffries asked for an explanation, the Italian struck him. Fike intervened and in the general melee, stilettos were drawn and the two Americans were badly used. The Italians, who were moving toward Piedmont, escaped. Dr. Zdock T. Kalbaugh dressed the wounds of the two men.

A Giant Punpkin.

There is on exhibition in the banking room of the First State Bank at Grantsville a sweet pumpkin that weighs just fifty pounds. It was grown by Mr. James P. Wiley, of the Bittinger section of the county.

Woman Who Charged Him With Fleecing Her Doesn't Appear.

The case against Albert H. Bozman, of Baltimore, who was alleged to have fleeced Mrs. Margaret Ridge, a wealthy widow, of Brownsville, Pa., out of $1,400 on a pretense of marriage, was dismissed at a hearing before Alderman Kirby in Pittsburgh yesterday morning, when Mrs. Ridge failed to appear at the hearing to sustain the charges, according to a dispatch from Pittsburgh. Charges of larceny and false pretenses were preferred against Bozman by Mrs. Ridge after she had learned that her alleged suitor had married Miss Alvira B. McKeen, of Friendsville, Md.

Bozman was arrested last Tuesday and had been in jail at Pittsburgh since awaiting a hearing.

Two Stabbed in Fight.

In a fight with four Italians on the Piedmont end of the interstate bridge crossing the Potomac at nine o'clock last night, Charles Jeffries was stabbed in the jaw and Ercil Fike received a gash in the stomach and a severed ligament in the right arm. Besides, both men were considerably pummeled. According to their story, one of the Italians made an insulting remark as the quartet passed and when Jeffries asked for an explanation, the Italian struck him. Fike intervened and in the general melee, stilettos were drawn and the two Americans were badly used. The Italians, who were moving toward Piedmont, escaped. Dr. Zdock T. Kalbaugh dressed the wounds of the two men.

BROTHERHOODS WIN; FARMERS' WIVES LOSE

Democrats Unctuously but Vainly Flatter Themselves That Tillers of the Soil Believe Their Bunk Uplift Laws Will Improve Agricultural Conditions.

FARING WORSE THAN LOWLIEST RAILROAD HAND

Plight of Women Laborers in the Fields Described by President Pope of the Association of State Presidents of the Farmers' Union as More Deplorable Than During the Days of Slavery, and Yet Not a Word Was Spoken in the Last Congress, Which Is Boasting of Its Farm Legislation, About the Woman Who Rakes the Hay and Gathers the Sheaves.

That the increase in pay of the members of the four railroad brotherhoods, caused by the enactment of the eight hour day law by congress, will rest ultimately upon the farmer was asserted by Henry N. Pope, newly elected president of the Association of State Presidents of the Farmers' union, in a statement issued by him.

Mr. Pope declared that the farmers of the country stand for a fair wage for both labor and capital and favor an eight hour working day, but that he personally doubted the wisdom of congress fixing wages for labor employed by private enterprise. "I doubt," said he, "if it is in the interest of either labor, capital or the people to make the wage schedule of railroad employees a political issue."

The condition of the farmers of the country is worse than that of the most lowly railroad laborer, Mr. Pope stated, with an average farm income of only $1.47 a day, out of which must be paid the expenses of the family. The condition of women laborers in the fields he described as worse than during the days of slavery.

Not a Word For Farmers.

"Not a word has been spoken by congress in defense of the woman who rakes the hay and gathers the sheaves," said Mr. Pope. "Little has been done that has increased the income of the farmer or enabled him to pay a higher wage to his laborers.

"But today we find the highest paid laborers in the world making three times more money than a farmer demanding 25 per cent increase, and congress hastening to their relief. This increase must in the end rest upon the back of the farmer and will reduce his income, increase his hours of labor and call for another levy of farm mothers from the home to the field.

"The farmers of this nation must fight through organization to hold what they have and to get what is rightfully theirs from the government."

Mr. Pope stated that by the enactment of the eight hour day law congress had thrust upon the people of the country a new responsibility and organized labor now stands committed to the principle of government regulation of wages. The government, he said, should fix wages for all classes of railroad employees and should have the power to decrease as well as to increase wages to remedy comparative inequalities.

"Square Deal" For All.

"In my opinion," he continued, "the next session of congress should readjust the wages of all railroad employees, from railroad president to section laborer, giving all a square deal and fixing a schedule of pay based upon business justice and human rights. I submit a schedule of wages taken from official government reports which presents conclusive evidence of the inequalities of the present daily wages:

"General officers, $16.11; other officers, $6.49; general office clerks, $2.53; station agents, $2.37; other station men, $1.99; enginemen, $5.28; firemen, $3.23; conductors, $4.49; other trainmen, $3.11; all shopmen, $2.37, and trackmen, $1.50."

Mr. Pope declared that the foregoing schedule showed that the 350,000 section hands in the country were condemned to a life of poverty. He said he believed that congress, having undertaken to regulate the wages of higher paid employees, should review their wages.

Finnegan's Philosophy

Single Track Minds

"What is he?" asked Finnegan. "Sure at Injainnypoles he said he was full of Annymated Concerv'tism. Fwhat's that, ye say? 'Tis the turn-table on the wan thrack mind. It kapes spinnin' round and round an' divil a man can tell fwhat switch it will pick up. It dinnau itself. So ye dinnau where to lay for it.

"'Twas so wid the arrumed freight ships. 'They're not warships,' he says, 'onless I change me mind,' he says, 'which I have,' he says, 'an' annywan who says so is a liar,' he says, 'but I refuse to discuss it,' he says. 'I'll pass the buck to Congress,' he says, 'on'y I won't,' he says, 'for 'tis no business of theirs,' he says, 'though they must vote on the resolution,' he says, 'to show where they stand,' he says, 'since ye'll lay it on the table,' he says, 'an' thin they can't vote,' says Wudthrow to Stone.

"'I—I—thought I seen a fallacy,' says, Stone, timid like, but the Great Idayllst brung down his fiskt wid a t'ump.

"'Table the risolution,' says he—an' away goes Stone.

"'Pwhat does this mean?' axes the Sinit.

"'Gintlemen,' says Stone, weepin' bitterly, 'ye can frisk me. But thim's the orders,' says Stone, 'an' if anny man iver knew fwhat it meant he's kep quiet about it.'

"So wid the fightin' wurd. 'We're too proud to fight,' says this turrible man to a bunch iv just-overs at Philadelphy. 'Haw-haw-haw,' says the wurled (a laugh gets his goat, Jawn. 'I was thinkin' iv somethin' I didn't say,' yells Wudthrow. 'Haw-haw-haw,' says the wurld, laughin' to split.

"Be this an' be that 'Too Proud to Fight' has made the reppytashun iv Wudthrow. 'Tis like the Monroe Doctrine to Monroe or Emanshipashun to Lincoln. 'Twas thranslated into ivry tongue. 'Tis better known than the twenty-third psalm or the famous oration iv the Guv'nor iv North Carliny. If an Ashantee poked another in the eye he's give him the coon fr 'Are Ye Too Proud to Fight?' an' they'd both laugh befure they wint to the flure. All the recruitin' signs abroad had it, an' the shame 'ud bring three recruits where 'Tipperary' or rum wud bring wan. 'Oh, won't ye plaze stop laughin?' says Wudthrow, but they laughed the more. So he sinds Jim Ham Lewis to explain. He's called Ham by reason he's so fond of pork.

"'Three thousand years agone,' says Jim Ham, 'or maybe less,' says he, 'an ould Dago said, "Non Dinny Carey win Kerry"'* (or the like o' that, Jawn. It means not to have a chip on yer shoulder.) 'Non Dinny Carey win Kerry,' says Jim Ham, 'an' Julius Sayzer,' says he, 'an' Tolmy Philadelphy,' says he, 'an' the Earl iv Cheatem,' says Jim, 'an' William Haitch Seward,' says Ham, 'an' a lot more I forget,' says Ham, 'who felt the same way,' says Jim, 'although,' he says, 'they nivir said so,' says Jim Ham to the Sinit.

"'Now,' says he, 'how, I axe ye, cud the Prisidint know that the cultyvated Christian audience,' he says, 'iv immygrants,' says he, 'wud fail to grasp the nooance,' says Jim Ham. 'An' Jawn, they shut the dures the way the people wudden't see the Sinit lose its dignity.'

"'Fhwat's a nooance?' asked Malumphy.

"'Tis a sort iv intellectual gold brick,' replied Finnegan, slightly puzzled, 'be which ye say fhwat ye doan't mane an' mane wye doan't say. The nooance comes out iv it somehow. 'Tis like I dinnau what, just exactly like it,' he added after a short pause. 'I cudden't tell thim apart.'

"'Well,' said Malumphy, 'the single thrack mind gets nowhere, I'm thinkin'.'

"'Th' gauge is none too broad,' replied his friend, 'an' the thraffic's heavy,' he added."

ANSWER: EIGHT HOURS, NOT EIGHT YEARS.

[Special Dispatch to the New York Herald.]

Bar Harbor, Me., Monday.

To the Editor of the Herald:

Maine's answer to Wilson: "Eight hours, but not eight years."—A Former Progressive.

Editorial Comments

Mr. Hughes has made Mr. Wilson's policy of deciding a case and then getting the facts afterward one of the most pitiable exhibitions of weakness that even the present administration can give.

"Peace, preparedness and prosperity" are claimed as the Democratic campaign cries. More appropriate ones would be "Pie, pork and pitile."

And now nobody seems to know exactly what the new wage law means or to whom it applies. Another illustration of Democratic inefficiency.

The Democratic congress has voted a tariff on dyes, thereby declaring in favor of the principle of protection. How the party does change its colors.

If President Wilson were really earnest in telling the suffrage women "I come to fight for you" he would have put a suffrage measure through congress by the same stop watch method that he used to force the railway wage increase bill through.

Shadow Lawn, as a residence for the next few weeks, will give its occupant an opportunity to get accustomed to the after election gloom.

Here is reason enough why Mr. Wilson should be defeated. Why should Mr. Hughes be preferred? Gifford Pinchot, the Progressive, answers, giving facts to support his statement: "Hughes is a man of his word. * * * I cannot vote for Wilson because I cannot trust him. He does not do what he says. Hughes does. Therefore my choice is Hughes."

When the Progressives come back they bring their punch with them.

Villa says he bears us no grudge. Well, why should he? Haven't we always treated him as a perfect gentleman?

What has become of the old fashioned man who used to say of President Wilson, "Ye-es, he does make mistakes, but I believe he's sincere."

And we haven't yet got either Francisco Villa or that salute.

Next stop for the political express Nov. 7.

Irvin S. Cobb is to make campaign speeches for the Democratic party in the west. Irv, you all recall, of course, is a humorist and is peculiarly equipped to do full justice to his subject.

The least that may be said of President Wilson is that he has been right half the time, for he has been on both sides of almost all important questions.

NOT AN EIGHT HOUR DAY.

Recent Hold-up Legislation Does Not Shorten Workday a Minute.

As a matter of fact, it is not an eight hour law at all. It does not curtail the trainmen's's workday by a single minute. If an engineer has been receiving $5 for working ten hours a day this law will raise his pay to $6.25, but it will not shorten his workday even the tenth part of a second. This is no more like the true eight hour principle than chalk is like cheese.

The reason why people call this an eight hour law is because it says that in the case of railroad trainmen they shall get their day's pay for the first eight hours' work, and all the rest is to be considered overtime.

Do not tell me that this strike could not have been called off or postponed if President Wilson had shown that he meant business. I do not for one minute believe that those four brotherhood leaders started the blaze going without knowing how to put it out. One of them admitted that he could put it out so far as his own brotherhood was concerned, but that his followers would think that he had gone back on them if he were to do so. —Statement of Congressman A. P. Gardner.

A WEEK OF THE WAR.

In the offensive against Verdun the Germans had a definite strategic point to attain. The strategic advantage to come with its possition may not have been entirely obnious. Its value may not have been worth the men sacrificed in the attempt to get it. But for four months of almost continuous battle we could follow each step, each bit of ground gained with reference to the one great comprehensible objective.

In the present offensive on the Somme this is not the case. The initial great drive was apparently directed against Peronne, and the line was advanced to within a mile of that place. The correspondents and experts at once began to point out its great value as a central point in the German system of communications. But since the first week or so of the offensive this Peronne sector has been practically neglected. The English attack, particularly, switched toward Bapaume, fifteen miles to the north. The French have operated first on one side, then on the other, making salients and then gradually bringing the rest of their front up into alignment with them. This, of course, is the same strategy the Germans pursued at Verdun. But in the Verdun case the active front narrowed as the advance progressed, until in the end all the fighting concentrated within the short sector running from Fort Vaux past Fort Souville to the Thiaumount farm that is directly at the gate to Verdun. The present offensive, instead of contracting, widens as it progresses.

The news dispatches gave great prominence to the capture of Combles and relatively little to that of Thiepval. Yet Combles opens the way to no other place of manifestly great strategical importance. Its defense held up the allied advance, but there is no such manifest single objective behind it as Verdun behind "Dead Man's Hill," for instance, Thiepval, on the other hand, was the anchor by which the Germans bound their new front along the line of the offensive with their original positions to the north. Like Combles, it is only a village. But its capture paves the way to a considerable extension of the fighting front northward.

This seems to have been the really important event of the past two weeks, not only in itself but as an indication of the allies' strategical plans. Between Thiepval on the north and Vermandovillers on the south, the practical limits of the offensive thus far, the allies have made a great and fairly regular bend in the German line, some seven miles deep. The salients within it are of minor and local character; and its extremities are too far apart to render progress in the center dangerous because of the risk of flank attacks. The last two weeks seem to have shown that in the center the Germans have been pushed entirely out of their lines of permanent fortifications, and that the new ones, thrown up hastily, offer far less obstacle to the allies' advance. The fact is indicated in the greater distances now covered regularly in the allies' attack when made in this section. The wonder is, then, if the object is simply to pierce the line, why we do not see the fighting become more and more restricted. Rather, the idea seems to be to broaden the pregnable front so greatly, before this final drive is made, that the English, particularly, will have elbow room for the employment of the hundreds of thousands of men who must as yet be kept behind the lines. However intense the fighting, there are limits to the numbers one can throw against a breach only eighteen miles wide. The broader the front the more telling will be the attack, for where Germany, by concentraning her troops, might present a fair resistance on an eighteen-mile front, she certainly cannot have the men to meet the same kind of an onslaught on a front of forty or fifty miles.

The allies, progress in the west has been notable. In the east, whatever there war councils may have expected, events must have proved keenly disappointing to the British and French public. As the season progresses the immediate value of Rumania as an ally grows more and more problematical. The Austrians and Bulgarians seem able to take care of her without serious injury to the Macedonian defense and without leaving Russia free to resume her offensive in Galicia, Rumania herself might, indeed, not have been expected to accomplish much; for this is not a war where 300,000 men count particularly. But the removal of the obstacle the Cumanian frontier opposed to a Russian advance southward has not been followed up; nor, at the end of a month, is there the slightest indication of preparation on Russia's part to seize upon the advantage offered her with millions of men available, provided they had equipment, and with the obviously deadly blow that a severance of communications with Constantinople would deal the Teutonic cause, and the road open, Russia's quietude is a mystery that can be explained only by the assumption that this year's accumulation of munitions has been exhausted. And, of course, if this be found to be true, Germany may pretty soon feel easy enough to transfer troops to the west if she conceives the situation there growing too menacing for the safety of her plans.

Means of communication between this country and Germany are so circumscribed that implicit reliance cannot be placed in the cable dispatches which seem to forcast resumption of submarine activity on a broader scale than has yet been attempted and regardless of neutral protests. This may be the meaning of von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech in the Reichstag on Thursday. If he has gone over to the von Tirpitz idea of ruthless warfare, the worst may be feared; but is difficult to reconcile such a change of attitude on the Chancellor's part with what we have been given to understand he has been doing to hold the fire-eaters in check. Having carried the day against them and having disposed of von Tirpitz, it does not seem likely that the Chancellor would suddenly reserve himself. The idea that Germany would take on another antagonist with the great resources of the United States, and thus having the world against her in arms would find it easier to quit, might be entertained if it were not for the fact that Germany will need friends after the war considerably more than she needs more enemies during the war, even though an additional one might help to save her face. If she now determines to force the submarine issue at the risk of bringing the United States into the conflict, it will be because she sees a way to do far greater damage to her enemies than has yet been demonstrated to be possible.

BROTHERHOODS WIN; FARMERS' WIVES LOSE

FARING WORSE THAN LOWLIEST RAILROAD HAND

Plight of Women Laborers in the Fields Described by President Pope of the Association of State Presidents of the Farmers' Union as More Deplorable Than During the Days of Slavery, and Yet Not a Word Was Spoken in the Last Congress, Which Is Boasting of Its Farm Legislation, About the Woman Who Rakes the Hay and Gathers the Sheaves.

That the increase in pay of the members of the four railroad brotherhoods, caused by the enactment of the eight hour day law by congress, will rest ultimately upon the farmer was asserted by Henry N. Pope, newly elected president of the Association of State Presidents of the Farmers' union, in a statement issued by him.

Mr. Pope declared that the farmers of the country stand for a fair wage for both labor and capital and favor an eight hour working day, but that he personally doubted the wisdom of congress fixing wages for labor employed by private enterprise. "I doubt," said he, "if it is in the interest of either labor, capital or the people to make the wage schedule of railroad employees a political issue."

The condition of the farmers of the country is worse than that of the most lowly railroad laborer, Mr. Pope stated, with an average farm income of only $1.47 a day, out of which must be paid the expenses of the family. The condition of women laborers in the fields he described as worse than during the days of slavery.

Not a Word For Farmers.

"Not a word has been spoken by congress in defense of the woman who rakes the hay and gathers the sheaves," said Mr. Pope. "Little has been done that has increased the income of the farmer or enabled him to pay a higher wage to his laborers.

"But today we find the highest paid laborers in the world making three times more money than a farmer demanding 25 per cent increase, and congress hastening to their relief. This increase must in the end rest upon the back of the farmer and will reduce his income, increase his hours of labor and call for another levy of farm mothers from the home to the field.

"The farmers of this nation must fight through organization to hold what they have and to get what is rightfully theirs from the government."

Mr. Pope stated that by the enactment of the eight hour day law congress had thrust upon the people of the country a new responsibility and organized labor now stands committed to the principle of government regulation of wages. The government, he said, should fix wages for all classes of railroad employees and should have the power to decrease as well as to increase wages to remedy comparative inequalities.

"Square Deal" For All.

"In my opinion," he continued, "the next session of congress should readjust the wages of all railroad employees, from railroad president to section laborer, giving all a square deal and fixing a schedule of pay based upon business justice and human rights. I submit a schedule of wages taken from official government reports which presents conclusive evidence of the inequalities of the present daily wages:

"General officers, $16.11; other officers, $6.49; general office clerks, $2.53; station agents, $2.37; other station men, $1.99; enginemen, $5.28; firemen, $3.23; conductors, $4.49; other trainmen, $3.11; all shopmen, $2.37, and trackmen, $1.50."

Mr. Pope declared that the foregoing schedule showed that the 350,000 section hands in the country were condemned to a life of poverty. He said he believed that congress, having undertaken to regulate the wages of higher paid employees, should review their wages.

Finnegan's Philosophy

Single Track Minds

"What is he?" asked Finnegan. "Sure at Injainnypoles he said he was full of Annymated Concerv'tism. Fwhat's that, ye say? 'Tis the turn-table on the wan thrack mind. It kapes spinnin' round and round an' divil a man can tell fwhat switch it will pick up. It dinnau itself. So ye dinnau where to lay for it.

"'Twas so wid the arrumed freight ships. 'They're not warships,' he says, 'onless I change me mind,' he says, 'which I have,' he says, 'an' annywan who says so is a liar,' he says, 'but I refuse to discuss it,' he says. 'I'll pass the buck to Congress,' he says, 'on'y I won't,' he says, 'for 'tis no business of theirs,' he says, 'though they must vote on the resolution,' he says, 'to show where they stand,' he says, 'hince ye'll lay it on the table,' he says, 'an' thin they can't vote,' says Wudthrow to Stone.

"'I—I—thought I seen a fallacy,' says, Stone, timid like, but the Great Idayllst brung down his fisht wid a t'ump.

"'Table the risolution,' says he—an' away goes Stone.

"'Fwhat does this mean?' axes the Sinit.

"'Gintlemen,' says Stone, weepin' bitterly, 'ye can frisk me. But thim's the orders,' says Stone, 'an' if anny man iver knew fwhat it meant he's kep quiet about it.'

"So wid the fightin' wurd. 'We're too proud to fight,' says this turrible man to a bunch iv just-overs at Philadelphy. 'Haw-haw-haw,' says the wurled (a laugh gets his goat, Jawn). 'I was thinkin' iv somethin' I didn't say,' yells Wudthrow. 'Haw-haw-haw,' says the wurld, laughin' to split.

"Be this an' be that 'Too Proud to Fight' has made the reppytashun iv Wudthrow. 'Tis like the Monroe Doctrine to Monroe or Emanshipashun to Lincoln. 'Twas thranslated into ivry tongue. 'Tis better known than the twenty-third psalm or the famous oration iv the Guv'nor iv North Carliny. If an Ashantee poked another in the eye he's give him the coon f'r 'Are Ye Too Proud to Fight?' an' they'd both laugh before they wint to the flure. All the recruitin' signs abroad had it, an' the shame 'ud bring three recruits where 'Tipperary' or rum wud bring wan. 'Oh, won't ye plaze stop laughin?' says Wudthrow, but they laughed the more. So he sinds Jim Ham Lewis to explain. He's called Ham by reason he's so fond of pork.

"'Three thousand years agone,' says Jim Ham, 'or maybe less,' says he, 'an ould Dago said, "Non Dinny Carey win Kerry"'* (or the like o' that, Jawn. It means not to have a chip on yer shoulder.) 'Non Dinny Carey win Kerry,' says Jim Ham, 'an' Julius Sayzer,' says he, 'an' Tolmy Philadelphy,' says he, 'an' the Earl iv Cheaten,' says Jim, 'an' William Haitch Seward,' says Ham, 'an' a lot more I forget,' says Ham, 'who felt the same way,' says Jim, 'although,' he says, 'they nivir said so,' says Jim Ham to the Sinit.

"'Now,' says he, 'how, I axe ye, cud the Prisidint know that the cultyvated Christian audience,' he says, 'iv immygrants,' says he, 'wud fail to grasp the nooance,' says Jim Ham. 'An' Jawn, they shut the dures the way the people wudden't see the Sinit lose its dignity.'

"'Fhwat's a nooance?' asked Malumphy.

"'Tis a sort iv intellectual gold brick,' replied Finnegan, slightly puzzled, 'be which ye say fhwat ye doan't mane an' mane wye doan't say. The nooance comes out iv it somehow. 'Tis like I dinnau what, just exactly like it,' he added after a short pause. 'I cudden't tell thim apart.'

"'Well,' said Malumphy, 'the single thrack mind gets nowhere, I'm thinkin'.'

"'Th' gauge is none too broad,' replied his friend, 'an' the thraffie's heavy,' he added."

ANSWER: EIGHT HOURS, NOT EIGHT YEARS.

[Special Dispatch to the New York Herald.]

Bar Harbor, Me., Monday.

To the Editor of the Herald:

Maine's answer to Wilson: "Eight hours, but not eight years."—A Former Progressive.

Editorial Comments

Mr. Hughes has made Mr. Wilson's policy of deciding a case and then getting the facts afterward one of the most pitiable exhibitions of weakness that even the present administration can give.

"Peace, preparedness and prosperity" are claimed as the Democratic campaign cries. More appropriate ones would be "Pie, pork and pickle."

And now nobody seems to know exactly what the new wage law means or to whom it applies. Another illustration of Democratic inefficiency.

The Democratic congress has voted a tariff on dyes, thereby declaring in favor of the principle of protection. How the party does change its colors.

If President Wilson were really earnest in telling the suffrage women "I come to fight for you" he would have put a suffrage measure through congress by the same stop watch method that he used to force the railway wage increase bill through.

Shadow Lawn, as a residence for the next few weeks, will give its occupant an opportunity to get accustomed to the after election gloom.

Here is reason enough why Mr. Wilson should be defeated. Why should Mr. Hughes be preferred? Gifford Pinchot, the Progressive, answers, giving facts to support his statement: "Hughes is a man of his word. * * * I cannot vote for Wilson because I cannot trust him. He does not do what he says. Hughes does. Therefore my choice is Hughes."

When the Progressives come back they bring their punch with them.

Villa says he bears us no grudge. Well, why should he? Haven't we always treated him as a perfect gentleman?

What has become of the old fashioned man who used to say of President Wilson, "Ye-es, he does make mistakes, but I believe he's sincere."

And we haven't yet got either Francisco Villa or that salute.

Next stop for the political express Nov. 7.

Irvin S. Cobb is to make campaign speeches for the Democratic party in the west. Irv, you all recall, of course, is a humorist and is peculiarly equipped to do full justice to his subject.

The least that may be said of President Wilson is that he has been right half the time, for he has been on both sides of almost all important questions.

NOT AN EIGHT HOUR DAY.

Recent Hold-up Legislation Does Not Shorten Workday a Minute.

As a matter of fact, it is not an eight hour law at all. It does not curtail the trainmen's's workday by a single minute. If an engineer has been receiving $5 for working ten hours a day this law will raise his pay to $6.25, but it will not shorten his workday even the tenth part of a second. This is no more like the true eight hour principle than chalk is like cheese.

The reason why people call this an eight hour law is because it says that in the case of railroad trainmen they shall get their day's pay for the first eight hours' work, and all the rest is to be considered overtime.

Do not tell me that this strike could not have been called off or postponed if President Wilson had shown that he meant business. I do not for one minute believe that those four brotherhood leaders started the blaze going without knowing how to put it out. One of them admitted that he could put it out so far as his own brotherhood was concerned, but that his followers would think that he had gone back on them if he were to do so. —Statement of Congressman A. P. Gardner.

A WEEK OF THE WAR.

In the offensive against Verdun the Germans had a definite strategic point to attain. The strategic advantage to come with its possition may not have been entirely obnious. Its value may not have been worth the men sacrificed in the attempt to get it. But for four months of almost continuous battle we could follow each step, each bit of ground gained with reference to the one great comprehensible objective.

In the present offensive on the Somme this is not the case. The initial great drive was apparently directed against Peronne, and the line was advanced to within a mile of that place. The correspondents and experts at once began to point out its great value as a central point in the German system of communications. But since the first week or so of the offensive this Peronne sector has been practically neglected. The English attack, particularly, switched toward Bapaume, fifteen miles to the north. The French have operated first on one side, then on the other, making salients and then gradually bringing the rest of their front up into alignment with them. This, of course, is the same strategy the Germans pursued at Verdun. But in the Verdun case the active front narrowed as the advance progressed, until in the end all the fighting concentrated within the short sector running from Fort Vaux past Fort Souville to the Thiaumount farm that is directly at the gate to Verdun. The present offensive, instead of contracting, widens as it progresses.

The news dispatches gave great prominence to the capture of Combles and relatively little to that of Thiepval. Yet Combles opens the way to no other place of manifestly great strategical importance. Its defense held up the allied advance, but there is no such manifest single objective behind it as Verdun behind "Dead Man's Hill," for instance, Thiepval, on the other hand, was the anchor by which the Germans bound their new front along the line of the offensive with their original positions to the north. Like Combles, it is only a village. But its capture paves the way to a considerable extension of the fighting front northward.

This seems to have been the really important event of the past two weeks, not only in itself but as an indication of the allies' strategical plans. Between Thiepval on the north and Vermandovillers on the south, the practical limits of the offensive thus far, the allies have made a great and fairly regular bend in the German line, some seven miles deep. The salients within it are of minor and local character; and its extremities are too far apart to render progress in the center dangerous because of the risk of flank attacks. The last two weeks seem to have shown that in the center the Germans have been pushed entirely out of their lines of permanent fortifications, and that the new ones, thrown up hastily, offer far less obstacle to the allies' advance. The fact is indicated in the greater distances now covered regularly in the allies' attack when made in this section. The wonder is, then, if the object is simply to pierce the line, why we do not see the fighting become more and more restricted. Rather, the idea seems to be to broaden the pregnable front so greatly, before this final drive is made, that the English, particularly, will have elbow room for the employment of the hundreds of thousands of men who must as yet be kept behind the lines. However intense the fighting, there are limits to the numbers one can throw against a breach only eighteen miles wide. The broader the front the more telling will be the attack, for where Germany, by concentraning her troops, might present a fair resistance on an eighteen-mile front, she certainly cannot have the men to meet the same kind of an onslaught on a front of forty or fifty miles.

The allies, progress in the west has been notable. In the east, whatever there war councils may have expected, events must have proved keenly disappointing to the British and French public. As the season progresses the immediate value of Rumania as an ally grows more and more problematical. The Austrians and Bulgarians seem able to take care of her without serious injury to the Macedonian defense and without leaving Russia free to resume her offensive in Galicia, Rumania herself might, indeed, not have been expected to accomplish much; for this is not a war where 300,000 men count particularly. But the removal of the obstacle the Cumanian frontier opposed to a Russian advance southward has not been followed up; nor, at the end of a month, is there the slightest indication of preparation on Russia's part to seize upon the advantage offered her with millions of men available, provided they had equipment, and with the obviously deadly blow that a severance of communications with Constantinople would deal the Teutonic cause, and the road open, Russia's quietude is a mystery that can be explained only by the assumption that this year's accumulation of munitions has been exhausted. And, of course, if this be found to be true, Germany may pretty soon feel easy enough to transfer troops to the west if she conceives the situation there growing too menacing for the safety of her plans.

Means of communication between this country and Germany are so circumscribed that implicit reliance cannot be placed in the cable dispatches which seem to forcast resumption of submarine activity on a broader scale than has yet been attempted and regardless of neutral protests. This may be the meaning of von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech in the Reichstag on Thursday. If he has gone over to the von Tirpitz idea of ruthless warfare, the worst may may be feared; but is difficult to reconcile such a change of attitude on the Chancellor's part with what we have been given to understand he has been doing to hold the fire-eaters in check. Having carried the day against them and having disposed of von Tirpitz, it does not seem likely that the Chancellor would suddenly reserve himself. The idea that Germany would take on another antagonist with the great resources of the United States, and thus having the world against her in arms would find it easier to quit, might be entertained if it were not for the fact that Germany will need friends after the war considerably more than she needs more enemies during the war, even though an additional one might help to save her face. If she now determines to force the submarine issue at the risk of bringing the United States into the conflict, it will be because she sees a way to do far greater damage to her enemies than has yet been demonstrated to be possible.

GREEK KING TO AGREE TO WAR

TO ORDER BULGARS OUT

London.—War against Bulgaria has been decided on by King Constantine and the Greek Cabinet. An ultimatum will be sent demanding that Bulgaria evacuate immediately the parts of Greek Macedonia she now occupies. Mobilization of the whole Greek army will begin without loss of time.

This is the news in despatches received from Athens. Premier Kalogeropoulos said before a hastily summoned Cabinet meeting that an ultimatum would be sent to Bulgaria. An Athens despatch says:

"The King called a conference of Premier Kalogeropoulos, Gen. Moschopoulos, the Chief of Staff; Rear Admiral Damianos, the Minister of Marine, and Nicholas Strathos, ex-Minister of Marine, at the Palace to discuss the action to be taken in view of the silence of the Entente Powers respecting Greece's proposal to join the Allies, made through the Greek Ministers at the Entente capitals ten days ago."

This is the first news that the formal proposal for action by Greece on the side of the Allies was made by King Constantine's Government. It is believed that the King was induced to take this step by the growth of the national revolt and fear of the loss of his throne unless he acceded to the desires of the Greek people.

In a despatch from Athens Reuter's correspondent says a telegram has been received there from Canea giving the summary of the proclamation of a provisional Government by former Premier Venizelos and Admiral Condouriotis. The main points of the document, says the correspondent, constitute a comparison of the Greece of today with the Greece of 1912-13.

COMBLES TAKEN BY THE ALLIES.

London.—The Allies won spectacular successes in the Somme region. Two vital strongholds were captured, and at a third point the British took a village which puts them a mile closer to Bapaume.

Combles fell to the French and British troops, who entered it together, each cleaning out half of the town whose capture had come to be regarded as of the greatest significance.

The British also took Thiepval, the Hohenzollern redoubt and the high ridge east of it. The importance of this advance surpasses in military advantage even the taking of Combles. Thiepval had been fortified with an elaborate system of heavily wired trenches. The Germans regarded it as impregnable, and their desperate resistance at Thiepval had held up the British left wing for months—ever since the Somme offensive began. The village marked the northernmost limit of the Allies' gains.

The British also took Gueudecourt, in he centre of their line. Gueudecourt is three miles from Bapaume.

Combles fell easily. It could not hold out after the capture of Fregicourt and Morval and all the high ground commanding it. So well was this recognized that the Allies' artillery did not even fire upon the village itself. Then the khaki clad British and the French in blue gray entered the town together, each attending strictly to its own section. The British cleaned out the part on the left of the railroad, while he French took the section on the right of the line. The work was accomplished within a few hours.

There has been fierce fighting northeast of Thiepval, in the course of which our troops stormed and now hold an enemy work known as the Stuff Redoubt, on the main ridge 2,000 yards northeast of the village.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

The victory of General von Falkenhayn over the Rumanians around Hermannstadt, in Transylvania, grows with every new dispatch from the front.

The thrust of Von Delminsingen's troops in behind the Rumanians is greeted by the German press as one of the most notable military achievements of the war. His army was confronted with stupendous difficulties of terrain and placed itself directly in the way of peril.

Armored "tanks" helped clear German trenches in a British drive along a 3,000 yard front on the Somme.

The Greek revolution is spreading by leaps and bounds. Not only has the Greek warship Hydra been seized by the rebels and brought to join the Allied fleet in Salonica Bay, but the Kilkis, formerly the U. S. battleship Idaho, also has deserted.

General Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French army, has sent a message congratulating General Haig, commander-in-chief of the British forces in France, on the recent British successes. In replying, General Haig said he looks forward to victory.

The charge is made Bulgarian troops are slaughtering wounded Serbians.

FARMERS' MILK STRIKE ON

Famine Will Hit Public Hard Unless West and Canada Come to Rescue

BOTH SIDES ARE DETERMINED

They Attack Wagons and Defeat Company's Employes in Fist Fights—Trees Felled Across Roads to Block Deliveries.

New York.—The State Dairymen's League throttled the New York City milk distributors. They succeeded in cutting the supply to 30 per cent. of the normal, while the great distributing companies made frantic efforts to bring milk from the western states and Canada.

As a result, thousands of New York families are without milk and the supply allowed others throughout the metropolitan district is curtailed. Hospitals and homes in which there are sick children will be cared for first, it is said, and for the present these places will get the full supply needed.

These were the other developments of the strike:

1—Loton Horton, vice-president of the Sheffield Farms-Slawson Decker Company, made charges of conspiracy and restraint of trade against the Dairymen's League to Attorney-General Woodbury. He also complained of the action of Commissioner John J. Dillon, of the State Department of Foods and Markets, who is directing the strike.

2—Commissioner Dillon declared these charges were "the last squeal of a beaten man," and that the dairymen would win in a week. He said the law empowered him to act for the farmers.

3—Violence began upstate. In Pawling, Dutchess County, milk shipped by farmers not in the league was spilled.

4—One thing became certain. The ultimate consumer will lose, whoever wins. Mr. Dillon said the advances already announced by two big companies were in anticipation of defeat, and more advances may come when the league wins.

From various towns and villages in the milk producing sections of New York and New Jersey reports were received showing that farmers who are doing picket duty at the cross roads and at turnpikes leading to the milk stations controlled by the milk distributing companies have learned the treiks of their striking brothers in big cities.

DR. KOO RESIGNS POST.

Chinese Minister at Washington Suffering From Ill Health.

Washington.—Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to the United States, has sent his resignation to the Chinese Foreign Office, it was learned here. Continued ill health was given as the reason.

Dr. Koo is only 30 years old—the youngest diplomat ever accredited to the United States. He was graduated from Columbia University in 1909, and received his degree of doctor of philosophy in 1912. He has also received an honorary degree from Yale. He was appointed Minister to the United States in November, 1915, by Yuan Shih-k'ai, to whom he had been private secretary. His home is near Shanghai. He married the daughter of Tong Shao-Yi, first Prime Minister of the Republican Cabinet.

TO PAY FOR MAIL BY BULK

New Plan to Be Tried on Railroads Commencing Nov. 1.

Washington.—The space basis for compensating railroads for transportation of mails will be put into effect November 1 throughout 90 per cent. of the service, the Post Office Department announced here. Final decision as to whether it shall be made permanent is left to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The 10 per cent of the service in which the present weight basis will be retained is the "closed pouch service," consisting of mails transmitted in locked sacks in baggage cars and handled by agents of the railroad companies.

CHINA TO FAVOR U. S.

Trade Formerly Given to Japan May Cross the Pacific.

Washington.—Anxious to have as little to do with Japan as possible in any way, China is making special efforts to give her former Japanese trade to the United States. Even now in Washington the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and representatives in China—unofficial, it is true, are working to the same end. So far as the Chinese are concerned, the move is guarded with secrecy.

POSTAL DEPOSITS GAIN

August Shows Increase of More Than $5,000,000.

Washington.—The deposits in postal savings banks during August, according to information furnished at the Postoffice Department, showed a record breaking gain of almost $5,000,000, more than $1,000,000 a week. The gains are not confined to any particular city or section, but were general throughout the country. The next largest monthly increase was $4,016,000 for August, 1914.

U-BOAT WARFARE RENEWAL FEARED

United States Officials See in German Chancellor's Speech Intention to Break Pledges

MUST USE EVERY MEANS

Chancellor Declared In Reichstag Address Any Statesman Who Refused to Advocate Such Action Should Be Hanged.

Washington.—State Department officials view with uneasiness the speech of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg to the Reichstag. They interpreted it as a declaration that Germany contemplated resumption of relentless submarine warfare against the Allies, and against Great Britain in particular.

It was pointed out that the Chancellor, after arraigning England as "Germany's most egotistical, fiercest and most obstinate enemy," and declaring she had broken one international law after another had declared:

"A German statesman who would hesitate to use against this enemy every available instrument of battle that would shorten this war—such a statesman should be hanged."

It was remarked that the speech seemed to verify clippings sent to the State Department some time ago by Ambassador Gerard in which Admiral von Tirpitz was credited with exerting himself to have the U-boat campaign renewed.

At that time, the State Department undertook to ascerain if he old sea fighter spoke authoritatively. It is likely Mr. Gerard will be able to throw some light on this.

Since the Sussex incident, Germany has implicitly followed her assurances that submarine warfare would be conducted according to international law.

London.—Commenting on the speech of the German Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg before the Reichstag, Lord Roberts Cecil, minister of war, trade and blocade, said that all of Europe is "ready for peace" but that Germany wants "only a truce."

"Everybody is ready for peace," he concluded. "It depends upon what one calls peace. The Germans are not ready for peace; they only want a truce for a period of preparation for further world attacks."

MEXICAN PARLEY ENDS OCT. 15.

Commission Expresses Satisfaction With Progress Made.

New London, Conn.—Its work here virtually finished, the American-Mexican joint commission expects to end its conference not later than October 15.

Both sides expressed satisfaction with the progress already made. Border conditions and to some extent the banking question were discussed. A memorandum of conditions has been prepared by mining men in Mexico.

Mexican members of the commission said that Ambassador Designate Arredondo's departure for Mexico was not related to the conference and they believed he would return soon.

TO STOP PAYING GUARDSMEN.

New Yok.—The New York Title and Mortgage Company recently notified its guardsmen employes now doing service on the border that their salaries will be discontinued after October 1 unless they shall have returned to their positions.

"We feel we have done our duty," said Henry C. Acken, president of the company, "and we feel that now the Government should do its duty by relieving firms of the strain under which they have been operating their business."

WORLD'S NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—United States Senator James P. Clarke died at his home here. He was taken ill suddenly with acute indigestion. A meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee will be called at once to name a candidate as his permanent successor who must be elected in November.

NEW YORK.—With a fire raging in her hold, the steamship Philadelphia arrived here safely, after a four-day fight by her crew to keep the flames in check. Many of the passengers did not learn of their peril until the arrival here.

WASHINGTON. — Cadets at the United States Military Academy at West Point are to receive a "commutation of 40 cents per ration per day" dating from July 1, 1916, instead of 30 cents a day as previously.

WASHINGTON.—On Oct. 25 next bids will be opened by the U. S. Government for twenty-nine ships valued at $91,400,000 and early in November for twenty submarines valued at $15,500,000. This total of $106,900,00 represents the first instalment of the Government's naval preparedness program calling for an approximate expenditure of $588,600,000 for 147 ships.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1916, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 159 of said Acts, being an Act to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State; and which said Act is in words and figures following:

"CHAPTER 159.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, regulating the making of appropriations by the General Assembly of Maryland in regular session, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Gen a Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two houses concurring.) That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 52 of Article III of the Constitution of Maryland.

Sec. 52. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the Treasry except in accordance with the followin provisions:

Sub-Section A:

Sub-Section B:

First. Within twenty days after the convening of the General Assembly (except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within thirty days after his inauguration,) unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the Budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any suggestion as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first part shall be designated "Governmental Appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the Executive Department; (3) for the Judiciary Department, as provided by law, certified to the Governor by the Comptroller; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of the debt of the State of Maryland in conformity with Section 31 of Article III of the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the establishment and maintenance throughout the State of a thorough and efficient system of public schools in conformity with Article VIII of the Constitution and with the laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution of the State.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill." The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect either the obligations of the State under Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, or the provisions made by the laws of the State for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, or the payment of any salaries required by the laws of the State of Maryland by the Constitution thereof; and the General Assembly may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly; and by increasing the items therein relating to the Judiciary, but except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or recuce items therein provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be decreased during his term of office; and such bill when and as passed by both houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor.

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or supplying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have right, and when requested by either house of the Legislature, it shall be their duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section C: Supplementary Appropriation Bills:

Neither house shall consider other appropriations until the Budget Bill has been finally acted upon by both houses, and no such other appropriation shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following: (1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purdose therein stated and called herein a Supplementary Appropriation Bill; (a) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said Bill. (3) No Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of a majority of the whole number of the members elected; and in the yeas and nays recorded on its final passage. (4) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said Section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the Legislature from passing at any time in accordance with the provisions of Section 29 of Article III of the Constitution and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Maryland within the protection of Section 10 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D: General Provisions:

First. If the Budget Bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such Bill; but no other matter than such Bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second. The Governor for the purpose of making up his budgets shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper State Officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative offices, bureaus boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for State moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. The estimates for the Legislative Department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the Judiciary, as provided by law, certified by the Comptroller, and for the public schools, as provided by law shall be transmitted to the Governor, in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget without revision.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and of all institutions applying for State moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third. The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this Section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out it provisions.

Fourth. In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this Section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this Section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 34 of Article III of the Constution or of any laws heretofore or hereafter passed in pursuance thereof, or be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by Section 16 of Article II, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this Section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the Bill or of any other item of such Bill or Bills.

Section 2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing Section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next ensuing general election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, being the Presidential and Congressional, election, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in conformity with the directions contained in Article XVI of this State, and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be placed the following synopsis of said amendment under the caption of

"CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR A BUDGET."

"This amendment provides that the Governor shall present to the Legislature soon after it is convened a Budget giving a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the two succeeding fiscal years showing clearly any surplus or deficit in State funds. In these estimates he shall make provision for the interest and sinking funds of all State debts, for all salaries as fixed by law, and for the public schools as fixed by law. With regard to most other matters he may revise the estimates presented to him either by State Officers or State-aided Institutions. The Legislature may not increase the estimates presented by the Governor or pass any additional appropriation act except by a majority vote and must make provision by tax for such increase or additional appropriation. The Legislature may not alter in any appropriation act the provision made by law for the State debt, or for the judiciary, but may reduce all other items in the Governor's estimates; and the words 'for the Constitutional Amendment' and 'against the Constitutional Amendment' as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote in accordance with Article XVI of the Constitution.

Approved Marah 28, 1916."

The hotel and boarding house people held a meeting at the office of the Association to consider the outlook for 1917 and to consult over the best way to largely extend the season. The meeting was well attended and full of enthusiasm, Mr. Westwood is to be congratulated in this step to enlist the hearty cooperation of the hotel people in building up the Park, and the exchange of ideas must be productive of good. Every one was impressed that 1917 would be the most prosperous season ever enjoyed in the Park.

Mr. C. V. Harvey has purchased the Nihiser property on I street and is moving into it. We are glad to number Mr. Harvey and family among our permanent residents. They have secured an up-to-date property, conveniently located and pleasantly surrounded.

The plans for the Builders' Exchange outing have been completed. From present indications about 50 cars will be used by the excursionists on their tour of Western Maryland. They will leave the Builders' Exchange building October 8. The route will be along the old National turnpike. Overnight stops will be made at Hagerstown and Mountain Lake Park, reaching here for dinner. Their ride from Grantsville to the Park will doubtless attract considerable attention and the excursionists will get a mighty good impression of this growing county, as well as the great summer resort of this mountain region. While in the Park the automobilists will be guests of the Mountain Lake hotel.

The apple butter season is here. Almost every body is busy making butter for the days to come.

A corps of State Roads engineers are engaged in surveying for the extension of the new road from the intersection of the Oakland road and C street to the Baltimore and Ohio station in the Park. This road will be of great benefit to every one in the country and will make an improved roadway from this point clear through to Baltimore and the eastern section of the State.

POSTMASTERS BEING ASSESSED

Democrats Using Government Machinery at Public's Expense.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 10.—Secretary McAdoo is using the Treasury Department to frank personal documents which have no relation to the public business of the Treasury; Senator William E. Chilton, of West Virginia, Chairman of the Senate Committee on the Census, is permitting Henry Fry, Clerk of the Committee, under Chilton's frank, to appeal to the postmasters of West Virginia to get votes for Chilton in the November election; and officials of the Postoffice Department are traveling around the country addressing meetings of postmasters and rural route carriers urging them to work for the Democratic candidates.

McAdoo has a large force of employees working in the Treasury building sending out, under the frank of Senator Fletcher, of Florida, large numbers of a speech by McAdoo entitled "Some International Aspects of Public Education," delivered by McAdoo at the annual convention of the National Education Association in New York City July 6th, last. This speech concerns the International Conference held in Buenos Aires and refers to the "Pan-Americanism" upon which the Wilson Administration is continually harping, although President Wilson's Mexican and Haitian policies have aroused bitter hostility of the Pan-American nations.

It is a violation of law for a Cabinet officer to use the employees and facilities of his department to send throughout the country, under the frank of a United States Senator, one of his own speeches, which is not a public document.

Henry Fry, Clerk of the Senate Committee on the Census, has sent to postmasters throughout West Virginia, under Senator Chilton's frank, from Charleston, West Virginia, date of September 22nd, the following letter:

"My Dear Sir:

"If every one whom Senator Chilton has helped will remember him on election day and get him one or two votes from the opposition, there will be no doubt of his reelection. You are a man of influence in your community. You can do this easily. Can I set you down as one who will at his voting precinct help to reelect Senator Chilton for what he has done for West Virginia? If you will join this army which will make his election certain, please write me at once. We want to know that the whole thing is moving along all over the State in the same way."

These letters are a glaring violation of law as they solicit postmasters to engage in "pernacious political activity" and have been sent through the mails without payment of postage.

On September 16th, Representative William E. Cullop, of Indiana, and Fourth Assistant Postmaster General James I. Blakslee, addressed a meeting of postmasters and rural route carriers at Sullivan, Indiana, which had been called by Representative Cullop. The ostensible purpose of the meeting was to straighten out rural route matters, but Blakslee made a Democratic speech in which he told the postmasters and carriers that he expected them, and it was their duty, to work for the reelection of Cullop.

BANDITS SHOOT 4 IN MOTOR PARTY

$8,000 IN CAR MISSED

Heroine Notifies Authorities of Tragedy and Starts Hunt for Murderers—Chauffeur Hit by Seven Bullets, Returning Shots.

Hammonton, N. J.—Five masked bandits shot and killed Henry Rider of Howell, Mich., and seriously wounded A. J. Rider, one of the wealthiest cranberry growers in the State, his daughter, Mrs. Elsie Smathers, and J. M. Rigby, a chauffeur, in an attempted holdup. The bandits ran away and did not get the $8,000 payroll, for which they held up the automobile in which the four were riding.

A. J. Rider, with his brother, Henry, who was paying him a visit, Mrs. Smathers and the chauffeur were on their way to Hampton Park, the cranberry bogs, owned by Mr. Rider, to pay off the pickers. Mrs. Smathers was driving the car. At a lonely spot near Atsion, ten miles from Hammonton, five men, believed to be Italians, sprang into the road in front of the car brandishing revolvers.

"Give us that bag of money," shouted the leader. Instead of stopping Mrs. Smathers drove straight at the bandits. As the car whizzed by the bandits opened fire. Henry Rider was hit in the head, and all the other occupents were shot. Although shot through the legs Mrs. Smathers drove the car several hundred yards beyond the bandits before stopping.

When the men opened fire, Rigby stood up in the car and fired back. He was shot seven times. He hit one of the bandits. The others picked him up and carried him off the scene.

After she had learned of her uncle's death and assured herself that her father was not mortally hurt and the chauffeur was still alive, Mrs. Smathers, apparently unmindful of the three bullets still in fleshy parts of her body, hurried to a nearby farmhouse.

There she telephoned first to a doctor and then to Sheriff Stecher, Detective Parker and Prosecutor Kelsey. While she returned to the bullet-riddled auto an alarm was sent out by the officials for a bandit hunt.

$60,000,000 LOAN TO CHINA

The negotiations in China were conducted by W. F. Carey of the Siems Carey Railway & Canal Company.

The American International Corporation issued a statement in which it announced that as a preliminary to beginning work on the railroads in China the organization had loaned the Chinese Government $500,000 for the cost of investigation and surveying and initial expenses.

Concerning the contract the statement says:

"The railroad lines to be constructed have not yet been decided upon, but will be located by an American chief engineer, to be appointed by the Chinese Government on the recommendation of the American International Corporation. The contract provides for the construction of roads between points to be agreed upon after investigation. When the line to be first constructed has been agreed upon, the road will be built by contractors on a percentage basis."

New School Methods

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

When the New York child went back to school on the first of October he met with a new and disconcerting experience. He was required to open his mouth and say "Ah" while his teacher carefully examined his molars to see that they were in good condition. Then he was requested to unfasten his collar and turn his head from side to side while his neck and ears were minutely inspected. It has not yet been announced by the board of education whether there will be an adjacent washroom where he may remedy any defects in his morning toilet, or whether he will be sent home for repair, but it has announced that from now on absolute personal cleanliness is to be the ideal of the New York schools and that hygiene is going to be put on a practical basis.

"Every child is going to know the necessity of a toothbrush, the value of the individual towel, hankerchief and comb before the New York school gets through with him," said one educator in discussing the new plan. In addition to this, he will also learn the science of food, so that all-day suckers and five cent pastry will no longer appeal to him. It has often been pointed out by child authorities that if children understood the value of good food they would become quite amenabe to discipline in the matter of diet, so the New York board of education is going to put the theory to the test.

This is only one of the numerous reforms and experiments that are going forward in public schools all over the country this year. Vocational schools are opening for the first time in many cities under different systems of management. In Minneapolis, for example, the free and arbitrary choice of vocational courses for children will be tried out in a practical manner this year. There are two Junior-senior high schools in Minneapolis, having vocational training courses, and in one of these the student will be asked to choose "what he is going to do, and how and when he is going to do it," and in the other he will be "told what to do and how and when to do it." By the end of one year the school officials believe they will be able to ascertain which system is the more efficient, and by the end of three years, they feel, there will be no doubt. Each school is to have a vocational guide, who will have nothing to do with the classes, but who will act as an agent in placing graduating pupils and following up their careers.

The public school authorities have at last started in to test the various theories which have been propounded by psychologists and medical men. The first complaint was based on inadequate physical facilities of the schools. The desks were either too low or too high for the children; the rooms were badly ventilated, causing them to take cold, and the quarantine inspection was not strict enough. One by one all of these faults have been remedied, but now the criticism is directed to the question of the educational system itself. After eight years, stated the critics, the majority of the public school students are left absolutely unprepared to meet the obligations of the world. Why were there no vocational schools? Others complained that after eight years of schooling their children could not add a simple column of figures nor write an intelligible letter.

To these criticisms, the school authorities replied that the schools had fitted the past generations admirably and they did not see why they should not suit the modern child. But, secretly, a few progressive educators made some inquiries in the commercial world concerning boys and girls who had left their schools at the end of the 8th grade to help support themselves. In a great many cases the children had succeeded very well, but it was usually with the help of classes established by their employers who desired to promote the efficiency of their staffs. It was then that the school teachers and educators of the nation began to criticize the old traditions of education themselves and to cooperate with the psychologists and the medical men and the parents in working out new methods and making new experiments.

In numerable instances it was brought to the attention of various educators that a great deal of the school work was repeated in different grades and that many children were quite capable of skipping whole grades. In one school in the District of Columbia, for example, a large number of children were promoted to the eighth grade from the seventh grade when they had accomplished practically no seventh grade work at all. The teacher had been singularly inefficient, but for some reason had escaped the attention of the school authorities. When the children came to the eighth grade teacher she was at her wit's end to know what to do with them to get their attention and to make them work. Upon questioning a few of them she discovered the astonishing fact that their afternoons of the year before had been spent in bicycling and roller-skating when they should have been in school. "It was very simple," said one girl, "you climb out the window of the cloak room and had your skates and just before the afternoon roll call was taken you climbed back again. The teacher never knew the difference." In spite of this seventh grade handicapp however, the majority of these children had no difficulty in completing their eighth grade work and making high school the next fall.

Now many cities have removed the age requirement of fourteen years for entrance into high school, and if a pupil is naturally bright enough to skip a grade or two, or by study during the summer is able to do so, he is not held back if he happens to be only twelve. Moreover, in many cities now there are junior high schools. Instead of the old system of eight years of elementary education and four years of high school, the seventh and eighth grades have been added to the high school course so that there are six grades and six years of high school. This new organization, which is called the six-six system, has proved a big success wherever it has been tried out, so far as the educators can tell from the limited time it has been in practice. According to the Bureau of Education the junior high school is an improvement over the old school division in four ways: It makes greater provision for individual differences in the pupils; it makes the break from the graded school to the high school much easier; it decreases the number of pupils at the end of the eight grade; and "it furnishes an opportunity for various reforms in instruction."

Perhaps the most important result accomplished by the junior high school is the third qualification made by the Bureau of Education. It keeps pupils in school who under the old system stopped at the eighth grade. Concerning this feature, Dr. Dean, of the University of Cincinnati, makes this estimate: "If all school children under eighteen years attending schools in the United States were put in a straight line one foot apart, the line would extend diagonally across our continent from the northern part of Maine to the Pacific Coast at Southern California; and if those were taken away from this line who dropped out at the age of fourteen—most of them bread-winners—those remaining would extend only across the state of California."

Another improvement to be adopted by several schools this fall is the extension of the course to eleven months, begining in September and expiring in August. Knoxville is among the first to try this experiment. When this measure is called an improvement, no account is taken of the many child authorities who think that a three month's vacation is necessary to the health of the normal child. Under the present circumstances, however, the average school year is 165 days; hence in eight years of his life the child receives about four years of schooling. The eleven month course will doubtless afford much better opportunity for thorough instruction as well as several additions to the curricula.

Other schools this year are planning to wage "toothbrush campaigns" among their pupils. The amazing facts brought to light by a school dentist in Kansas City last year have startled the school authorities into this innovatioon. Out of 17,024 pupils examined in Kansas City schools, 15,000 had never used a toothbrush; just 1,005 out of the 17,024 had mouths that were clean and in good condition.

Thus the modern school is loosening itself from the tradition and gradually fitting its equipment to the changing requirements of the public. The child is told how to wash his face, what to eat for breakfast and is advised as to his life occupation. This year Ashtabula has started promoting its children by subjects—the nearest attempt at individual education yet,—Worcester is teaching salesmanship in its high schools and seven buildings are to house junior high schools in New York. Next to the preparedness issue, and as a part of the preparedness issue, education today is the most important reform on foot in America. At the suggestion of Dr. P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education, Uncle Sam is contemplating establishing national experiments stations for experimental education in every state in the Union.

COUNT MARYLAND VOTE FOR HUGHES

State's Republican Leaders Also Expect to Elect Senator.

Republican leaders in Maryland are confident of carrying the state for Hughes and Fairbanks and electing Dr. Irwin France United States Senator and three of the six Congressmen.

Maryland in the last three Presidential elections has been close. Taft carried it by 600 in the popular vote over Bryan in 1f08, although a mojority of the electors were for Bryan, and in 1912, while Wilson had a plurality of 57,718 over Taft in the vote on the highest elector, the combined vote of Taft and Roosevelt was 112,745, or seventy-one more votes than Wilson's.

This year the Progressives, except a few hundred or less, are for Hughes. Former Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte, their leader, has set the example, and the Progressive State Committee has indorsed the Republican Presidential ticket. Colonel George A. Pearre, for two terms Republican Representative from the 6th District, who supported Roosevelt four years ago, has declared he will vote for Wilson, but Colonel Pearre was the law partner and close friend of Representative David J. Lewis, of the same district, who is now the Democratic candidate for United States Senator.

The vote of the few still disaffected Bull Moose will be more than offset by the old Cleveland Democrats, many of whom are against Wilson. Then the Democratic state and city leaders are taking little interest in the campaign. The machine that controls one faction of the Democrats in this city is so busy fighting the City Hall clique that neither is paying much attention to the Presidential or Senatorial race.

Many of the local Democratic leaders are devoting their time and political influence to endeavoring to prevent the city from going "dry." The lipuor campaign is of more vital interest to these politicians than the election of a President. The loss of the saloon support, and especially the big campaign fund contributed by the liquor dealers and saloonkeepers to the Democratic machine at every state and city election, would be a sledge hammer blow to it. The liquor fight is not in any way mixed up in the Presidential or Senatorial campaign, however, as, had there been no such contest on hand, most of these Democratic politicians would have been just as apathetic toward Wilson.

In the Congressional contests Representative Jesse D. Price, Democrat, and Robert F. Duer, Republican, again are opponents in the 1st, or Eastern Shore, District, which has gone Republican, and is likely to do so this time. Two years ago, when it was assumed that Price would win easily, he defeated Duer by only 200 majority, notwithstanding a Democratic majority in registration of several thousand. Duer and his friends say and believe that he would have won if he had perceived the drift toward him. He now thinks that Price can be beaten by a hard fight, and he is making the hardest one he can. The Republican leaders are "on their toes." On the other hand, Price knows that he is up against much more than the nominal fight of two years ago.

For the first time in years Representative Fred Talbott, the veteran Democratic boss of Baltimore county, has a real fight on his hands in the 2d District. His opponent, William H. Lawrence, is slipping in and out of the different sections of the district with his campaign hinging on the prejudices and predilections of each section. And it happens that there are several factors that make such a campaign advantageous.

In the 2d District, all of which is in Baltimore city, Representative Coady Democrat, is in some danger of a "cut" from German sympathizers, who will hit at him to express their opposition to the President.

In the 4th District, also in Baltimore city, there is no sign at this time that Representative Linthicum, Democrat, will have trouble.

The fight in the 5th District between Representative Mudd and Jackson H. Ralston, the Democratic nominee is lively, with the odds much in favor of Mudd.

In the 6th State Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican, is confident of election, as the district is almost certain to go Republican, now that Congressman Lewis is the Democratic candidate for Senator.

AMERICA NEEDS HUGHES

By THEODORE ROOSEVELT

SINCE 1912 we have had four years of a policy which has been an opiate to the spirit of idealism.

It has meant the relaxation of our moral fibre.

A sordid appeal to self-interest and to fear has paralyzed the national conscience.

We have been told that Americans, if they do not wish to be killed, should keep off the ocean; that to save a few American lives it is not worth while to hazard the lives of American soldiers; that Mexicans should be allowed to spill blood to their hearts' content; that the European War is no concern of ours; that even as between Belgium and Germany we should be neutral not only in act but in sympathy!

Not once has President Wilson squarely placed before the American people the question which Abraham Lincoln put before the American people in 1860: what is our duty?

Not once has he appealed to moral idealism, to the stern enthusiasm of strong men for the right.

On the contrary, he has employed every elocutionary device to lull to sleep our sence of duty, to make us content with words, instead of deeds, to make our moral idealism and enthusiasm evaporate in empty phrases, instead of being reduced to concrete action.

AMERICA as a nation has been officially kept in a position of timid indifference and cold selfishness.

America, which sprang to the succor of Cuba in 1898, has stood an idle spectator to the invasion of Belgium, of the sinking of the Lusitania, of the continued slaughter of our own citizens, and of the reign of anarchy, rapine and murder in Mexico.

Nevertheless, I believe that the American people were ready for the same kind of appeal which was made to them by Abraham Lincoln in 1860, by the advocates of an honest currency in 1890, by the advocates of the Spanish War in 1898, by the advocates of Nationalism in 1900.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES.

But the appeal was not made.

On the contrary, Mr. Wilson invoked the spirit of timidity and selfishness. He made no effort to invoke the sense of duty.

He put "safety first," the immediate safety of the moment, to be obtained by shrinking from duty.

He did not even put American rights first, still less did he put American duty first.

His task was not an especially difficult or dangerous task; but it needed a brave heart and a steady hand.

Under this lead America could and should have put itself at the head of all the neutral nations by its example, if not by direct diplomatic agreements, in demanding that the war should be conducted in accordance with the usage of civilized nations, that international law should be observed, that the rights of neutrals and non combatants should be respected.

If this spirit had animated our administration there would probably have been no invasion of Belgium, no fears of a like fate to terrorize other smaller nations, no torpedoing of merchant vessels, no bombarding of churches and hospitals, no massacring of women and children, no murder of Miss Cavell, no attempted extermination of the Armenians and Syrian Christians.

WE cannot undo what has been done. But we can repudiate what has been done. We can regain our own self-respect and the respect of other nations for this country. We can put in power an administration which will throughout its term of power protect our own citizens and live up to our national obligations.

It is just that this nation should concern itself with its rights; but it is even more necessary that it should concern itself with its duties.

As between Mr. Hughes and Mr. Wilson, who can doubt which is the man who will, with austere courage, stand for the national duty?

Mr. Wilson's words have contradicted one another; and all his words have been contradicted by his acts.

Mr. Wilson's promise has not borne the slightest reference to his performance.

We have against him in Mr. Hughes a man whose public life is a guarantee that whatever he says he will make good, and that all his words will be borne out by his deeds.

Against Mr. Wilson's combination of grace in elocution, with futility in action; against his record of words unbacked by deeds or betrayed by deeds, we set Mr. Hughes' rugged and uncompromising straightforwardness of character and action in every office he has held.

We put the man who thinks and speaks directly, and whose words have always been made good, against the man whose adroit and facile elocution is used to conceal his plans or his want of plans.

The next four years may well be years of tremendous national strain.

Which of the two men do you, the American people, wish at the helm during these four years; the man who has been actually tried and found wanting, or the man whose whole career in public office is a guarantee of his power and good faith?

But one answer is possible; and it must be given by the American people through the election of Charles Evans Hughes as President of the United States.

GRANTSVILLE.

Apropos of snake stories, a monster blacksnake, found on Elmer J. Beachy's farm last week, caused a little excitement in that quarter for a few minutes. The reptile measured five feet and six inches long and was killed by Paul and Leonard Custer on their uncle's barn floor where it had presumably crept for warmth. The boys carried their prize over to the Mt. Nebo studio and had it photographed in several positions by their uncle Leo J. Beachy.

The Miller and Nathan families held a moving party on Saturday last and are now comfortably installed in their new quarters. Mrs. Mary Miller and daughters, Misses Blanche Miller and Gertrude Hone, and grandchild, Miss Connor, have moved from their two omes, one at the west of town and the her at the Squire Nathan home, into e home formerly occupied by Michael athan and family. Michael Nathan d family moved into the home of his late brother, Squire Peter Nathan. Clarence Miller moved his family into the west end home vacated by his mother, and Milton B. Miller and bride moved from part of the house occupied by H. A. Schaefer into the one vacated by Clarence Miller. It remains for ome one to move into M. B. Miller's ooms to complete the arrangement.

Miss Carrie Dorsey very charmingly ntertained the ladies sewing club at he Casselman hotel on Friday afternoon. The ladies included, beside the Misses Dorsey, Misses Mary and Saleina locher, Lulu Shaw, Christine Winterberg and Ethel Broadwater; Mesdames J. O. Getty and C. B. Getty. Pretty fancy work was in evidence. Coffee and rolls were served.

L. J. Beachy, the Mt. Nebo artist, was again awarded first prize for his work at the Oakland Fair this year. His work stood first in both portrait and landscape photography. Mr. Beachy has long been recognized as an artist of unusual merit.

Miss Edna Bender entertained last Thursday night in honor of her brother, Harry, whose fourteenth birthday it was. The affair was a surprise party. A few girls assisted by baking cakes which, added to Miss Edna's delicacies, made the refreshments a thing long to be remembered. About two dozen were present. Harry received some very handsome presents.

The congregation at the Lutheran church was favored with a quartette from the Salisbury and St. Paul charges, composed of Messrs. William Reitz and Jonas Sichty of the former, and E. Frank and Orville Folk from the latter. The four young men had charge of the music and their vocal selections were a treat to the audience. Rev. Oney preached an excellent sermon. A number of Pennsylvania people were present at the service.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Swauger and their sister, Mrs. Ed. Fischer, spent Saturday and Sunday in Albright, W. Va.

Mrs. Irene Hayes is spending several days in Midland, Md., with her sister, Mrs. J. C. Grady, who has been ill with blood poisoning of the finger.

Wm. Bender, from Springs, Pa., has taken the place of Allan Bender in J. Bender's store, Allan having gone to Cumberland to attend Tri-State Business College.

Dr. Wm. Shaw and family, of Berlin; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Martin and family, of Meyersdale; Miss Inskip and Miss Gans, of Addison were all Sunday guests of Misses Fannie and Lulu Shaw.

Wm. Hone and family, of Friendsville, spent Wednesday with the former's mother, Mrs. Mary Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shope and family, of Watson, spent Sunday here, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ringer.

Mrs. Lydia Wiley, from Bittinger; Mrs. Mary Petry, from Elk Lick; Mrs. Rush Montgomery and Miss Lizzie, from Cumberland were guests last week of Miss Christinia Winterberg and her mother.

Mrs. Truman Frankhouser from Keyser, W. Va., is visiting Miss Gertrude Hone.

Misses Mary and Kathleen Sullivan, from Frostburg, spent last week with the Misses Stanton of Little Crossing.

WILSON'S PERU PROTEGE IS WORSE THAN HUERTA

Recognized Benavides as President After He Had Obtained Power In a Sister Republic by Treachery and Violence.

ACT DOES NOT SQUARE WITH SMUG DICTUM IN HIS SPEECH

Latin American Diplomats Amazed When They Read the President's Explanation of His Mexican Policy—Informed Their Governments That Mr. Wilson's Personal Whims Doubtless Were to Be His Guides In Conducting This Government's Latin American Policy.

Latin American diplomats are amazed at the statement in President Wilson's speech of acceptance: "So long as the power of recognition rests with me, the government of the United States will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence."

This is the president's explanation of his refusal to recognize Huerta and of his Mexican policy. Yet the records show that President Wilson has deliberately violated this dictum in several instances since the case of Huerta arose.

The most flagrant example was the president's recognition extended to Colonel Benavides, head of the revolutionary government in Peru, in February, 1914. His government was founded on assassination, established by assassination and had no vestige of constitutional authority back of it. It came into power on Feb. 4, 1914, when Colonel Benavides led the garrison troops against the national palace at Lima, imprisoned President Billinghurst and assassinated the minister of war and all others who opposed the coup d'etat.

More Flagrant Than Mexico.

Minister McMillin reported these facts fully to Washington and assumed that this government would decline to sanction the newly established regime. The case was identical with the Huerta case in Mexico, except a much more flagrant violation of the spirit of popular government. Huerta had Madero and Vice President Suarez imprisoned, but he became president of Mexico under provisions of the constitution providing for the succession of the minister of foreign affairs upon the disability of the president. Huerta's accession to the presidency was confirmed by the Mexican congress.

Benavides came into power simply by killing those who opposed him. His acts had no basis whatever in the constitution of the country and were not confirmed by the Peruvian congress. His sole backing was a junta of conspirators, which forced their will on the unapproving people by means of ready rifle bullets. Under these circumstances Minister McMillin naturally assumed that President Wilson would have nothing to do with Benavides and his junta. The president shortly before this had stated in a speech at Mobile, Ala.: "We must follow the course of high principle, not expediency, no matter what the pressure. To do otherwise would be untrue to ourselves."

Envoy Is Surprised.

Mr. McMillin was therefore mildly surprised when he was instructed by President Wilson to call on the newly established Benavides and graciously confer the recognition of the United States Government upon him.

In explaining this the President simply said that "expediency dictated the recognition of the revolutionary government of Peru." He told his advisers that he had not liked the personality of Billinghurst. He was chagrined also with the news that Billinghurst had intended to dissolve the Peruvian congress, which the President said would have been an unconstitutional act.

Latin American diplomats at the time were astounded to learn of the President's action in Peru. They found that it was impossible to know where the president stood on any matter of principle and informed their governments that the President's personal whims doubtless were to be his guidance in conducting this government's Latin American policy.

HUGHES ON REUNITED PARTY.

"I come to you as the spokesman of a reunited party. We have said that it was reunited; we have believed it was reunited; we have devoutly hoped it was reunited. Now, Maine proves that it is reunited. I am glad to speak for the reunited Republican party because it is a great liberal party. It started as a liberal party; its best traditions are those of a liberal party. And today it faces the future with a truly national outlook and a progressive spirit."—Charles E. Hughes in a Speech Delivered at Plattsburgh, N. Y.

A CONTEST OF CHARACTER, NOT OF WEASEL WORDS

Cardinal Question In This Campaign Is Whether the People Want In the White House a Phrase Maker or a Man Who Backs Words With Deeds.

Woodrow Wilson excels in the artistry of politics beyond the capacity of Charles Evans Hughes to compete. Were the current campaign a game of professional politics instead of a contest of character between two candidates for the highest office in the gift of the people Mr. Wilson would walk away with the prize next November. All his life he has made a study of form—first of literary form—and latterly of political form. In the first period he mastered a style peculiarly his own and peculiarly characteristic. The study of words and their multiplicity of meaning always fascinates him, so much that a Princeton classmate recently said of him, "Tommy has lived with words so long he thinks they are real things." Thence comes his collection of what Theodore Roosevelt's Maine guide calls "weasel words." That is—"he can take a word and weasel it around and suck the meaning out of it like a weasel sucks an egg, until it don't mean anything at all, no matter what it sounds like it means." Thence came also the series of catch phrases, so fascinating in sound, so false in suggestion; so easy to read, so hard to understand. So it is that he is able to be on all sides of every public question while covering his circuitous course with a flow of words that roll as easily from his pen as a brook through the meadow. It is his artfulness in the use of words that enables him to pose as "an amateur in politics" while playing the game with the skill of a professional. Whatever his ineptitude in other respects, he is easily first among presidents in the artistry of politics, and he would win next November were that the test.

Compare the wiliness of Mr. Wilson with the straightforwardness of Mr. Hughes. Compare the smooth style of the one with the rugged diction of the other. The one is as complex in the use of words as the other is simple. It is a case of sonorousness versus strength. Mr. Hughes is depending upon the strategy of straightforwardness and the strength of sincerity; upon the force of facts instead of upon the fiction of a phrase, to win his case before the jury of the nation. His appeal is to the head and not the ear of the people; to their intelligence and not to their emotion; to their heroic side and not to their hysterical side. It is an appeal to the courage of the country and not to its cowardice. Mr. Hughes could not if he would perform in a year the political tricks that Mr. Wilson can do in a day. The question today is whether the people want in the White House for the next four years a phrase maker or a history maker, a man of many sayings or a man who backs his words with deeds. There is a fundamental difference between the two candidates which marks the line of cleavage in this extraordinary campaign—"Hughes means what he says."

LABOR VOTE NOT DELIVERABLE

This Is the Outstanding Fact Which Political Philosophers Deduce From the Defeat In Maine of Representative McGillicuddy.

From among the numerous lessons or conclusions which the political philosophers can draw from the Maine election one lesson or conclusion stands out more sharply defined than any other. It jumps at you.

The labor vote, for the sake of which the Poltroon Congress tarred and feathered itself with its own hands only a dozen days ago, is not deliverable by traders who pretended to sell it.

This salient fact of the election is illustrated conspicuously in the Second Congress district. There are few places within the confines of our republic where labor is relatively stronger than in the city of Lewiston, the home city of Representative McGillicudy, and he has made a specialty of it in his own political practice. In the Second Maine, if anywhere, would there be indications of any return, in the shape of votes, for the surrender of Congress to the four Brotherhoods. After a campaign which might almost be called desperate in its effort to save McGillicuddy and one Democratic seat in the House from the Republican onset, Mr. McGillicudy was defeated by an adverse plurality of nearly 40, whereas he had been elected to the Sixty-second Congress by a plurality of 1,389 and to the Sixty-third by 1,281.

IDEALS OF THE SUCCESS OF THE PLAIN PEOPLE.

"If I did not believe that the Republican party was the party of true progress, which was prepared under its leadership to take the country along the way of adaptation to new needs and exigencies of the future, I should have no pride in representing it. But the party of Lincoln is reunited today, and we consecrate it to the ideals of Lincoln, and those ideals are permanent. These are the ideals of the success of the plain people. They are the ideals of the achievements under free institutions, of success in all the activities of the co-operative energy of the plain people."—Charles E. Hughes in a Speech Delivered at Plattsburgh, N. Y.

RELATIONS WITH JAPAN.

A few years ago Baron Sakatani, of Japan, in a public interview laid stress upon the "justice and necessity" of an adjustment of the differences between the United States and Japan, to the end that Japanese subjects might be placed on an exact equality with Europeans in entering, residing in and doing business in the United State.

Baron Sakatani's utterance was approved and applauded by the leading newspapers of Japan.

Now Count Okuma retires, and is succeeded as premier by Gen. Terauchi, a soldier whose efficiency in extending Japanese mastership over Korea has marked him in the minds of Japanese as the ideal national leader. Great work must be done in China, and it must be done efficiently, says the Washington Post.

Japan is steadily gaining ascendency over China, and is now pressing for concessions which, if granted, will prevent the Chinese government from dealing as an independent sovereign with other nations in many important particulars. China will not remain a sovereign nation it Japan's demands are conceded, Japan's explanations to the contrary notwithstanding. A study of the demands by Americans who are familiar with the conditions is all that is necessary to establish the fact that China's independence is imperiled. Secret demands, it is believed, are also being pressed.

While Japan is thus encroaching in such a way as to invite a clash with nations whose interests required that China should remain intact and independent, there are unmistakable signs that the United States will be asked to remove all discriminations against Japanese in this country as a matter of justice and necessity.

The Japanese government and people have never acquiesced in the American view that the Japanese are not Caucasians; that they are not assimialble with white people; that they are not entitled to naturalization, and are economically undesirable emigrants. They hold that they are members of the Caucasian, race, assimilable with other Caucasians, entitled to citizenship in the United States and not an injurious economic factor. They regard the classification of the Japanese as Mongolians as degrading and humiliating. They are convinced that the exclusion of Japanese immigrants is a reflection upon their nation and its prestige as a civilized power of the first rank.

Thus there is an irreconcilable conflict of opinion between the Japanese and Americans upon questions which touch national and individual pride. The resolute action of California respecting the Japanese is sufficient evidence that there are parts of the Union at least which have no sympathy with any movement to place the Japanese upon an equal footing in the United States with Europeans. No political party or group of legislators has dared to make a fight for the repeal of the law barring non-Caucasians from naturalization. That law stands, a barrier to any diplomatic negotiations looking to the making of a treaty satisfactory to Japan.

A treaty proposing to open the ports to Japanese immigration and providing for the naturalization of Japanese would cause as lively a storm in Congress and on the Pacific coast as any administration could wish in its most suicidal moods.

Vigilance as to developments in China, procrastination in reopening the immigration question with Japan and anything but procrastination in the completion of the program of national defense on land and sea may constitute the best policy of the United States for the time being.

FOOD PRICES.

We are apt to look with pity upon the Germans who, even in times of peace, are under a paternal form of government. The German authorities take upon themselves the regulation of some of the minutest details of life in the empire, and every subject of the Kaiser is expected to obey every law and regulation of the government. We on this side boast that we are a free people and that we make laws to suit ourselves. The advantage, as far as living conditions are concerned, rests altogether with the Germans. A proof of this is found in the higher prices for foodstuffs in the markets, provision stores and restaurants, which have been arbitrarily fixed, it would seem, according to the caprice of merchants and purveyors. We find that in New York, for instance, most of the chain restaurants and lunchrooms have fallen in line with other restaurants that raised their prices early this week on practically all the dishes they serve. The reason given is that the prices of commodities have risen from 10 to 100 per cent. within the past year. We are told that potatoes, which last year were $1.70 a sack in New York, are now quoted at $2.50, and it is predicted that they will reach $6 before long. Other increases pointed out as the cause of the rise in restaurant prices are: Beans, $9.65 for 100 pounds, formerly, $7 90; peas, $6.75, formerly $3.85; flour, $6 60, formerly $5.10; eggs, 44 cents formerly 36 cents. And we know, too, what difficulties the New Yorkers are laboring under with regard to milk prices. Again this we know that this year has seen bumper crops in everything raised on the farm and in the garden. Potatoes, beans and peas have never been so plentiful, while the wheat yield has been most satisfactory. The trouble is that there is no central authority to control the greed of speculators. The wonder is not that prices are so high, but that the prices are not higher. There is no authority to check this persistent gouging of the public. A little paternalism in our government would not do us any harm. For one thing, we should be out of the grasp of unscrupulous money-grabbers.

DR. ELIOT'S CONFESSION.

Mr. Hughes, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Taft and Mr. Root, four of the most skilled analysts of public questions in this country, have been spending months in pounding home to the electorate the underlying issue of this campaign. Neither severally nor together have they succeeded in developing it so perfectly as does Dr. Charles W. Eliot, ex-president of Harvard, in this single sentence in eulogy of the President.

America has now turned its back on the familiar policy of Rome and Great Britain, of protecting or avenging their wandering citizens by force of arms, and has set up a quite different policy of her own.

The conclusion is that of a man who has looked events in the face, discerned with the same clearness of vision with which Mr. Hughes, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Taft and Mr. Root have observed it, the tact of this Government's repudiation of the first historical principle by which nations have always been actuated in their dealings with each other.

We commend Dr. Eliot's summary of Mr. Wilson's policy to the careful consideration of every Democrat and invite any Democrat to compare it with this simple statement of a fact which, before the year 1913, no loyal American citizen would have thought to question. It is by Dr. Eliot's colleague at Harvard, John Fiske:

A government touches the lowest of ignominy when it confesses to an inability to protect the lives and property of its citizens.

We need not doubt the sincerity of Dr. Eliot's support of the principle of non-protection of our nationals as an advance over the principle which all other nations accept. He is free to indorse it if he chooses. But certainly there can be no question of the propriety of insistence by those who cling to the old ideas of a Government's obligations to its nationals—the ideas to which we have all been born and bred—that departure from them does mean ignominy and humiliation.

The departure is thus far the work of Woodrow Wilson. For four years he has been free to follow his own course, to pursue such fanciful, idealistic or pusillanimous policies as he would. Dr. Eliot, in his eulogistic analysis of his course, errs only in saying that it is America that has turned its back on the old traditions of what national honor means. America is not bound permanently by what one Administration does. Her means of repudiating her chief executive's acts are not instantaneous in their action. Thus far, Woodrow Wilson's course has been neither rejected nor indorsed by America.

But America cannot re-elect him as her President save she be willing to take his policy as her own. Mr. Wilson has turned his back on the familiar policy of protecting "wandering Americans." Is the country willing to scratch out that name and write America in stead? Or does it propose to cling to its old ideas of national obligation and pride and bring its Government back to them.—Baltimore News.

SHOULD PLANT FOREST TREES

Residents of Maryland Advised to Take Advantage of State Forest Nursery.

With the coming of the fall season the State Board of Forestry, 532 North Howard St. Baltimore, is renewing its offer to residents of Maryland to supply them with standard forest and roadside planting stock at cost. The Nursery has been established and growing trees for State improvement work since the spring of 1914. The responce with which it has met has shown that the service which it offers is appreciated generally by local landowners, and it has enabled the extension of Nursery facilities to meet a growing need.

While in the past not as much of forest and roadside planting has been done in the fall as in the spring, there seems no reason practically throughout the State, why this should not show steady increase in the future. In fact, there are several distinct advantages attached to fall planting which do not obtain in the spring. Labor is usually more plentiful and cheaper, and the ground is very frequently easier to "work." There are many reasons for utilizing the month of October and early November for improvement work through planting trees along the roads and on the farms of Maryland.

Two distinct classes of trees are offered for sale this year: Forest trees, and Roadside trees. Twelve hundred forest trees are sufficient for planting an acre of ground, one hundred and fifty trees are sufficient for planting a mile of highway. Prices on the former are therefore by the thousand, on the latter by the hundred, and in both cases are rated at the cost of production.

Among varieties on hand, in forest trees, are seedlings and transplants of white pine, loblolly pine, Norway spruce, red oak and black locust; in the roadside trees there are offered larger red oak transplant stock in white ash, honey locust, American elm, black walnut and tulip poplar. Prices range from the $4 per thousand charged for the small white pines to $5 per hundred for transplants of black walnut four to five feet in height. The rates on all of them are very reasonable, as low as it is possible to make them. Packing is free and instructions for planting accompany each order.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

M. M. Schrock is putting an extra story to the laundry of the Deaconness' Home. It will have two rooms and a bath. The dining room is also to be enlarged.

Mrs. Milton Echard has rented a "rooming house" in Washington City. She expects to leave for that city in a day or two and will spend the winter there. Her son Charley has a position in that city.

Miss Virginia Richardson, one of our splendid "summer girls" has entered the Woman's Hospital at Baltimore, to take up the studies for a trained nurse.

Mrs. Ada Armstrong Divine, Mrs. Jennie Armstrong Fee each receive a bequest of $500 in the will of Mary P. Lee deceased.

Marvin Harmison and Rudolph Browning, of this place, "a fishing went" last week. The fish remain in the stream, the lads are home. They had a great experience. They left the Park with a new boat, "grub" a plenty, packed in a large suit case, a shot gun. Just this side of Morefield they put their boat in the stream, piled in the equippage, etc., then got in and before they knew it were in the rapids, the boat upset and everything went into the water and the boat turned upside down. The gun was rescued and after a while the boat, which was abandoned. The boys walked to Morefield and in due course of time reached home in good condition minus their outfit and several dollars in cash.

Rev. W. D. Reed, D. D. of Grafton, spent Friday in the Park and Saturday in Oakland.

Have you seen the new road to the Park? It is great. A credit to the State and an honor to Garrett county. It is as pretty as a picture. Its completion has advanced the value of property along the road 50 per cent.

Wm. Riley, on Bear Ranch farm, estimates his apple crop at 1000 bushels. He will not be able to pick them all.

Wm. H. Landon has the contract to fit up two or three bath rooms with modern conveniences.

W. C. Dunnington spent Monday in Washington City.

At the mortgage sale last Saturday E. W. Kelso bought Virginia cottage No. 1; Herbert Bitner purchased No. 2, and Rev. Dr. Reed the Smouse cottage. Total amount of sale, $1950.

M. M. Schrock is busy at work making the new state assessment upon Park property.

Reception to Pastor.

The Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's M. E. church of Oakland will give a reception in honor of the new pastor, Rev. W. M. Shultz, on Friday evening, October 13th, at 8 o'clock, in the church. All members of the congregation are invited to be present.

A VISIT TO KEMPTON

A Newspaper Correspondent Describes New Workings.

The Elk Garden correspondent of the Piedmont Hearld thus describes a visit he recently made to the new town of Kempton, Garrett county, where is located the new workings ot the Davis Coal and Coke Company, and in which mine an explosion occurred last winter when a number of men were killed:

Your correspondent was at Kempton this week and gleaned some points about this up-to date mine. This mine is seven miles from Thomas, and is in Maryland, the mine and town, except the store and Arcade building which are in Preston county, W. Va. The line due North from the Fairfax stone in longitude 79 degrees and 30 minutes West separates the store and other building from the rest of the town. Kempton is not a passenger station—has been operating not much over two years—and passengers are dropped off at Beechwood and then hike it down the mountain path and up the railroad one mile to Kempton. The store building is of brick and the houses are supplied with water and arranged for gas. The roofs are of asbestos and the town presents a white appearance. The shaft is four hundred and thirty feet deep, and all the machinery is run by electricity furnished by the power house at Thomas. There are eight motors in the mine and the output is between seven and eight hundred tons a day and the coal is of excellent quality. The first object of interest as one steps from the iron cage at the bottom of the shaft is the motto in livid letters "safety first." The main entrances are well lighted by electricity, the headings clean and the roof is of an excellent variety of rock and a feeling of safety makes a visit to this mine a pleasure. The coal is a vein of five or six feet nearly uniform throughout the mine, a splendid vein of coal indeed. The ventilation is very good and extra precautions are taken for safety. People from this county figure largely in charge of this mine. Wm. Murphy, of Emoryville, is manager of the store, Miss Nina Knabenshue, of Keyser, is one of the clerks, and Mr. Lewis Duling, of Hartmonsville, is the butcher. J. Ray Hubbs, of Elk Garden, is mine foreman having received appointment a few weeks ago. Mr. Harmon Trenton, of Elk District is office clerk. We acknowledge the courtesies from all the above and in addition the mine superintendent Geo. Raberts and assistant mine foreman Matthew Stewart. A concrete walk runs the length of the town. The original Fairfax stone is no longer the corner stone of state and counties. The Potomac winds around two miles from the Fairfax stone into the little valley of Kempton and on the small Potomac a new stone has been erected on a line due north from the other. This was done by the government in 1910.

HUTTON

PORTRAYAL OF AUTUMN

The season attains to the heights of a marvelous perfection—yesterday—thrills of ardent emotion surged our pulses with renewed vigor that coursed with a tremendous vibration—awakening pathos—so forcible—so vehement, as to render a vociferation of an evident expression useless.

And what a scene—

The earth, a veritable flood of golden sunlight, lay shimmering in radiant splendor without a cloud to mar the heavenly canopy of azure blue. Indeed well may we view with a sense of satisfaction the autumn wrought wonders;—exhibiting, so gorgeously, the tangible beauties which nature surrounds us.

Ah! ere we are aware, our admiring perception becomes so thoroughly engrossed in the meshes of its enchanting metamorphosis that for the moment we become unconscious of a mortal existence and live—and breathe—as it were in a visionaay sphere.

Were it possible for me to adequately depict the realism of that Autumn scene as it appeared—only yesterday—it would require considerable tact—and volumes of paper, to reproduce a faint glimmer of that magnificent spectacle, but space in these columns, as well as my few leisure moments would not permit of such an extended delineation, so I am obliged to draw upon the reader's imagination to supplement the deficiencies of my feeble endeavorments—in the portrayal of yesterday's scene of unsupassing loveliness.

But the pictorial of To-day's—
When the dawn broke cold and drear,
And the world seemed void of cheer—
And the leaves began to fall,
And a gloom spread over all—
O, I've decided to await
A future writing to illustrate.

A Distinctive Reason

What is the chief reason for the superiority of Royal Baking Powder?

There are several good reasons, but there is one which distinguishes Royal from other baking powders.

This reason, which every woman should know, is that Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, which comes from grapes. This means a healthful fruit origin. It means natural food as distinguished from mineral substitutes used in other baking powders.

There is no alum nor phosphate in Royal Baking Powder.

A CORRECTION WITH REFERENCE TO ANTHRAX

Misinformation Concerning Disease In The Vicinity of Hutton.

In these columns there was published last week an article dealing with the reported outbreak of anthrax among the cattle on the farms of Messrs. Fred A. Thayer, D. N. Sanders and Bert C. Scott near Hutton in which it was stated that as a result of the disease a number had died, twenty-five in all, eight or ten of them belonging to Mr. Sanders.

Upon investigating this report and in conversation with the owners of the farms upon which the disease was stated to have occurred, it is learned that none had suffered the loss of a single head, but that several animals belonging to a son of Mr. Sanders had died as the result of being struck by lightning or eating of a poisoned weed.

The Republican regrets that the matter was given publicity.

A FRIEND.

HARMON W. HESEN

Another pioneer resident of Oakland, in the person of the venerable Harmon W. Hesen, passed to his eternal reward early last Thursday morning, October 5, 1916, after months of weary, lingering waiting.

Mr. Hesen was one of the oldest living pioneers in the county today, and was born in Isnabruck, Hanover, Germany, on March 20, 1820, having reached the advanced age of 96 years, 6 months and 10 days. His father was Louis Von Hazen, a colonel in Napoleon's army, and had his bitter share with the other soldiers in the awful misfortunes attending the downfall of that unfortunate monarch at Waterloo, after which he made arrangements to sail for America with his wife and fifteen children, landing at Locust Point, Baltimore, in 1828, later moving to Lonaconing. When the colonel died, his sons decided to drop their cumbersome title and Americanized the name into Hesen.

Mr. Hesen came to Oakland in 1845, at which time it was part of a large farm owned by Mr. Isaac McCarty, and his stories of the intervening years, during which he saw the steady growth and development of this locality, were interesting, indeed.

Shortly after having settled here, he married Miss Margaret White, of Cumberland, who died within the year, leaving an infant son, William, who, with his family, now resides in Fairmont, W. Va. On May 9, 1859, Miss Helen Bringle, of Oakland, became his second wife. The children of this union are Harmon O., of Washington, D. C.; Ellsworth, living in the west; A. C. of Pittsburgh; Edward, of Washington; George, of Keyser, and Bruce, Margaret and Elizabeth, the latter three having preceded their father to the grave. He was the grand father and the great-grand father of a small army of decendants, and enjoyed one of life's rarest blessings in the companionship of a most patient and devoted wife, who ministered to his every last exacting want, as to that of a tender infant, as she tranquilly, prayerfully, tearfully handed him over to that grim, unwelcome harvester we call death.

The funeral took place Monday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Peter's Catholic church, after the solemnization of a high requiem mass by Father Jas. E. Connell, the pastor, who delivered an affectionate tribute to the deceased in a most tender strain.

The children and relatives attending the funeral from a distance were Will Hesen and wife, Fairmont, W. Va.; Harmon O., and Edward, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Bruce Hesen, Martinsburg, W. Va.; A. C. Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. George Hesen, Keyser; Mrs. Helen Hesen Mullin and E. W. Hesen, grandchildren, Washington; Mr. Will Faith, Hancock, Md., and Mrs. Katherine Donnelly, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Tobias Delawder, Keyser, nieces.

Notice to Subscribers.

Beginning November 1st, 1916, the subscription price of The Republican will be advanced from $1.25 per year to $1.50 per year. This advance in price is made unwillingly by the publisher, but at the same time it is absolutely necessary by reason of the fact that every single item going into the making of a newspaper, including inks, paper and fixed charges has so advanced that the present subscription price of $1.25 per year is much less than the cost of production.

News print paper has advanced from $2.40 per hundred pounds to $7.00 per hundred pounds, while inks have advanced from 6 cents per pound to 15 cents per pound within the past six months. It was the hope of the management that prices would become normal and this advance in the price of subscription would not be necessary; but instead indications are that all material will become higher.

Anyone desiring to pay their subscription in advance prior to November 1st may do so at the present rate for a period of not more than one year. All subscriptions that are now paid in advance will be continued the full time paid for. All subscriptions in arrear must be promptly settled as we cannot longer carry delinquents.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Destroying the Foundations.

There is today, as there has been in the past, a strong and persistent effort being made to destroy one of the great foundation stones upon which our faith is built, viz:—the Inspiration of the Bible. All they have or can do is to shake the confidence of a few weak persons who are not rooted and grounded in the faith. All men do not like to be governed by the principles of the Bible. They want to be wise above what is written and so thinking themselves to be something when they are nothing and vainly puffed up with self conceit, they delight in picking up a few thread bare arguments and thoughts of other men and fling them off as their own and unsuspecting minds look upon them as very wise, when in reality they are, as the Bible expresses it, fools.

If they can get rid of the Bible, they could give the loose reins to their passions, do as they please and sail clear of moral restraint. To do this they begin by rejecting portions of the Bible, in spite of the declaration that "all Scripture is given by inspiration of God." They laugh at the idea of all the scriptures being inspired; they talk with many words of plunary inspiration as an exploded doctrine, destroyed by philosophy, science and the higher criticism of these latter days, yet three fourths of these pretended servants could not give an intelligent definition of inspiration. It is a supernatural influence, distinguished from the providential agency of God, which operates everywhere and from the gracious operations of the spirit on the hearts of men. There is always a difference recognized between these effects which are due to the efficiency of God through second causes and those produced without the intervention of such causes.

Inspiration belongs to this class. It is not merely a spiritual illumination, for all true believers are spiritually illuminated, while the subjects of inspiration are a few selected individuals, who are made infallible teachers, whereas spiritual illumination is designed to make men holy.

The effect of this is to sanctify its subjects, while inspiration has no such effect.

Baalam was inspired, but he was not sanctified.

Saul was among the prophets, and such a man as Caiaphas uttered a prediction which "he spake not of himself."

It is not simply a revelation, for it differs from this in its objects and effects. The design of Revelation is to communicate knowledge, while Inspiration is to secure infallibility in teaching. The effect of Revelation is to make those who receive it wiser, but inspiration preserves them from error in teaching. The men who were inspired were only the organs of God, taught by Him. They were not machines to grind out a book, say of logarithms, with unerring exactness, but they were intelligent and willing instruments. If a Hebrew was inspired, he spake as a Hebrew. If a Greek, he spake as a Greek. If an educated man was inspired, he spake, as a man of culture would, and if he was uneducated he spake as such an one was want to speak.

So we have the logic of Paul, the emotion of John and the pathos of Jeremiah, which all of the writers stated facts as they were.

They recount sins without comment and refer to the judgments attending them. They state things that seem to shock modesty and to be contrary to decency, but they never commend them, but leave them as beacons to warn us against going in such a course.

They are for our correction and instruction.

We have not time to show that Inspiration extends to all parts of the Bible. It is enough to know that Jesus says, "The scriptures cannot be broken," that is, they cannot err.

Yet in the face of the declaration of Christ and the Apostles and their constant reference to the whole book as the work of God, men try to overthrow this corner stone of the foundation. They say only a part is inspired and so the inspired part of one man is rejected by another. Each one has his own Bible and hence there are as many Bibles as there are skeptics.

If only a part is inspired what part is it, and how are we to know which parts are to be rejected. The truth of the matter is, these ambitious, self-conceited, proud creatures, confessing themselves wise are fools and they do not know it.

If you can shake the faith of man in the inspiration of the Bible, then you will have no difficulty in rejecting the atonement.

The word throughout the Old Testament is used to signify the reconciliation of God—by means of bloody sacrifices—to men alienated from Him by the guilt of sin. The priest atoned for the transgressor of the law by sacrifices which were offered. On the great day of atonement the High Priest made atonement first for his own sin by the sacrifice of a bullock and then for the sins of the people by the sacrifice of a goat and the sins thus atoned for, were after confession laid upon the head of a live goat and carried into the desert. This was called the scape goat and this act signified that the sins atoned for were carried into oblivion. They would not appear against them any more.

Our sins were laid on God's sacrifice even Jesus all the guilt or punishment incurred by the sins of his people were charged to his account. He gave his life a sacrifice for us. He was wounded for our trangressions, He was bruised for our iniquities and the chastisement of our peace was laid upon Him. Christ designed by His death to expiate guilt and restore us to the image of God which had been destroyed by sin.

But this humiliates the pride of the human heart and so theories have been devised that are contrary to scripture, or ignore one or both of the objects of His death. To say that the death of the Son of God was necessary just to satisfy the demands of Satan who held us in bondage, would be an admission that He could not remove our guilt or restore us to the image of God. That would make Christ merely a ransom and not an expiation for guilt.

It is said Christ was only a conqueror but He is more. He liberates man from the thraldom of Satan by expiating for his guilt, and making him a king and priest to God.

The ransom price was not paid to Satan but to God, man is under penalty of divine law. That law must be satisfied, that penalty borne, but since man could not do this, Christ rendered a complete satisfaction, hence we are free from the power of Satan. I say we—I mean of course believers or tho e who truly accept Christ.

As late as the 17th century a theory was invented called "the governmental theory" which made the death of Christ not a satisfaction to justice, only a substitute for it. God is only a moral Governor, who finds it expident to punish sin so as to restrain His subjects lest they rebel and overthrow His kingdom. This makes the object of punishment to be the reformation of the offender and the good of society, whereas, His nature requires Him to punish sin.

This would make the death of Christ, not a satisfaction to divine justice, but merely a substitue for it. If this be true there is no real union between Christ and believers. It is only figurative. We are not heirs but merely beneficiaries, He did not ransom us from sin and death, He only bailed us out of prison so to speak.

His death instead of satisfying justice and appeasing divine wrath, only opened up the way by which an opportunity could be given us ot becoming righteous. It only makes salvation possible instead of actually saving us, while His death was to produce a moral effect on us. But the Lord really and actually saves from their sins all who truly believe in Him. A satisfaction has been made, for Jesus suffered the penalty due our sin.

U-BOAT SINKS SIX SHIPS OFF COAST

AMERICAN VESSEL HELD UP

Four British, One Dutch and One Norwegian Vessels Are Attacked—Only Ship to Escape of Those Sighted by the Boat Was the Kansas.

Boston.—The German war submarine U-53, which departed from Newport, R. I., after a mysterious three-hour visit, brought the war within 35 miles off the New England Coast when she torpedoed six steamship at different times on the same day in trans-Atlantic lane off Nantucket Shoals Lightship. There was no loss of life. The crews were rescued from their boats by United States revenue cutters and torpedo boats and taken to the lightship, 35 miles southeast of the island of Nantucket.

Admiral Knight, commander of the naval station at Newport, R. I., announced that the Nantucket Lightship reported a second German submarine nearby. Naval officers say they expect a fleet of German submarines will blockade every Atlantic harbor from which munitions ships leave.

The radius of the attacks was bout fifty miles and covered a period f eight hours. If the U-53 worked lone, she had to double on her tracks any times and travel at a speed hich allowed nothing for waits while he was aiming her torpedoes and warning the ships she had marked for destruction.

These ships were sunk in the first day of German submarine activity in American waters:

The Red Cross liner, Stephano, St. Johns, N. F., to New York, passengers and freight.

The West Point, freighter from Liverpool to Newport News.

The Strathdene, New York to Brest, France, laden with munition.

Bloomersdijk, Holland-America line merchantman.

Christian Knudsen, Norwegian tanker.

The crews of all the vessels were given time to take to boats and then the vessels were torpedoed. All of them sent wireless calls as soon as the submarine halted them.

The first sign of the U-35 after it left Newport was 5.30 in the morning off the lightship when it signalled the American steamer Kansan, bound from New York to Boston to stop. The Kansan did so in response to signals, sent a boat with an officer and the ship's papers. A boarding crew from the submarine sent back to the Kansan and satisfied with their inspection, permitted the steamship to proceed.

The Kansas was about forty miles away from where she received a wireless call from the British steamship West Point, saying that she was sinking. The Kansas put about and the revenue cutters Androscoggin, from Boston, Acushnet, from Woods Hole, and the torpedo destroyers Jarvis and Jerkins from Newport also answered the call. Before she had reached the scene there came a succession of wireless calls in the course of several hours from other boats which had fallen victims to the submarine.

The distress signals, which came first from the West Point, were picked up by the government rad'o station at Newport, R. I., and immediately Rear Admiral Albert Gleaves, commander of the destroyer flotilla of the American Atlantic fleet, ordered virtually all of his ships to the rescue. The West Point gave her position as fifty miles southeast of Nantucket, but the navy officials questioned the accuracy of this and said later reports indicated the vessel was not more than ten miles off shore.

The booming of the submarine's guns, apparently fired in warning, was distinctly heard at Nantucket. But where the submersible was at the moment these reports was heard was pure speculation.

ALLIES ADVANCE ON SOMME FRONT

British Continue to Increase Gains, Deopite Heavy Shelling; Take Strong Village

CAPTURE TOWN OF LE SARS

London.—The British continued the advance they made on the western front, when they and the French moved forward about two-thirds of a mile on an 8-mile front.

South of the Ancre the British front was heavily shelled in the neighborhood of Gueudecourt and Le Sars, which latter village was won in the drive, but the British succeeded in pushing their lines southwest of Gueudecourt.

Only north of Les Boufes was the Emperor's heavy artillery fire successful in recapturing part of the trenches won by the British.

Captain Boelke, the famous German flyer, was credited with his thirtieth aeroplane victim. Berlin claims five Allied aeros were brought down.

The Germans again attacked the Schwaben redoubt in the morning, but without success.

There was severe fighting north of the Courcelette - Warlencourt road, where the British won some ground.

The total number of prisoners reported in the last two days has reached 13 officers and 866 others.

Paris reports that after violent artillery preparation, the Germans launched against their position west of Sailly Saillisel an attack whose successive waves were broken up by the barrier fire without one of them reaching the French trenches.

In the Woevre heavy artillery bombarded some German convoys and camps. The railroad station of Thiaucourt also was bombarded.

Six lively aerial combats were fought and French aviators bombarded Meislains and Vaux wood, north of Peronne.

The British, north of the Somme, cut into the German lines to a depth of from 800 to 1,000 yards between the villages of Gueudecourt and Les Boeufs, almost directly south of Bapaume. This wedge pushes out toward the village of Le Transloy, a mainstay of the German fourth line, on the highway from Bapaume to Paronne.

The French line was carried forward nearly a mile northeast of Morval, across the Peronne-Bapaume road, which connects Le Transloy and Sailly-Saillisel. Thus the direct communication between the two garrisons of Germans is cut off.

To the south of Sailly-Saillisel an advance was made that marks the beginning of the encircling of this town. The French pushed their lines ahead to the edge of the St. Pierre Vaast wood, and thence over Hill 130, the important summit southeast of Bouchavesnes.

The French thus far have counted 400 German prisoners, of whom ten are officers, and 15 machine guns.

RUMANIAN ARMY HURLED BACK.

London.—Official announcement was made in Bucharest that the Rumanian troops which crossed the Danube and invaded Bulgaria had returned to the Rumanian side of the river.

The Berlin War Office in announcing this retreat did not claim that the Rumanians had suffered heavy losses in their expedition, nor does the Frankfurter Zeitung, which is quoted in a dispatch from Amsterdam as saying that the flanking force, which it figured at 24,000 men, was threatened by an enveloping movement and had to recross to the north bank in boats, adding that only a few scattered bodies remained on the south side; but the official communication put out from Sofia asserts that the flanking force, which it estimates at 15,000 to 16,000 men, was practically annihilated.

Bucharest reports that in the Parajd region of Transylvania the Rumanians have won a three-day battle.

Following is the official account given out by Sofia:

Russian war vessel off the Black Sea coast shelled the heights near the village of Tatladohokos.

GEN. FALKENHAYN HITS RUMANIANS

43 GUNS ARE CAPTURED

London.—The Rumanians were defeated again, says an official statement from Berlin and the Rumanian statement bears out the assertion. Von Falkenhayn has struck again in Transylvania and the Rumanians have been routed. Leaving thirty cannon, thirteen machine guns and hundreds of prisoners in the Teutons' hands, they are in full retreat.

The fourth severe defeat the Rumanians have suffered in their five weeks of war was administered near Koehalom, about sixty-five miles northeast of the scene of their rout at Hermannstadt and fifty miles west of the Rumanian border. Von Falkenhayn, until recently chief of the German General Staff, struck at several points of the Rumanian front at once, using mixed columns of Germans and Austrians.

For a time the Rumanians made a stubborn resistance, especially in the Sinca sector. Here the Rumanians held their ground until German troops were ordered to charge with the bayonet. Several hundred of Rumanians were made prisoners.

The Rumanians retreated across the Homorod River, a tributary of the Alt, and then over the Alt itself. When the German report was telegraphed from Van Falkenhayn's headquarters they were fleeing through the Geister-Wald, the Forest of Spirits, the northern part of the Perschan hills and forests.

Rumania has been forced by this new stroke of Von Falkenhayn to give up Fogaras, for the army that he has defeated had its headquarters there. This is the same force, the Second Army, that tried to succor the First Army, that was cut up at Hermanstadt.

GERMAN ATTACK FAILS.

London.—Isolated French and British attacks were the only operations on the Somme front. Heavy rains deterred the Allies from large enterprises.

The French completed the capture of the tenaciously defended German trench system between Morval and the St. Pierre Vaast wood, northeast of Combles, and made 300 prisoners, of whom ten were officers. This is an advance toward Sailly-Saillisel. The British made secure their hold on a difficult position, the village of Eaucourt l'Abbaye, which the Germans succeeded in penetrating after its capture by Haig's men. The latter cleared the last German from the village.

The British front line at several points is within a mile of the German fourth line, to which the Germans have fallen back. It lies west of the Bapaume-Le Transloy road, where the Germans are protected by a low ridge.

An official statement issued, in which Gen. Sir Douglas Haig sums up the fighting on the Somme after September 15, says:

"The importance of the three months offensive is not to be judged by the distance advanced or th number of enemy trench lines taken. It must be looked for in the effect upon the enemy's strength in numbers, material and morale. The enemy has used up his reserves in repeated, costly and unsuccessful counter attacks without causing our Allies or ourselves to relax our steady, methodical pressure.

"Our aircraft have shown in the highest degree the spirit of the offensive. They have patrolled regularly far behind the enemy's lines, and have fought many battles in the air with hostile machines and many with enemy troops on the ground.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

In the face of far superior forces, mainly German, the Rumanian troops, from Hermanstadt to Brasso (Kronstadt), have been withdrawn to the Carpathian frontier to insure better defense of the frontier passes.

In Macedonia the contending sides have been engaged for the most part in artillery duels. Alike condition prevails on the Austro-Italian front.

Monastir and Seres the mainstays of the Bulgar right and left wings in Macedonia, are more seriously imperilled by the late strokes of Gen. Serrail's allied army than at any time since the offensive was begun.

The Rumanian invasion of Bulgaria has failed and the Bulgarians are attempting a counter invasion.

In Transylvania the Rumanians report the defeat of Austrian and German troops in the Pogaras mountains. In the Odorkim district the Teutons also suffered a very severe repulse, losing 1226 in prisoners.

The Berlin War Office admits the retirement of the Teutonic Allies before the Serbians to prepared positions near Lake Presba, on the western end of the Macedonian front, and also at Nize Hill, north of Kaimakcalan Height.

"CHAPTER 159.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, regulating the making of appropriations by the General Assembly of Maryland in regular session, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Gen a Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two houses concurring.) That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 52 of Article III of the Constitution of Maryland.

Sec. 52 The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the Treasry except in accordance with the followin provisions:

Sub-Section A:

Every appropriation bill shall be either a Budget Bill, or a supplementary Appropriation Bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B:

First. Within twenty days after the convening of the General Assembly (except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within thirty days after his inauguration,) unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the Budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any suggestion as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first part shall be designated "Governmental Appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the Executive Department; (3) for the Judiciary Department, as provided by law, certified to the Governor by the Comptroller; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of the debt of the State of Maryland in conformity with Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the establishment and maintenance throughout the State of a thorough and efficient system of public schools in conformity with Article VIII of the Constitution and with the laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution of the State.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill." The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect either the obligations of the State under Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, or the provisions made by the laws of the State for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, or the payment of any salaries required by said laws by the State of Maryland by the Constitution thereof; and the General Assembly may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly; and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or recuce items therein, provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be decreased during his term of office; and such bill when and as passed by both houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or supplying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either house of the Legislature, it shall be their duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section C: Supplementary Appropriation Bills:

Neither house shall consider other appropriations until the budget bill has been finally acted upon by both houses, and no such other appropriation shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following: (1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purpose therein stated and called herein a Supplementary Appropriation Bill; (a) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said Bill. (3) No Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of a majority of the whole number of the members elected; and in the yeas and nays recorded on its final passage. (4) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall be presented to the Governor or the State as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said Section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the Legislature from passing at any time, in accordance with the provisions of Section 28 of Article III of the Constitution and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Maryland within the protection of Section 10 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D: General Provisions:

First. If the Budget Bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such Bill; but no other matter than such Bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second. The Governor for the purpose of making up his budgets shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper State Officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative offices, bureaus boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for State moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. The estimates for the Legislative Department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the Judiciary, as provided by law, certified by the Comptroller, and for the public schools, as provided by law shall be transmitted to the Governor, in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget without revision.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and of all institutions applying for State moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third. The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this Section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out it provisions

Fourth. In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this Section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this Section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 34 of Article III of the Constution or of any laws heretofore or hereafter passed in pursuance thereof, or be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by Section 16 of Article II, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this Section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the Bill or of any other item of such Bill or Bills.

Section 2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing Section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next ensuing general election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, being the Presidential and Congressional, election, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in conformity with the directions contained in Article XVI of this State, and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be placed the following synopsis of said amendment under the caption of "CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR A BUDGET."

"This amendment provides that the Governor shall present to the Legislature soon after it is convened a Budget giving a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the two succeeding fiscal years showing clearly any surplus or deficit in State funds. In these estimates he shall make provision for the interest and sinking funds of all State debts, for all salaries as fixed by law, and for the public schools as fixed by law. With regard to most other matters he may revise the estimates presented to him either by State officers or State-aided institutions. The Legislature may not increase the estimates presented by the Governor or pass any additional appropriation act except by a majority vote and must make provision by tax for such increase or additional appropriation. The Legislature may not alter in any appropriation act the provision made by law for the State debt, or for the judiciary, but may reduce all other items in the Governor's estimates; and the words 'for the Constitutional Amendment' and 'against the Constitutional Amendment' as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote in accordance with Article XVI of the Constitution.

Autumn Wedding at Mountain Lake Park.

"Journey's End," the attractive summer home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Winchell, at Mt. Lake Park, Md., was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding, at eight o'clock Tuesday evening, October 10th. The rooms had been charmingly decorated with brilliant foliage interspersed with jardinieres of yellow and white chrysanthemumns and formed a beautiful setting for the handsome young couple who stood under a canopy of autumn leaves. The bride, Miss Elena Stuart Floyd, daughter of Mrs. Mary Chalmers Floyd, late of Virginia, but now residing in Texas, is noted throughout the States of her nativity and adoption for her many accomplishments and charming personality.

Her gown was a dainty French model of embroidered tulle, girlish and beautiful in its simplicity.

The groom, Mr. Chauncy Copp Devoe, is a son of Col. J. H. Devoe, formerly of Wheeling but now living in Atascadero, California, and a nephew of Mrs. Winchell. Mr. Devoe is the Goodyear Rubber Co.'s representative in India with headquarters in Bombay from which country he returned about Sept 1st. The marriage ceremony of the Episcopal church was read by the Rev. Mr. Appleton of St. Matthew's church, Oakland, in an impressive manner. After congratulations had been showered upon the happy pair the party repaired to the dining room where a course dinner was served. The decorations here were Killarney and bride's roses, with garlands and festoons of Southern smilax. The marriage was the culmination of a house party given by Mr. and Mrs. Winchell in honor of their nephew and his fiancee, and only the fortunate house guests witnessed the ceremony. Among the guests were Mrs. M. C. Floyd and Mr. Preston St. George Floyd, of Texas, and Mrs. H. Arthur Heinze, of Clarksburg, W. Va., sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Devoe left in their car Thursday morning accompanied by several of their party, to visit the venerable grandmother of the groom, Mrs. M. J. Devoe, in Woodsfield, Ohio. From there there they will go to visit relatives in Texas and California.

On November 2nd they will sail for their home in far off India and with them will go the heart-felt prayers and good wishes of a host of interested friends.

Golden Anniversary.

A few of the many friends of Captain R. R. Sanner, the veteran school master, met him at the evening train upon his arrival at Oakland last Friday evening and escorted him to the Hinebaugh resturant where a sumptuous banquet had been prepared for him. The honored guest knew nothing whatever of the contemplated banquet, the result being a complete surprise to him.

The occasion was arranged in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of Captain and Mrs. Sanner they having been married on October 8, 1866. Covers were laid for sixteen guests, and the room and tables were tastefully arranged and beautified by flowers, typical of the golden anniversary.

Appropriate remaras were made by Mr. J. E. Harned and Mr. F. E. Rathbun, during which a bouquet of chrysanthemums was presented for Mrs. Sanner, who was unable to be present, and a handsome fountain pen, suitably engraved, was given to the Captain.

Those present in addition to those above mentioned were Misses Zaidee Browning, Beulah Loughridge, Elizabeth Leary, Daisy Hanna, Olive DeWitt, Myrtle Breyfogle and Ida Mae Arnold; Messrs. Norman, son Richard and Walter Sanner, C. Edward Bender, Herman A. Ziel, H. B. Wiley, Mrs. J. E. Harned and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Loraditch.

The evening was most pleasantly spent and all who attended were delighted over the opportunity to contribute to the honoring of the Captain and Mrs. Sanner upon the completion of fifty years of happy wedlock.

Casteel, one day the latter part of last week and will take charge of the property within the next week and will continue to operate it along the same lines it has been run during the past summer except that the new firm will add materially to the output by manufacturing ice cream and selling it to local and out of town customers.

WOULDHAVEKEPT HUGHES'NAME OFF

Failure to Certify to Candidate's Nomination---Chase After Signatures.

Baltimore, Oct. 17—An oversight on the part of the Republican management in this State came very near depriving Hughes and Fairbanks of a place on the ballot. Fortunately, Chairman Tait made the discovery in time to prevent the names from being ruled off, but he passed four days on the griddle pending the adjustment of the details which made it possible to save the candidates, but it was only at the eleventh hour that the final requirements were complied with.

While there is no State law governing the action of officials with reference to the certification of the names of candidates for President and Vice President, the same procedure as is directed by statute in the case of other candidates at large is, by implication, regarded as binding on other candidates to be voted for by voters in the entire State. It is demanded that such nomination when made in convention must be certified by the chairman and secretary of the nominating body. This action had not been taken in Maryland so far as it affected the Republican candidates.

The Democratic Secretary of State was well aware of this fact and it is assumed that the Governor and other Democratic officials knew of it, and from what has since developed they were prepared to take advantage of the oversight. They were less broadminded and not possessed of the spirit of fairness shown by the Republican administration four years ago when the shoe was on the other foot. Then the Democrats failed to certify to Wilson's nomination and they did not find out their failure to do so until it was too late, but notwithstanding Governor Goldsborough refused to take advantage of the opening offered and Secretary Graham placed the names on the ballot. He regarded it simply as a technical mistake and there was no express provision in the law directly forbidding him to do so.

A very different view was apparently entertained by the Harrington administration and that the Democrats did not put one over on the Republicans was due wholly to the excessive caution exercised by Chairman Tait. It occurred to the latter about ten days ago that the state committee should know whether all of the state candidates had taken the necessary precautions, and so he requested of Secretary Simmons a copy of all the names that were to appear on the ballot.

This arrived on last Monday and brought the desired information. The name of every candidate of each of the parties was set forth with the exception of those of the Republican Presidential candidates. Then, and not until then, did it occur to him that these names had not been certified. Prompt action was necessary. The time limit for filing the names expired on last Friday, October 13, and only four days intervened.

Quickly preparing the papers the chairman dispatched Mr. Charles O. Carter, the publicity manager of the state committee at New York, to hunt up Senator Harding and the secretary of the convention. The latter was easily found. He was at National headquarters, but Senator Harding was out campaigning somewhere in Oklahoma. Away went Carter with instructions to locate the chairman and get his signature.

En route he kept the wires hot and finally was advised that the Senator had left Oklahoma for another far western state, but would be in Missouri on Thursday. Without any definite information as to where in the state he could find his man, Mr. Carter decided to try St. Louis and he was fortunate enough to come up with him at the breakfast table.

Then began the race for home. Taking the Congressional Limited Mr. Carter made quick connections and reached here Friday afternoon. He hustled to Annapolis and before 3 o'clock had filed the necessary certification. It was a close shave, but Mr. Tait is consoling himself with the reflection that a miss is as good as a mile.

Maxine, our darling of three short years,
Has left us in sadness to weep in tears—
And why God called her we cannot tell,
But know she's resting where angels dwell.
Those pink little feet, those baby hands,
Are now keeping time with angel bands;
Those cheeks all sweetness, those ruby lips
Are chanting God's praise in joyful bliss.
How soon He'll call us we cannot know,
But we'll be watching ready to go;
For God has promised his faithful ones
To meet their loved ones when work is done
So God helping us with grace and pow'r
We'er going to meet our angel flow'r.

Has Been the Successful Manager for Several Years Past.

The Garrett County Creamery, which has been owned by Mr. T. W. Casteel and operated under the management of Mr. L. W. Hopkins for the past three or four years, was purchased a day or two ago by the latter who will assume the proprietorship on November 1st, and continue its operation and management.

The creamery, at the time it was taken over by Mr. Casteel, was being operated at a loss. Shortly afterwards Mr. Hopkins was placed in charge with the result that it was soon placed upon a paying basis and has been most successfully operated since that time.

Mr. Hopkins is a young man but has had years of practical work in the creamery business and there is every reason to believe that he will continue to be successful in its management.

HARVEY REDHOT FOR HUGHES

Espousal by Distinguished Editor of the Cause of the Republican Candidate a Significant Campaign Feature.

ORIGINAL WILSON BOOSTER.

He Takes This Action Not Because He Is the Victim of Ingratitude But Because Wilson Stands for Wilson First and Col. Harvey Cannot Assist in the Betrayal of His Country for the Gratification of Personal Ambition—A Democrat's Patriotic Stand.

The avowal of the cause of Mr Hughes by Colonel George Harvey is one of the distinct features of the present campaign. It would be significant in itself that a man of his prestige, who had always trained with the Democratic party, had espoused the cause of the Republican candidate. But in Mr. Harvey's case the significance is very much greater, as well as the importance of the event. He has been not only a Democrat, but a Wilson Democrat. Moreover, he was the first man of prominence to advocate the election of Woodrow Wilson as President, and for many years one of the closest friends and advisers of the present occupant of the White House. Mr. Harvey not only proposed Mr. Wilson for the Presidency, but as early as 1910 interested United States Senator Smith, a Democratic leader of New Jersey, in Mr. Wilson, and this resulted in the Wilson nomination and election as Governor of New Jersey.

Mr. Harvey not only comes out for Mr. Hughes, but gives very intelligent reasons for his action in the current number of his "North American Review." In his judgment there are two vital questions to be answered before election. One is, which of the two great parties at this particular juncture in our progress as a nation is the better equipped and the more likely to render the highest public service? The other is, which of the two designated leaders is the more certain to preserve protect and defend the Constitution of the United States? Such an issue as the Democrats claim, that Mr. Wilson has kept us out of war and therefore is entitled to re-election, is brushed aside as something that has no proper place in the mind of the voter of this year. In Mr. Harvey's judgment, only the most insane partisan would venture to suggest a possibility of Mr. Wilson or Mr. Hughes inciting or inviting war with any European or Asiatic Power, and therefore there is no fair issue between them on this question.

There are three elements that are involved in the answers to these two questions, those of military and industrial preparedness, government by and for the people and national honor and opportunity. So far as all of these are concerned, the answer is the same. Mr. Hughes is the man who should be chosen from each and every standpoint—both as the representative of the Republican party and as an individual. The best interests of the country are to be served by his election.

Mr. Harvey calls attention to the fact that the utter absence of self-seeking on the part of Mr. Hughes throughout his entire career, confirms the belief that he does, in fact, from the very nature of his being, stand for "America first."

On the other hand, no less surely and most disappointingly, happenings of the past two years culminating in the betrayal of his country for the gratification of personal ambition prove incontestably that Mr. Wilson stands for Wilson first. That is Mr Harvey's opinion. In his judgment there is no need to seek a conclusion. it finds itself. The summing up of the situation is that upon the clearly marked issues as between the candidates, there is no reason why any professed Republican, any thoughtful Progressive or any principled Democrat should not, and every reason why every patriotic Republican should vote for Mr. Hughes for President.

Such advice from such a source should make a deep impression upon the American electorate. It certainly is not given through any prejudice against Mr. Wilson, for its author would naturally be predisposed in favor of the President. Nor does it come from any lack of knowledge of Mr Wilson's methods and intent. The intimacy of the two men has been too long and too close to admit of any lack of knowledge on Mr. Harvey's part. The man who, as Mr. Wilson's friend, first started the movement for him for President, now, after a test of Mr. Wilson in the White House, advises the American people to vote for Mr. Hughes. There should be no hesitancy on the part of the voters to follow this advice.

ELECTION OF HUGHES MEANS PEACE WITH HONOR—NOT WAR, NOT PEACE WITH INFAMY.

"We have heard in recent days that the alternative of the policy of the present Administration is war. I think the alternative of the present Administration is peace with honor. I am a man devoted to the pursuits of peace. We cherish the ideals of peace. We entertain no thought of aggression; we are not covetous, we are not exploiters, but we are Americans, and American rights must be maintained throughout the world. That is the cornerstone of our security; that is the essential basis of peace. We are not courting struggle, but I do say in all seriousness that we have been living in a period of national humiliation.

"Our citizens have been murdered, their property destroyed and our commerce interrupted. The alternative of a weak and vacillating policy is not war; it is a firm insistence on known rights in a world where all nations desire our friendship and we desire the friendship of all, and where only inexcusable blundering could drag us into strife."—Charles E. Hughes at Union League Club Reception in New York City, October 3.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Mr. Wilson used four pens to affix his signature to the Adamson bill, a souvenir for each of the brotherhoods' chiefs. The public's souvenir will be in the form of an added tax amounting, say, to fifty million dollars a year, or fifty cents a head for every man, woman and child.

T. R.'s grin when he compared Watchful Woodrow unfavorably to Pontius Pilate was deleted by the censor.

With Mr. Roosevelt likening his "neutrality" to that of President Wilson and the Houston Post coupling his most famous act with that of a Democratic Congress, the late Mr. Pontius Pilate must be having an uncomfortable time in his grave, if he has a grave.

The President used four pens signing the increased wage law, highly representative of the different humors of his variable mind.

In a speech to 2,000 negroes at Nashville, Tenn., Mr. Hughes said: "We want honesty with respect to the ballot. I want an honest and a pure ballot. I say to you that I stand, if I stand for anything, for equal and exact justice to all. I stand for the maintenance of the rights of all American citizens regardless of race or color." The saddest and sorest people in the land are the negroes who voted for Wilson four years ago. And there were a lot of them.

AUTUMN HEALTH TIPS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Many persons in the United States are now passing through a biennial period of trial and struggle and self questioning. They are faced by a problem containing incalculable factors—one which they can not decide for themselves, and upon which they are restrained from seeking advice by pride and false modesty. Yet it is a matter which intimately concerns their well being, and in which an error may mean weeks or months of suffering and loss. These persons, in a word, are unable to decide whether or not to put on their winter underwear.

This is really a matter of prime importance. The common occurrence of colds in spring and fall is due chiefly to this change from cotton to wool, which is usually made too early and often necessitates a change back.

The correct procedure in this matter is a thing which each individual must work out for himself; but the officials of the United States Public Health Service have a word to say about the theory of underwear. They emphasize the fact that underwear should not be worn for warmth. Overcoats, mufflers, spats, leggings, ear-pads, foot-warmers, laprobes, sweaters, and other wraps should protect the body from chilling and freezing when it is exposed to outdoor air. The function of the underwear is merely to form a covering next to the body which may be conveniently changed and washed. If this covering is made heavy enough to keep the body warm when exposed to the air, it will inevitably mean over-heating at times, and chilling at others. The correct underwear, therefore, is the very lightest you can stand. The ponderous, fleeced-lined "flannels" which were almost universally worn in winter a generation ago belong in the limbo of sanitary discards along with pie for breakfast and featherbeds. Many modern doctors recommend the wearing of one light weight of underclothing all the year around. Many robust persons do this, and nearly always are exceptionally free from colds. If you do not feel equal to abolishing the biennial change entirely, at least postpone the fall event until the weather has turned cold to stay cold, and use always the lightest possible weight of underwear. Get over the idea that there is anything prudent or conservative about swathing your person in wool for the winter.

Having decided this question, the next one, say the national health officers, is to consider what zone of the earth you are going to live in this winter. You have been stewing and complaining in the heat all summer, now are you going to follow the American custom and rest and doze all winter?

There is no doubt but that Americans live in vastly overheated houses all winter, that they spend money to maintain the very temperatures which in summer sent them scurrying to mountains and beaches. A temperature of 85 degrees is by no means uncommon either in American homes or school rooms.

It would be interesting to trace the origin of this fondness for heat. In Europe, no such temperatures are maintained. Houses are seldom kept at more than sixty-five or seventy degrees in England, and American visitors almost find them uncomfortably chilly. It is probable that the great abundance of fuel in this country has much to do with it. The early American generally lived in a house or cabin that was somewhat draughty, and depended upon an immense open fire of logs to keep him warm. The wood pile became the chief source of comfort, and in rural districts today, a man's way of living is often estimated as much by the size of his woodpile as anything else. Generous, roaring fires, creating a luxurious, relaxing heat have become one of the American ideals of comfort. The great fires have been forced out to some extent by modern heating appliances; but the craving for high temperatures has survived them.

This self-indulgence of baking in an excessive heat does little harm to a hardy man, who leads an outdoor life all day, but when the high temperatures are brought into apartment houses, and other city homes where many people spend most of their time indoors, and into office buildings and school rooms, the effect is really serious. For these temperatures are enervating. They lack stimulus, they coddle the skin, making one more liable to take cold, while the breathing of overheated air is especially harmful.

In regulating the temperature of your house, you should not take comfort as the standard. What will feel comfortable to you, depends entirely upon what temperatures you have been accustomed to. A person who has always kept his room at eighty or higher will feel uncomfortable at seventy; while robust men who live a great deal out doors would find that temperature oppressive and sixty degrees quite comfortable. Anyone should be able to accustom himself to an indoor temperature of seventy degrees. The bracing weather of this time of the year, the temperature of a sunny mid-autumn day, is what we should try to reproduce in our houses, and not the enervating heat of summer.

High indoor temperatures are especially injurious to children. "A temperature higher than seventy degrees in a school room is worse than illiteracy," is the way Surgeon J. M. Eager of the Public Health Service, puts it. And yet, because the teacher feels chilly, children in American schools are often subjected to temperatures of eighty or even eighty-five degrees. It is not always the teacher or the school authorities that are primarily to blame either. Frequently, children coming from overheated homes complain of the cold school rooms, and are indignantly supported by their parents, who imagine that the atmosphere of seventy degrees means danger of pneumonia.

The subject can not be better summed up than in the following words written by Surgeon Eager:

"Moderate temperatures slightly inclined to coolness, promotes mental and bodily activity, and increase resistance to infectious disease. High temperatures induce bodily lasitude and mental dullness, with corresponding depression of health and resultant loss of appetite and low spirits. The antidote is sometimes sought in stimulating food and drink, with a sad train of troubles, such as dyspepsia and alcoholism. So one sort of intemperance is added to another—excess in drink to excess in heat."

The way to learn to like healthful temperatures is to cultivate their acquaintance out-doors. Vacation in crisp fall weather are much better than summer hammock-loafing. Learn the pleasure and stimulus of tramping against singing winds, and you will not crave high indoor temperatures.

There is one other tip worth taking about the regulation of temperature. Moist air feels warmer, and is more congenial, than cold air. You should regulate the humidity as well as the temperature in which you live. An open dish of water will supply the moisture which artificially warmed air often lacks.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Destroying the Foundation.

It is not surprising that men should go a step further after their efforts to destroy the foundations mentioned in my last letter, and try to destroy one that is a comfort to the Christian and is precious to the believers, the resurection of the body.

Revelation says it shall be, but philosophy, of the concord type, smiles contemptuously at the idea, nay rejects it with scorn and its adherent feel themselves insulted, that they are asked to accept what their vain hearts do not want to believe. Their will's are not ready to accept it, and their fine reason cannot understand. They prefer their own wisdom to that of God. They think they can sweep the whole doctrine aside, by simply saying it is impossible. It is unreasonable and so they try to measure the infinite with the finite, and the power of God by the standerd of their own minds. They can't see how God is going to watch over the particles of dust.

With God nothing is impossible. A magnet will select iron filings from rubbish. Can philosophy explain why a mineral will do this? It will not attract lead or gold. Suppose God should give to each soul the same power with reference to the elements of the former body, as He could, we must admit, then all difficulties would be removed. The principle of chemical affinity ought to silence the objection to the possibility of the resurection.

They think they have propounded an unanswerable objection when they say, if the race continues a few centuries longer, there would not be enough matter on the globe to reconstruct all the bodies of mankind, when the truth is there is enough in the atmosphere pressing on a very small space of the U. S. to do this.

There is about as much sense in the objection that the world would not afford standing room, when the truth is—as a simple calculation will show, that you could stand all in the state of Ohio, allowing two persons to the square yard, four generations to the century, one billion to the generation and count the world 6000 years old. God will call them forth, we cannot tell how.

It is too deep for the scientific dredge; too profound for philosophy but we believe it, because God tells us in His word, that we shall rise again. It is possible that the power of the Almighty is so feeble, that His ultimate designs are so circumscribed that the inventions of a poor liliputian intellect, the devices of human reason, or the objection of a self styled philosophy can throw them into confusion? "But why should it be thought incredible that God should raise the dead.

Philosophy and science falsely so called, join hands and say impossible! Shall our faith be shaken on that account? It is as great a miracle to regenerate a soul. It is not incredible. A servant stood before his master. In his hand he held a silver cup which he let fall into aqua forties. He contends that it cannot be restored, for you know the effect would be to dissolve the silver at once.

The master comes now upon the scene and infuse some salt water which precipitates the silver from solution. It is gathered again and melted over and then made into a cup, just like the originial one.

There will be a change in fitting us for the new sphere, which shall be adapted to its new conditions and suited to its new wants. But its identity will be destroyed.

A glance at nature ought to satisfy any honest mind. The tree whose leafless branches will sigh in the wind, whose trunk apparently dead will be lashed by wintry gusts, is the same one that was a little while ago clad in green and now in the lovely October, has put on garments of purple or orange, or a coat of many colors. It will be held in icy bands, but these will fall off and winters robe of white will give place to the velvet garments of spring. It is the same in all these circumstances.

When the arch angels trumpet sounds, the sleeping myriads come forth to newness of life with shining bodies like unto Christs. What an anthem will peal forth, as the mighty host falls before the throne crying. Thou art worthy. Yes, His redemption work is completed. The saint's victory is won for the soul, since death has rested in paradise with Jesus, will again be reunited with the body that slept in the dust of the earth, for ever more to be with the Lord.

The resurrection of the body is one of the fundamental doctrines of christanity.

We accept it as a matter of revelation. We believe it for the springtime comes as nature's evangelist illustrating, emphasizing and reminding us of this great doctrine. Faith bows to the declaration of an infallible inspiration and says we rest upon this. More anon.

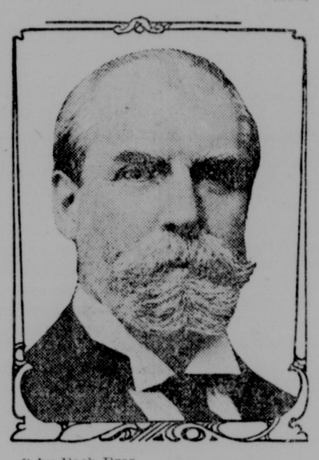
AMERICA NEEDS HUGHES

By THEODORE ROOSEVELT



© by Pach Bros.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES.

SINCE 1912 we have had four years of a policy which has been an opiate to the spirit of idealism.

It has meant the relaxation of our moral fibre.

A sordid appeal to self-interest and to fear has paralyzed the national conscience.

We have been told that Americans, if they do not wish to be killed, should keep off the ocean; that to save a few American lives it is not worth while to hazard the lives of American soldiers; that Mexicans should be allowed to spill blood to their hearts' content; that the European War is no concern of ours; that even as between Belgium and Germany we should be neutral not only in act but in sympathy!

Not once has President Wilson squarely placed before the American people the question which Abraham Lincoln put before the American people in 1860: what is our duty?

Not once has he appealed to moral idealism, to the stern enthusiasm of strong men for the right.

On the contrary, he has employed every elocutionary device to lull to sleap our sence of duty, to make us content with words, instead of deeds, to make our moral idealism and enthusiasm evaporate in empty phrases, instead of being reduced to concrete action.

AMERICA as a nation has been officially kept in a position of timid indifference and cold selfishness.

America, which sprang to the succor of Cuba in 1898, has stood an idle spectator to the invasion of Belgium, of the sinking of the Lusitania, of the continued slaughter of our own citizens, and of the reign of anarchy, rapine and murder in Mexico.

Nevertheless, I believe that the American people were ready for the same kind of appeal which was made to them by Abraham Lincoln in 1860, by the advocaes of an honest currency in 1890, by the advocates of the Spanish War in 1898, by the advocates of Nationalism in 1900.

But the appeal was not made.

On the contrary, Mr. Wilson invoked the spirit of timidity and selfishness. He made no effort to invoke the sense of duty.

He put "safety first," the immediate safety of the moment, to be obtained by shrinking from duty.

He did not even put American rights first, still less did he put American duty first.

His task was not an especially difficult or dangerous task; but it needed a brave heart and a steady hand.

Under this lead America could and should have put itself at the head of all the neutral nations by its example, if not by direct diplomatic agreements, in demanding that the war should be conducted in accordance with the usage of civilized nations, that international law should be observed, that the rights of neutrals and non combatants should be respected.

If this spirit had animated our administration there would probably have been no invasion of Belgium, no fears of a like fate to terrorize other smaller nations, no torpedoing of merchant vessels, no bombarding of churches and hospitals, no massacring of women and children, no murder of Miss Cavell, no attempted extermination of the Armenians and Syrian Christians.

WE cannot undo what has been done. But we can repudiate what has been done. We can regain our own self-respect and the respect of other nations for this country. We can put in power an administration which will throughout its term of power protect our own citizens and live up to our national obligations.

It is just that this nation should concern itself with its rights; but it is even more necessary that it should concern itself with its duties.

As between Mr. Hughes and Mr. Wilson, who can doubt which is the man who will, with austere courage, stand for the national duty?

Mr. Wilson's words have contradicted one another; and all his words have been contradicted by his acts.

Mr. Wilson's promise has not borne the slightest reference to his performance.

We have against him in Mr. Hughes a man whose public life is a guarantee that whatever he says he will make good, and that all his words will be borne out by his deeds.

Against Mr. Wilson's combination of grace in elocution, with futility in action; against his record of words unbacked by deeds or betrayed by deeds, we set Mr. Hughes' rugged and uncompromising straightforwardness of character and action in every office he has held.

We put the man who thinks and speaks directly, and whose words have always been made good, against the man whose adroit and facile elocution is used to conceal his plans or his want of plans.

The next four years may well be years of tremendous national strain.

Which of the two men do you, the American people, wish at the helm during these four years; the man who has been actually tried and found wanting, or the man whose whole career in public office is a guarantee of his power and good faith?

But one answer is possible; and it must be given by the American people through the election of Charles Evans Hughes as President of the United States.

WHITE PINE MENACED

Board of Forestry Cooperating With U. S. Bureau to Save Valuable Trees to Maryland

When it became evident in August that the White Pine blister rust, already so destructive in New York State and New England, might with considerable likelihood spread to the States farther South, the Maryland Board of Forestry immediately placed in the field a Forester from its office to honeycomb the State in collaboration with the U. S. Bureau of Plant Industry for early signs of this menace to the State's White Pines.

In this important and timely undertaking the State Forester has detailed E. R. Ford, Assistant Forester, to make a thoroug inspection of the whole State. Pine is susceptible of successful cultivation over the whole State, and by an examination of recent plantations, especially of imported stock, it may readily be ascertained whether the dreaded disease has already spread to this State. For it is of comparatively recent origin, having first been brought to America not many years ago on white pine seedlings from Europe.

The nisease spreads rapidly, has already done so over much of the northeast, in fact. In the spring the spores or seeds are blown by the wind from diseased pines to currant and gooseberry leaves, where they germinate, penetrate the leaf tissues, and produce a rust on the underside of the leaves in late summer and fall. The leaves of these common brushes produce millions of tiny spores or seeds, capable of infecting great quantities of these white pines. Once infected, the white pine does not recover.

Evidently the only certain way to circumvent the spread and contagion of this disease through development on its dual host would consist in the removal of all such berry bushes. In certain cases, however, this would undoubtedly work unnecessary hardship and inconvenience, and as yet this remedy seems barely necessary for Maryland. The State Board of Forestry and the U. S. Bureau of Plant Industry engaged with them will make a thorough survey of the existing situation, and are bending every endeavor toward preventing the inception of a blight so disastrous to a tree which may be grown with profit in the State.

TAFT EXCORIATES HIS SUCCESSOR

Former President Declares That the Passage Under Duress of the Adamson Bill Was One of the Greatest National Humiliations to Which Our Country Has Ever Been Subjected.

Declaring that the campaign of 1916 is as important as the campaign of 1896 and resembles that campaign in that the Democratic party and its candidate are seeking a vote of power for disingenuous, unsound, but alluring reasons, William H. Taft, former President of the United States, delivered the opening address of the New Jersey Republican state campaign at Trenton.

Mr. Taft said, in part:

The great public advantage in organization and combination of capital and of wage-earners we all recognize. The power they acquire may, however, become so great as to tempt to serious abuse and public injury, and they have done so. Hence, we have had the anti-trust law and the interstate commerce law, directed chiefly against combinations of capital but effecting in some measure combinations of labor. Labor leaders have sought exemption from such laws as a privileged class, and in some cases they have been successful. While Mr. Wilson in one of his memorandums attached to an appropriation bill avowed his opposition to such class legislation, he united with the Democratic Congress in passing, at the demand of the unions, the Clayton Act, which, the labor leaders claim, takes unions out of the limitations of the Trust Act.

Unwise subserviency to the demands of leaders of organized labor finds its crowning instance, however, in Mr. Wilson's dealing with the threatened strike of the Railway Orders of conductors, engineers, trainmen and switchmen. The Orders claim to control 400,000 men, who run the freight and passenger trains of the country, which constitute the arterial circulation of commerce, and are necessary not only to the business but to the health and life of the people. Were these men able to tie up the railways of the country, as they said they could and would, it would mean enormous loss in business, and great deprivation and suffering to the public. It would mean that many millions of other workmen would be thrown out of employment, and lose the high wages they are now receiving, because without commerce local industries cannot proceed. The Railway unions said to the railway president: "We wish an eight-hour day, with ten hours' pay, and if we work more than eight hours, we demand 50 per cent. more an hour for the extra hours. If you do not give us this, we will not only injure you, but we will bring disaster to the country." The railway managers refused the demand, but offered to submit it to arbitration. They said it would increase their cost of operation $60,000,000, and that this would have to come out of the pockets of the railway stockholders, by a reduction of profits, or out of the shipping public by an increase of rates. The labor leaders said they had had arbitration in the past and that it was not satisfactory, that now unless their demands were fully granted, no power under heaven could prevent the strike, with its disastrous consequences. Under the duress of the threat, the President of the United States and Congress of the United States succumbed. It was one of the greatest national humiliations to which the people of this country have ever been subjected. It struck most a blow at the principle of arbitration for the settlement of industrial disputes.

Mr. Wilson as a publicist attacked the enactment of a federal child labor law as an absurd extravagance, and a departure from constitutional limitations, and now within the last sixty days he has personally visited Congress to urge the adoption of exactly such a measure.

For the purpose of evading responsibility for present conditions, it is advanced in behalf of Mr. Wilson and the Democratic Administration that the conditions in Mexico were an inheritance from the last Administration. The last Administration did nothing to complicate Mr. Wilson's problems. Huerta had been twelve days in power when Mr. Wilson came in. Up to that time nothing had been done committing the government to one policy or another. Had the Republican Administration been continued, Huerta would have been recognized, but with only twelve days before the coming in of a new Administration it would have been entirely improper and inconsiderate for the outgoing Administration to commit the incoming to any policy on the subject. Mr. Wilson can not shift the blame for his blunders in Mexico. He had a clean slate upon which to write when he came in.

The President "has kept us out of war," but would you like to have him boss the job if some one should force war on us?

FINNEGAN'S PHILOSOPHY.

Purging the Heart.

"Yes sir. He's like the patriarchs. Which iv them? All iv them. He smites the Civil Service Rock and refreshin' jobs gushes foorth for thursty but dishurvin' Dimycrats. He blows on a horn an' ivrythin' falls for ut. If the people call him iver so soft, Little Samuel had no quicker ear. An' for sacryficin' what's dear to his heart, Abraham had nawthin' on him. Sure he is Dimocricy's shield an' exceedin' great reward.

"T'is his Presbytaryan bringin' up, I'm thinkin.' Furst he adopts a policy; thin he thries to justify it, thin he sanctifies it wid a phrase, while a choir iv Deshurvin Dimmycrats sings a hymn. An' there ye are. Justification, Adoption an' Sankty-ficashun.

"The choir med great harmony whin Jim Smith, George Harvey an' Billy Brine was all in ut. But wan be wan their v'ices cracked an' they passed out iv the life iv the great Idaylist.

Harvey wint back to editin' an' Bill Brine wint in search iv the Howly Kale. McCombs was canned, because him an' Billy McAdoo cuddent sing a duet, an' Oscar Underwood was weak on Tariff ragtime. But Wudthrow dicorated them all. Wid f'what say ye? Wid the Order iv the Double Cross. O—ho. I mind well the time at the Manhattan Clyb, whin he kissed Brine an' kicked Harvey wid wan motion. Now the choir has what Wudthrow calls 'the vital stuffs iv life.' Stone an' McAdoo; Danyiels an' Jim Ham Lewis wid Redfield for the high falsetto. Wudthrow sits wid his hands crossed while the stuffs sings songs iv praise, an' Col. House winds the Victhrola.

"Wudthrow is fond iv music, but Colonel House himself is the quiet man. Faith av he danced a Clog on a Washbiler ye'd niver hear a sound.

"Well, wan night in August the Colonel come tiptoein' in through the basement dure.

"'How's the game, Colonel?' says Wudthrow. 'So-so,' the Colonel says. 'Ye might round up a few more votes,' says he, scratchin' his ear wid an absent air.

"'Ain't I got the full dinner-pail's?' axes Wudthrow, anxious like. 'AL that's forgot the first two year and a half,' says House pleasantly. 'Ain't I kep' 'em out o' war?' axes Wudthrow. 'Part o' the time,' says House, rubbin' his left shin wid the felt-slipper on his right foot. 'Ain't my voice our greatest liquid asset?' axes Wilson earnestly. 'It's some voice,' says House, 'but a lot iv suckers can't tell a asset fr'm an li'bility,' the Colonel says.

"'F'what are ye drivin' at?' says Wilson, four flushing a little.

"'Arre ye watchin' the strike?' says House. 'Half a millyun votes might be useful,' says House, tiptoein' out through the dure, an' closin' ut behind him.

"Well, Sir, he left Wudthrow sunk in profound miditashun. At last he spakes. 'I hear,' he says, in a low sweet tone 'that v'ice iv the people, which is to me as the v'ice of a Carnegie Penshun.' 'Oh,' he says, thrillin' in ivry nerve, 'must I indade sacryfice wan more idol,' says he, 'on the altar iv me Counthry!' says Wudthrow.

"'Was not the Wan Turn Plank,' he says; 'an' the Sugar Tax,' he says; 'an' the Tariff for Rev-noo,' he says; 'an' all me friends, beside,' says he, 'sixteen per'fly good Mexican Policies—was not all thim enough?' he axes in agony. 'But I will purge me Heart iv ivry pers'nal thought,' says he, startin' for bed. An' before he retires he takes a Heart Purge iv his own invinshun the way it'll wurk while he sleeps. I dinnaw f'what the purge is. 'Tis a secret.

"In the morn he was puzzled. He wanted a gr-reat sacryfise of a pur-rinciple, dear to his heart, but he'd used most iv thim already, an' he felt that this was no time for second hand or slightly damaged sacryfises. So he sends for House. 'Colonel,' says he, "F'what pur-rinciple d'yr think wud be an' acceptable sacryfise in this gr-reat morel imarginey?" he axes anxiously.

"'Whisper,' says the Colonel. And he said wan wurd in Wudthrow's ear, and faded silently away through the dure.

"For wan instant Wudthrow stud spellbound. Thin he burrst into a whoop; 'The 'Ram in the Bushes,' cries he wid tears iv j'y.

"'Twas an impressive ceremony whin the sacryfise was solemny-ised at the Capitol.

"The procission started f'om the White House wid the Prisidint walkin' ahead carryin' the Ram in wan hand an' a box iv Safety-First matches in th' other. He was followed by a coon bearin' four gold pans, and behind came four Union Chiefs ridin' on milk white steeds followed be a group iv Railroad Prisidints, Stock Holders, Farmers, Shippers and Conshumers, loaded wid chains. After a short sermon to Congress on 'Purgin' the Heart,' the Prisidint laid the Ram on th' alter, an' imprissively stabbed it wid the four gold pens while the choir sang Holy, Holy, Holy. The Prisidint handed the gold pens to the four chiefs wid a bow; Jim Ham lit the wood an' wiped up the blood, an' the sacryfise was complete.

"'What was the Ram?' say ye. 'Twas a pet baste Wudthrow used to graze in the White House lawn. T'was th' Idol iv his heart. He named it Arbitrashun. It was the Ram, an' all the people was the goat."

Mr. Wilson has become so thoroughly neutral that he looks with grave suspicion on the American contention in any international dispute.

IT is not what Wilson has kept us out of but what he's got us into that counts at present.

ANOTHER thing you never hear of since the Democrats reduced the cost of living is the "baker's dozen."

THE President says he has no interest in any political party. "except as an instrument of achievement." If that's it, then how did he happen to select such a poor instrument as the Democratic party?

I PROPOSE that the Republican party as the national party, according to the constitution of the United States, within the national sphere, shall proceed wherever it is practicable, to build up and foster and encourage American enterprise, and open the doors wide for honest American achievement.

ADEQUATE preparedness is not militarism, It is the essential assurance of security. It is a necessary safeguard of peace." Candidate Hughes has left nothing to be said on this subject. He has snuffed out counter argument at the very outset.

WHAT would Hughes have done? Well, for one thing, he would not have spent $100,000,000 of the people's money in not getting Villa, and then abandon the "pursuit" to hold a New London conference on a $200,000,000 loan, while Villa jubilantly raids Chihuahua.

CHARLES E. HUGHES cannot get so far away from Washington that the men in charge of the chariot of government there do not feel the jolting of his criticisms. In fact, the Democratic leaders at the capital city show symptoms of sea-sickness from the way in which the ex-Justice of the Supreme Court has shaken them up. Mr. Hughes is pursuing the only proper method, which is first to take the deadwood out of the way so that the path to righteous and propitious government may be made clear.

MARYLAND IN NEXT CONGRESS

Maryland has, upon occasions, been referred to as one of the solid South states; meaning that Maryland is one of the states that never stops to reason why but always goes Democratic in the lurid way that Maine once went for Governor Kent. But, unless we are interpreting the signs wrong, Maryland is this year reasoning why and the bent that is going to show up in the election count is likely to have a Hughes ending to it. But how is Maryland going to line up in the next Congress? It there is to be a change in the administrative head of the government—and we believe it is written in the book of destiny that there is to be such a change—by the same token the change should be put in position to do things and to undo the things that have been wrongly done.

And Maryland should line up with the changed governmental control. Dr. France should be sent to the United States Senate to succeed Blair Lee and a solid Republican delegation should be sent to the House. Is the State of Maryland under any special obligations to go Democratic because of good things bestowed by the Wilson administration or by either of two Democratic Congresses? If so, what are those good things? As for Baltimore city, she has begged for a small crumb in the way of a short section channel appropriation and wasn't given the crumb. The city was deprived of the Reserve Bank in perversion of all the facts and circumstances bearing upon the question of locating this institution. The thirty-five-foot channel from which the city's commerce is now benefiting came through the square deal of a Republican Congress; This present Congress appropriated $42,000,000 for rivers and harbors, mostly for rivers upon which there is practically no commerce.

What does Baltimore city or the State of Maryland owe to Democratic control of the national government? Centered in and around Baltimore and scattered over the State of Maryland are thousands of manufacturing industries. Can this city, can this state, afford the risk of another four years under the handicap of a Democratic tariff? In less than three weeks Maryland should not only turn in its electoral vote for Hughes, but should send a solid Republican delegation to Congress—the Senator and the six Representatives. There's a reason why.—Baltimore Star.

ENTHUSIASTIC MASS MEETING

Was Held In Maryland Theatre, Oakland, Last Night.

Last night at the Maryland Theatre in Oakland a splendid audience, considering the state of weather then prevailing, greeted Dr. Joseph Irvin France, Republican candidate for the United States Senate; Frederick N. Zihlman, candidate for Congress from the Sixth District, and Hon. Willis L. Moore, former chief of the United States Weather Bureau, when these three gifted gentlemen addressed those who had assembled upon the issues of the present campaign, all of them delivering telling blows upon their opponents and the present Democratic administration.

The meeting was not only attended by the town people but many farmers and residents of towns located in other parts of the county were present to hear, and from the applause following and interrupting the remarks of the speakers it was evident that Garrett county is still true to the principles of the party of Lincoln and Grant.

Mr. Fred A. Thayer, of Oakland, presided and very happily introduced the speakers, the first of whom was Mr. Zihlman, who for an hour entertained an enthusiastic audience. He is quite popular in Garrett county and as he appeared upon the stage of the theatre he received an ovation, Mr. Zihlman's remarks were delivered with deliberation that stamped them as coming from a man honest in his convictions and imbued with the purpose to serve the people well should he be elected to the office he seeks. His talk was mainly upon the tariff issue and the claim made by the Democrats that Wilson has kept us out of war.

The address of Dr. France followed that of Mr. Zihlman and was upon and along the lines of national issues as was also that of Dr. Moore, who followed him. Dr. France is becoming well known in Garrett county and at the meeting last night it was evident that he made many friends.

Among those upon the platform during the speaking were Senator Speicher, former Senator Brown, County Chairman Peddicord, Committeemen DeWitt and Weitzell, W. A. Smith and others.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Aurora Band.

M'KINLEY'S WAR COST LESS BLOODSHED THAN WILSON'S PEACE

BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Under President McKinley we had a war with Spain. Under President Wilson we are assured that we had "peace" with Mexico. These are the words. Now for the deeds. During the war with Spain fewer Americans were killed by the Spainiards than have been killed by Mexicans during the present "peace" with Mexico. Let me repeat this. A greater number of Americans have been killed by Mexicans during these years, when we are officially informed that we have been at peace with them, than were killed by the Spaniards during our entire war with Spain. Moreover when the war with Spain was through, it was through. But peace stil continues to rage as furiously as ever in Mexico. Nor is this all. The instant effect of the outcome of the war with Spain was to put a stop to the dreadful butchery and starvation in Cuba and the Philippines, and the entry of both Cuba and the Philippines on a career of eighteen years of peace and prosperity such as they have never known before in all their checkered history. But during these three years of Mr. Wilson's "peace," the Mexicans themselves have been butchered by their own bandits steadily and without intermission; and Mexican women and Mexican women and children have died by thousands—probably by scores of thousands—of starvation, and of the diseases incident to starvation. In other words, Mr. McKinley's war cost less peace; and it reflected high honor on the American people; whereas Mr. Wilson's peace has been one of shame and dishonor for the American people, and one of ruin and bloodshed for the Mexicans.

DEATH COMES TO R. T. BROWNING

After An Illness of Several Weeks Dissolution Results.

In the death of Hon. Richard Thomas Browning, which occurred at his home on Fourth street in Oakland last Saturday evening, Garrett county has lost one of its best known and highest esteemed residents. Mr. Browning was taken ill early in August of the present year up to which time he had enjoyed most excellent health. His demise was the result of complication of diseases, which, coupled, with advancing years, failed to respond to treatment and he died as he had lived, a true man to every conviction. He was true to his friends, his country and his Maker.

Mr. Browning was a member of one of the poineer families of Western Maryland, being a grandson of the famous hunter of the Alleghanies, Meshack Browning, who, late ln life, wrote the story of his personal reminiscences during the days when this section was a vast wilderness, and which are set forth in an interesting and entertaining manner in the well known book "Forty-Four Years a Hunter." His father was William Browning, who was born in the famous Glade cabin, near McHenry, in 1804, and who was one of the leading men of his generation in this section and an important factor in local Democratic politics. He served two terms as county commissioner and was a justice of the peace for fifteen years. His mother was Elizabeth Anne, only daughter of James Drane, who moved from Prince George's county in the year 1800 and settled at Accident. She and William Browning were married in 1829, and lived on the old homestead at Sang Run, where the birth of Mr. Browning occurred on May 23, 1839, when he went to Missouri. In the fall of 1861 he returned home and on September 28, 1861, enlisted in the Union army with Company I, Second Maryland Infantry. He was gradually promoted until he was a sergeant, and was honorably discharged at New Creek, (now Keyser) W. Va., in February, 1864, re-enlisting soon thereafter in the same regiment, and was made second lieutenant of his company March 25, 1865. He was severely wounded by a musket ball at Lynchburg, Va., in June 1864, and after being in the hospital for several weeks, rejoined his regiment at Cumberland, and was finally mustered out of service at Baltimore, May 29, 1865.

At the close of the war Mr. Browning returned to Cumberland, and in the summer of 1869 settled on the Promised Land farm, near Oakland. Later he located on the Frank Sebold farm, near Johnstown, and in the fall of 1867, the family took up their residence on the Skyles homestead. About this time he was enrolling officer for the Maryland National Guard, and in 1868 was appointed deputy tax collector for Allegany county, in which capacity he served until 1871. In the spring of that year he came to Oakland, and six years thereafter was engaged in the hotel business and other enterprises, when he sold out again with the intention of moving west, but, owing to the poor health of Mrs. Browning, he yielded to her wishes and those of numerous friends, and remained in this county. The following two years he engaged in the mercantile business at Hutton, returning to Oakland in 1884 when he was appointed tax collector for this county.

Mr. Browning took a leading part in the formation of Garrett county out of the Western section of Allegany county, and it was largely through his efforts that the division of Allegany county was effected. The plan was strongly supported by the majority of the best people of this section, and no one perhaps was more generous in contributions of time, work and means to the furtherance of the desired object than he. A certain bitter sectional feeling was created by the opponents of the plan, and this was increased when the question of the location of the county seat came before the public, but this sentiment gradually died away, and at the present time is entirely forgotten.

In the fall of 1873, Mr. Browning was elected on the Democratic ticket to the House of Delegates, and during the succeeding winter an effort was made to re-open the question in regard to Oakland as the county seat by her opponents, by re-submitting the question to the people, and through the advocates of this measure eloquently and earnestly pleaded in its behalf, Mr. Browning succeeded in turning the tide back to the old channels and Oakland was saved.

In 1885 he was elected to the State Senate, serving three years, resigning his place in that honorable body in the spring of 1888 to accept the appointment of State inspector of mines for Allegany and Garrett counties, which office he acceptably filled for four years. At the close of this period he was appointed by Gov. Frank Brown Commissioner of Fisheries for the Western Shore, and later served as deputy fish commissioner with Chas. F. Brooke, Dr. J. W. Downey and Dr. J. H. Wade.

Mr. Browning was married on April 17, 1864, to Miss Harriet C. Twigg, of Cumberland, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Father Dolan in St. Patrick's Catholic church, that city. This union was blessed by the birth of two sons and six daughters, the following of whom, with their mother survive:

Mrs. P. J. Garrett, of Deer Park, Sister Maria Teresa, of Philadelphia, Richard S. of Spokane, Wash., Miss Nell, of Cleveland, Ohio, Miss Margaret, of Oakland and R. Getty, of Baltimore. Two daughters, Mrs. R. K. Maroney and Mrs. N. R. Sanner both of Oakland preceeded him in death.

His funeral took place on Tuesday morning from St. Peter's Catholic church after High Requiem mass conducted by the pastor, Rev. James E. Connell, and the remains were interred in the local Catholic cemetery.

COUNTY GAME LAWS

State's Attorney Jones Gives Information On This Subject.

Inasmuch as there have been a number of inquiries concerning the game laws of this year and there seems to be some uncertainty concerning the same, I wish to state for the benefit of all interested that there has been no practical change from the law in force last year.

The Act of 1914, which made it unlawful "at any time to sell or expose for sale in Garrett county, or ship or transport out of Garrett county, any pheasant, partridge or quail, woodcock or wild turkey," is still in force. Likewise the provision that rabbits may be sold and shipped out of the county during the continuance of the game season provided they are shipped openly with their hind legs tied together and tagged.

The Act of 1916 with regard to the hunting season is as follows:

"No person shall shoot, trap, catch or kill, or gun, or hunt for any partridge or quail, English or Mongolian pheasant, American pheasant, dark neck Bohemian pheasant, pheasant or ruffled grouse, rabbit, wild turkey, woodcock or deer within the State of Maryland between the 24th day of December and the 10th day of November in any year, exclusive of both dates; nor shall any person shoot, kill or hunt for any squirrel between the 24th day of December and the 25th day of August, or between the first day of October and the 10th day of November in any year, both dates exclusive. Nor upon Sunday or when the ground is sufficiently covered with snow to track the birds or game above mentioned. And there shall be a daily closed season on all the above mentioned game birds and game animals, with the exception of rabbits, between sunset and sunrise."

By another provision the season for deer is closed until 1922.

State's Attorney.

MR. WILSON'S WARS.

President Wilson is running on the platform "he kept us out of war." This claim is based on a half-truth, a pettifogging quibble, It is true that since Mr. Wilson has been in office Congress has not formally declared war against any foreign nation. But the President has, on his own initiative repeatedly engaged in war, without calling it war. In two instances (when he seized Vera Cruz in 1914 and again when he invaded Chihuahua in 1916). Congress gave an ex-post facto approval to his military expeditions and authorized him to employ the armed forces of the United States on foreign soil. Those who say that Mr. Wilson "kept us out of war" haggle over definitions. Mr. Wilson has four times prosecuted by force in foreign territory what he considered the rights of the United States—once in Hayti, once in the Dominican republic, and twice in Mexico.

Notice to Subscribers.

Beginning November 1st, 1916, the subscription price of The Republican will be advanced from $1.25 per year to $1.50 per year. This advance in price is made unwillingly by the publisher, but at the same time it is absolutely necessary by reason of the fact that every single item going into the making of a newspaper, including inks, paper and fixed charges has so advanced that the present subscription price of $1.25 per year is much less than the cost of production.

News print paper has advanced from $2.40 per hundred pounds to $7.00 per hundred pounds, while inks have advanced from 6 cents per pound to 15 cents per pound within the past six months. It was the hope of the management that prices would become normal and this advance in the price of subscription would not be necessary; but instead indications are that all material will become higher.

Anyone desiring to pay their subscription in advance prior to November 1st may do so at the present rate for a period of not more than one year. All subscriptions that are now paid in advance will be continued the full time paid for. All subscriptions in arrear must be promptly settled as we cannot longer carry delinquents.

BLOOMINGTON

Mr. Harry Kight, store manager for the Monroe Coal Mining Co., at Barnum, is back home from a business trip to Baltimore city. He was accompanied by Mr. Kirby Dellinger, manager of the store for the Garrett Coal Co., at Dodson, and was on the occasion of their annual fall trip to the East to lay in their supplies of merchandise for the fall and winter season. The journey was made in Mr. Kight's Hudson Super Six and although not a speed test by any means remarkably fast time was made on the way to the city. The party left Cumberland on last Monday morning at 7:30, arriving in Baltimore at 12:30, covering the distance in 5 hours, considerably better than the fastest train over the B. & O. The trip to the city and return was made without a single mishap of any kind, the only stops being made for oil and gas.

Postmaster Stump and family, County Commissioner Geo. Warnick and family, accompanied by his brother, Mr. Truman Warnick, of Cleveland, journeyed to Burlington. Mr. F. H. Tibbetts, wife and daughter Isabelle, accompanied by States Attorney Tyler of Mineral county, took dinner at Martinsburg. The horses escaped from pasture and had been grazing in the woods for three or four days and when found were too sick to drive home and died shortly afterward. It is thought the animals got hold of poison that had been scattered in the woods for sheep killing dogs.

RUMANIAN ARMY FALLING BACK

Make Stubborn Resistance to Austro-German Forces in Transylvania

VIOLENT INFANTRY FIGHTING

London.—Steadily the pressure of the Austro-German forces is compelling the Rumanian troops who invaded Transylvania less than eight weeks ago, to fall back upon or toward their own frontier. In Eastern Transylvania, north of Kronstadt, Berlin reports additional territory free of Rumanians. Southeast of Kronstadt the Austro-Germans have also been successful against the invaders. The Rumanians, however, are offering stubborn resistance. Bucharest reports the repulse by them of attacks on the frontier of Southern Transylvania.

Violent infantry fighting continues on the Carso front, in the Austro-Italian theatre, with further successes for the Italians. In the vicinity of Gorizia, and to the south of this region, they have repulsed heavy Austrian counter attacks, inflicting heavy casualties, and east of Doberdo have approached the second Austrian line, taking 400 prisoners.

Vienna admits the loss of the town of Novavas, but announces that the Austrians put down Italian attacks at other points on the Carso Plateau and made 2,700 men prisoner. In the Pasubio region of the Trentino sector some additional gains in ground are claimed by the Italians.

The French and British have been repulsed in a new attempt to break through the German lines between the Ancre and the Somme rivers in France. The British attacked in the district around Gueudecourt and the French near Sailly, but neither was able to pierce the defense of the Germans, although London claims a slight advance near Gueudecourt. South of the Somme stubborn fighting is still in progress at Genermont and Ablaincourt.

In Macedonia the Entente offensive apparently has come to a halt. British advance guards have been active east of the Struma, but on the remainder of the front there has been little activity. A belated report from Sofia records the repulse of six Serbian attacks at Skochivir, on the Cerna River.

TEUTONS PRESS RUMANIANS.

London.—Continued successes of the Teutonic forces in Transylvania were reported from Berlin and Vienna, the Rumanians, it is asserted, having been driven to retreat both east and south. In the latter region the Teuton advance is now within seven miles of the Rumanian frontier. Bucharest, however, declares that the Germans and Austrians are still being held from strong positions in certain sections.

The Teutonic campaign is apparently something of a race against time in competition with the advance of the forces of the Entente forces in Macedonia. The former, if swiftly continuing its success, would have the effect of relieving the sorely pressed Bulgarians in Macedonia, since it would serve to release Bulgarian forces in the Dobrudja and on the Rumanian border along the Danube for service in Macedonia.

Meanwhile the British, Serbian and Franco-Russian armies in Macedonia are continuing their forward movement. The latest reports from the Saloniki front state that the British have pushed forward on a twenty-mile front toward the railway from Seres to Rupel, with the capture of two additional villages, and are now within three miles of this railroad.

On the western end of the Macedonia front, in the general campaign to re-enter Serbia by way of Monastir, the Serbians are settled on the northern bank of the Tcherna river, to the southeast of Monastir, and have captured the village of Skochivir. The Serbians are now within six miles of Mosastir. The Franco-Russian troops have pressed forward to the new Bulgarian line from Kenali to Lake Presba, on the western side of the Tcherna valley and to the southwest of Monastir.

HIGH PRICE DUE TO DEMOCRATS

Promised Lower Cost of Living, But It Has Gone Up.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 17—"The high price of gasoline, which affects the owner of every automobile in the country as well as all business houses which use gasoline trucks; the high price of print paper, which has affected every newspaper and publication in the United States, particularly the owners of the smaller newspapers; the high price of binder twine which is costing the farmers millions of dollars—all these increased expenses affecting millions of our citizens and costing them billions of unnecessary expense, is due to the Wilson administration and the Democratic party, "declared Representative Halvor Steenerson, of Minnesota, in a statement here today.

"The Democratic party promised economy and gave us extravagance. It promised lower cost of living but it has gone up and is still going up. It promised to curb monopoly but the Democrats have pulled the teeth out of the anti-trust law by the Clayton act to such an extent that we are now in the grip of some of the most rapacious trusts in the world.

"When I sought to get the Government to prosecute them for violating the anti-trust law the Department of Justice could not find sufficient evidence, although the Secretary of the Interior, the Bureau of Mines, and the Federal Trade Commission investigated the subject and reported there was no natural or economic cause for the increase in prices and it must be due to monopolization.

"The paper trust has gradually raised the price of paper so that settlers who furnish the pulp wood have been paid the same old price but the manufacture has doubled the selling price.

"The latest product of Democratic legislation and policy, the binder twine trust—the Commission del Mercado de Henequin Reguladora of Yucatan—controls absolutely the world's sisal supply out of which binder twine is made. This trust was organized by the military governor of Yucatan and was approved by Carranza. It was financed in the United States with approval of the State Department. Norman Lind, whose father, John Lind, was sent as President Wilson's 'personal representative' to Mexico is its American representative. This trust has already doubled the price of binder twine. In the state of Minnesota alone it has raised the price from 3½ cents to 7 cents and refuses to quote prices for next season lower than 10 cents. Minnesota farmers use approximate y 25,000,000 pounds of twine annually, and this means an extra tax of at least ten cents an acre or more than a million dollars on the farmers of this one state. This money, wrung from American farmers, will not go to the peons of Yucatan in increased wages but to Carranza. It will help him buy more arms and ammunition with which to murder Americans.

"The Democratic party has imposed extra taxes on the people amounting to $600,000,000 per annum. They have created more than 35,000 new offices, involving a permanent burden on the tax payers of $4,000,000 per annum.

"They are great for economy when out of office, but in power they are more than extravagant—they are profligate."

Watch For Bands On Wild Ducks

If you kill or capture a wild duck bearing an aluminum band around one leg, having a number on one side, and on the other a statement requesting that the United States Department of Agriculture, or the Biological Survey, be notified, you are requested to send this band at once to the Bureau of Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. This band, if accompanied by a statement as to date, place, and circumstances under which the bird was taken, will be of service to the Survey in its efforts to determine the longevity of individual ducks and the routes of migration of the species. The bands are being attached to considerable numbers of wild duck of several species which have been cured of the duck sickness prevalent around Great Salt Lake, Utah, and there released. The department is particularly anxious to secure reports from these birds to determine their complete recovery from this malady which has killed hundreds of thousands of ducks in Utah.

O. H. S. Notes.

The teachers of the school have arranged to have a professional meeting, at least once a month, throughout the school year. At these meetings methods of teaching and pedagogical questions will be discussed. The first meeting will be on October 26, at the Oakland High School building at 7:30 p. m. The subject for discussion is "The Question Method of Teaching." The first part of the hour will be devoted to a discussion of the subject by Prof. Bender. The remainder of the time will be given over to general discussion.

A cordial invitation is extended to the Oakland Grammar School teachers, and all other teachers in the vicinity of Oakland, to meet at the High School at the time stated and take an active part in the discussion. It is hoped that the meetings will be of mutual benefit to all teachers.

Charles and William Garrett were absent several days from school on account of the death of their grandfather, Mr. Richard T. Browning.

Winifred Weimer and Carrie Mann spent Saturday and Sunday at Deer Park as the guests of Carol Miller.

Ara Peddicord spent Friday as the guest of friends at Selbysport, Md.

The Senior class is preparing a play, entitled "At the End of the Rainbow," which is to be given about Thanksgiving time. The proceeds are to be used to purchase books for the school library.

The Junior Civic Club, recently organized and under the supervision of Mrs. Elwood Offutt, meets Friday afternoons at 5, in the First National Bank building. Juniors and Seniors are cordially asked to join the class. Starting two weeks ago at New York, the object of the class is to make a study travel tour of foreign countries, visiting Old and Modern England, Romantic Scotland, France, Belgium, Germany, up the Rhine to Switzerland and Italy, studying their antiquity, government, people, literary heroes, architecture and all things which will be of mental, moral and material benefit.

Friday afternoon the class takes up the study of London, "the greatest city in the world." Its antiquity, most impressive, dates back two thousand years, will furnish us proofs of the great achievements of human thought.

Finishing each country, the plan is to review each point of interest with a carefully selected lot of colored slides, with a prepared lecture, and in all probability this lecture will be open to the public in order to cover the expense.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mr. Lee Hayden, and family, of Mountain Lake Park, spent Sunday in Westernport, as the guest of Mrs. Heyden's Mother, Mrs. Walter Waldie.

Mrs. Mae E. Crane, of Somers, New York, has purchased the Hopkins cottage and will greatly improve it for next summer's use.

The electric light plant closed down Thursday night. The lantern brigade is now moving about.

Mrs. Dr. Eiler, of Cumberland, has purchased the Miller bungalow and will improve it quite considerably. The Doctor is meeting with considerable success in the Park professionally.

Burning leaves, cleaning out gutters, and getting things in shape for the winter is occupying the attention of our people.

Mr. Wilson's reduction in the cost of living has not reached this locality, but on the other hand, there is an increase right along. A loaf of bread, 20 ounces, 10 cents; peck of potatoes 35 cents; sack flour $1.35. The indications are that everything will go up to the top notch before the winter is over. The wise man will lay in a supply for that day.

Mrs. Rockhold, of Baltimore, is visiting her sisters, the Misses Hamill at "The Eberlon." The sisters went to Fairmont, W. Va., Saturday to visit their sister, Mrs. Homer Smouse, returning to the Park Sunday night.

Adam Long has returned from Speers, Pa., satisfied that Garrett county is good enough for anybody.

You have a special invitation to attend preaching in the Methodist church next Sabbath morning and evening.

The new road is open to the Park. Everybody is pleased. It is a good job. Let the good work continue.

Mountain Lake Park Hotel has a good week end business. Sunday several automobile parties dined at the hotel.

Fourteen or fifteen summer people are here but they will leave very shortly. The Mountain Lake Hotel will be open for two or three weeks longer.

Mrs. Paul Lee Murkland, of Beloit, Wisconsin, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wilson L. Camden, at her summer home at Mt. Lake Park.

MR. HUGHES.

Where Mr. Hughes goes it has been arranged by the Democratic campaign managers that a set of 10 questions shall precede him. They are claptrap political questions, designed to put Mr. Hughes in a hole whichever way he answers them or is silent regarding them. We quote the most significant:

Would you have made the [Lusitania] disaster the subject of diplomatic negotiations or would you have broken relations with Germany at once?

As matters stand today, would you be in favor of intervening in Mexico?

Mr. Hughes has spoken here in Baltimore. He spoke to one of the greatest, one of the most curious, most attentive and earnest political gatherings Baltimore has ever seen. He reviewed in broad perspective the work of this present Administration, and he analyzed the directions in which it is carrying, or tending to carry, the nation. He was constantly interruped by applause. But at one point his audience did not stop short with applause. He said one thing that brought 17,000 people to their feet, and that one thing was a simple, honest, unequivocal pledge that, if elected President, he will make it his paramount business to protect American rights.

Those 17,000 people know that all the answer called for by those questions has been given.

They were satisfied by his answer. They know that underneath all the froth of particularized issues and happenings of the last four years there is awaiting settlement at the polls four weeks hence a question that reaches deep into the matter of our national life, our self-respect as a nation and the respect of other nations for us. There could be no higher constructive effort on the part of a candidate than Mr. Hughes made in this speech, when he so ruthlessly analyzed the courses by which this Administration has broken down national purpose and national spirit and tradition, and pleaded so earnestly for a return to the recognition of the ordinary functions and obligations of a government in safe-guarding the interests and lives of its nationals.

Mr. Hughes made in this speech no statement as of fact that has been or can be honestly disputed. He laid bare the miserable history of four years. We need ask no man to vote on Mr. Hughe's interpretation of the record. But every man who votes at all must vote on the record. The question is not whether we shall risk another four years of similar history making. It is whether the American nation is so far astray, so forgetful of its meaning as a nation, as formally to vote its indorsement and approval of such conditions and policies as Mr. Hughes outlined and to incorporate them in its charter of national existence and purpose.—Baltimore News.

PRESIDENT WILSON says that having been a lawyer, he can "divide a hair 'twixt north and northeast side." We knew he could. He did it when he split fine distinctions to justify his violation of the single-term pledge. He split some mighty fine foreign countries that defiantly trespassed upon our rights. He split a hair every time he appointed a commission that was required to be bi-partisan. He has split many a hair in order to place deserving Democrats in office in violation of the spirit of the civil service law. When it comes to dividing hairs, whether between north and northeast, or between south and southwest, as Samuel Butler expressed it, Wilson has few peers and no superiors. The pity of it is that by precept and practice he teaches the young men and women of the country that it is wise and proper policy to take advantage of technical distinctions whenever self interest makes it expedient.

KILLED SUNDAY NEAR DENVER

Francis DeSales Browning, of Garrett County, Met Sudden Death.

Francis DeSales Browning, aged about thirty years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ramsey Browning, of near Oakland, was instantly killed on Sunday last at a point near Denver, Colorado, by being thrown from a motorcycle he was riding.

Details of the death of the young man are lacking the only information obtainable being through a telegram received Monday in which it was stated the fact that he had been killed as above.

The young man left Garrett county some years ago and went west, returning home a few weeks ago where he made his parents a visit and then went to Denver, having been there about three weeks.

His remains are now on the way east and are expected to arrive here this morning. The funeral will occur today, should there be no delay in the trains, with interment at Hoyes.

Child Scalded.

The three-year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Green, who reside on a farm a few miles west of Lonaconing in Garrett county, was very severely scalded Monday when it fell into a tub of hot water that had been placed on the floor of the home for scrubbing purposes. The child is in a serious condition, having been severely scalded about the limbs and body.

BARN BURNED MONDAY NIGHT

Building on Farm of Mr. Nelson Custer Entirely Consumed.

Monday night about eleven o'clock the barn on the farm of Nelson Custer, which is located about three miles from Oakland and formerly was the property of James Smith, was burned to the ground along with its contents, consisting of about twenty tons of hay, a large lot of corn and buckwheat as well as a stack of straw in the barnyard, and farming machinery.

A report was in circulation Tuesday morning that an unrecognized man had been observed by a neighbor crossing a field from the direction of the building and that an attempt was made to catch him, but he made his escape. In a very few minutes thereafter the structure was in flames and all efforts on the part of the tenant on the farm assisted by neighbors who had been attracted by the blaze were futile in putting the fire out.

Acting upon the information he had received concerning the actions of the stranger about the premises Mr. Custer secured a pair of bloodhounds and they were taken to the site of the burned building Tuesday afternoon but nothing that would lead to a trail was discovered by the dogs and they were brought back to Oakland shortly afterward.

The building was insured for about $400 and the contents for $200, which will not cover the loss, Mr. Custer placing a value upon the barn and grain at $1200.

185 Bakers Fail.

Curtailments of profits because of the increase in the cost of wheat and flour was instrumental in causing 185 bakers of the United States to fail in business during June, July and August. This is shown in figures compiled by the National Association of Bakers through trade channels and made known a few days ago.

MAKING STRENUOUS CAMPAIGN

Senator Zihlman Is Doing Splendid Work Here.

Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, congressional candidate on the Republican ticket in the sixth district is on a final canvas of his district. He is beginning on the crest of the Alleghenies here in Garrett county and his campaign schedule calls for a meeting of one sort or another every day until election day and includes a visit to every outpost village, town and city in Western Maryland.

His Garrett itinerary included meetings both afternoon and evening at Sang Run, Jennings, Grantsville, Bittinger, Accident, Friendsville, Swanton, Kitzmiller, Deer Park and Crellin, at which two latter points he will speak Friday. Thursday afternoon he will likely go to Frederick county to address a rally there, coming back to Deer Park and Crellin on Friday. Saturday and Monday and Tuesday of next week he will spend in Washington county.

In Crellin there are 108 registered voters, 102 of whom are affiliated with the Republican party and a straw vote in the town showed the 102 will vote solid for the straight Hughes-France Zihlman ticket.

Similar conditions exist all over the sixth. Normally a Republican district the strength of the ticket and the party harmony which exists makes it overwhelmingly Republican and tremendous majorities are predicted for all the candidates. In Garrett county, Senator Harvey Speicher, one of Mr. Zihlman's opponents for the nomination, assures his colleague Garrett will give Hughes, France and Zihlman over 800 majority. The Garrett Republican committee, as the committee in all the other counties, has been doing effective campaign work despite the assured outcome and the party showed a net gain in the affiliated majority at the recent registration of 108 votes. This makes the Republican book majority in Garrett 1200 and with a united party and personally popular candidates the majority is apt to vote like a phalanx for the candidates.

All of those who sought the nomination with Senator Zihlman are working hard for his election. Gist Blair, in Montgomery and Leo Weinberg, in Frederick, are doing effective work. J. Frank Ridenour, chairman of the Washington county Republican committee, predicts the party majority in Washington will not be under 600.

In Allegany the party leaders say they can not remember when a campaign ran more smoothly than the present. The affiliated Republican majority was increased by good work before the registration 244 making a total book majority of 3288. Every faction has united behind the straight Republican ticket. Zihlman's popularity of course will get him many Democratic votes but sentiment in the sixth on national issues has a decided Republican trend too, and Hughes and France will draw heavily on the sparse Democratic affiliation.

The vote in the sixth is largely divided into two classes, the farm and the labor vote. The farmer is from the pioneer stock of Maryland, descendants of the cresap and "Too Proud To Fight" has no merry symphonies for them. The laborer feels the pinch of the high cost of living and the slim pay envelope. Even the railroad men manifest little interest in the Wilson condidacy. War prosperity has not effected the mines or the railroad shops or lumber camps. Hundreds of young men have left the district to work in munition factories. Mindful of this Western Maryland, it is predicted, will return one of the banner majorities of the nation for the straight Republican ticket.

Taken to Cumberland Hospital.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Hervey Smouse, of near Oakland, was taken to a hospital in Cumberland in the Bolden ambulance for treatment. Mrs. Smouse was accompanied by her physician, Dr. Darby, and by her husband.

SEED POTATOES PRIZES AWARDED

First Annual Exhibit of Western Md. Growers Held in Frostburg.

The first annual potato exhibit of the Western Maryland Seed Potatoe Growers Association was held at the Citizens National Bank, Frostburg, yesterday. There were thirty exhibits of seed potatoes raised from prize winning seeds that were distributed among the members of the association last year. The exhibits were judged by Prof. C. E. Temple, of the Maryland Agricultural College, and the prizes awarded by the Citizens National Bank were as follows:

For Irish cobbler seed potatoes, first prize, James A. Morgan, Carlos; second prize, H. P. Miller, Garrett county; third prize, Bradford Blocher, Garrett county.

Green Mountain seed potatoes, first prize, Cecil Michael, Garrett county; second prize, James A. Morgan, Carlos; third prize, Robert Tenhant, Vale Summit.

Twenty-five dollars for the yield of not less than one acre showing the highest percentage of plants free from disease at the time of the second inspection was awarded to Earl Michael, of Garrett county.

The prizes for Irish Cobblers and Green Mountains were $6, $4 and $2.50 respectively, for the first, second and third awards in each class.

The exhibits attracted a great deal of interest among the members and was a big success. The result of the competitive planting, the farmers stated, tended materially to a better crop.

Forty years ago in Garrett county Philip C. Myerly addressed each political meeting in the interest of Louis E. McComas, Republican candidate for Congress, in German.

23 YEAR OLD MAN HAS PARALYSIS

Two New Cases of Disease, One of Which Proves Fatal.

Two new cases of infantile paralysis in Garrett county has been reported by the health office, one of the victims being John Edgar, aged 23 years, married and the father of one child, and the other a five-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brandt, the latter dying on Tuesday after an illness of about forty-eight hours.

Mr. Edgar lives at a point midway between Deep Creek and McHenry on the State road and was stricken with the plague on Monday. Tuesday his physician, Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, was called and found that the patient was entirely helpless, both arms and both legs being affected.

The Brandt family also reside in the same section of the county and the death of the child came sudden and unexpected. Its funeral occurred the day of its death.

PROCLAMATION

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF MARYLAND CREATING A BUDGET SYSTEM.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1916, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 159 of said Acts, being an Act to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State; and which said Act is in words and figures following:

"CHAPTER 159.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, regulating the making of appropriations by the General Assembly of Maryland in regular session, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two houses concurring.) That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 52 of Article III of the Constitution of Maryland.

Sec. 52. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the Treasury except in accordance with the following provisions:

Sub-Section A:

Every appropriation bill shall be either a Budget Bill, or a Supplementary Appropriation Bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B:

First. Within twenty days after the convening of the General Assembly (except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within thirty days after his inauguration), unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the Budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any suggestion as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first part shall be designated "Governmental Appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the Executive Department; (3) for the Judiciary Department, as provided by law, certified for the Governor by the Comptroller; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of the debt of the State of Maryland in conformity with Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the establishment and maintenance throughout the State of a thorough and efficient system of public schools in conformity with Article VIII of the Constitution and with the laws of the State; for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution of the State.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill." The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect either the obligations of the State under Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, or the provisions made by the laws of the State for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, or the payment of any salaries required to be paid by the State of Maryland by the Constitution thereof; and the General Assembly may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly; and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein, provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be decreased during his term of office; and such bill when and as passed by both houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor.

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or supplying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either house of the Legislature, it shall be their duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section C: Supplementary Appropriation Bills:

Neither house shall consider other appropriations until the Budget Bill has been finally acted upon by both houses, and no such other appropriation shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following: (1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purdose therein stated and called herein a Supplementary Appropriation Bill; (2) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said Bill. (3) No Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of a majority of the whole number of the members elected; and the yeas and nays recorded on its final passage; (4) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said Section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the Legislature from passing at any time in accordance with the provisions of Section 28 of Article III of the Constitution and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Maryland within the protection of Section 10 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D: General Provisions:

First. If the Budget Bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such Bill; but no other matter than such Bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second. The Governor for the purpose of making up his budgets shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper State Officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative offices, bureaus boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for State moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. The estimates for the Legislative Department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the Judiciary, as provided by law, certified by the Comptroller, and for the public schools, as provided by law shall be transmitted to the Governor, in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget without revision.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and of all institutions applying for State moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments, and for public schools as provided by law.

Third. The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this Section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out it provisions.

Fourth. In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this Section and any other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this Section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 34 of Article III of the Constution or of any laws heretofore or hereafter passed in pursuance thereof, or be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by Section 16 of Article II, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this Section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the Bill or of any other item of such Bill or Bills.

Section 2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing Section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next ensuing general election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, being the Presidential and Congressional, election, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in conformity with the directions contained in Article XIV of this State, and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be placed the following synopsis of said amendment under the caption of 'CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR A BUDGET.'

"This amendment provides that the Governor shall present to the Legislature soon after it is convened a Budget giving a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the two succeeding fiscal years showing clearly any surplus or deficit in State funds. In these estimates he shall make provision for the interest and sinking funds of all State debts, for all salaries as fixed by law, and for the public schools as fixed by law. With regard to most other matters he may revise the estimates presented to him either by State Officers or State aided institutions. The Legislature may not increase the estimates presented by the Governor or pass any additional appropriation act except by a majority vote and must make provision by tax for such increase or additional appropriation. The Legislature may not alter in any appropriation act the provision made by law for the State debt, or for the judiciary, but may reduce all other items in the Governor's estimates; and the words 'for the Constitutional Amendment' and 'against the Constitutional Amendment' as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote in accordance with Article XVI of the Constitution.

Approved March 28, 1916."

Now, therefore, I, Emerson C, Harrington, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct a copy of this Proclamation, containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 159 of the Acts of Maryland of 1916, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which said newspapers in the City of Baltimore to be printed in the German language, once a week for three months next preceding the General Election to be held in this State on November 7th, 1916, and at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted, in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

MAKING MARYLAND WOODLOTS PAY

State Forester Gives Plan for Improving Woodlands and Selling Forest Products.

For sometime the State Forester of Maryland has cooperated with local owners in devising and executing a plan for not only conserving the forest resources of their lands and farms but doing so with a profit. Nothing, forestry included, can long be practiced at a loss, and recognizing this, a plan was made and offered to the people of the State which met not only the needs of the woodland, but the financial needs of the owner. An instance will explain.

The holder of a hundred-acre tract of timber less than ten miles from Baltimore City requested the Forester, late last winter, to make a preliminary examination for the land in question with an eye to laying out some practical plans of improvement. The examination was made, and a plan prepared for the handling of the woodlands. This plan was adopted by the owner and in March an Assistant Forester from the Board of Forestry went over the tract, marking the trees to be cut, estimating values and carrying out in detail the work recommended. The timber was, as a whole, mature, and intermingled with it was a considerable growth of other species with little present, and no future, value. This latter included some little scrubby pine, gum, maple and the like; in brief, "weed trees" which needed to be thoroughly removed to give the room to the other better trees, then needed for their best development and growth.

Among the better species, also, some cutting was indicated, this being done by a blaze upon the trunk of the tree, several feet above the ground, and another, stamped with the letter "M" farther down, near the stump, where it would be left after the tree was cut to show that only marked trees had been removed by the purchaser. The work was done by the Forester; to estimate, tally, and indicate the trees to be marked; and two assistants, who had to mark and measure them. Young, thrifty, trees of the better kinds were left to perpetuate the stand, and the mature specimens were removed, together with those over-mature defective, diseased, or undesirable in any way. Several large seed-trees were also left per acre.

The work was done a little faster than 35 acres per day, and the total cost to the owner, for his 100 acres of timber, was $20. This included all of the field work, and that only, as the data is worked out in the Forester's office at no additional cost. The estimated value of the standing timber was $1,772.04, and bids were solicited from lumbermen of the vicinity. To aid in this, memeographed statements of the timber for sale were furnished to the owner, together with a list of lumber dealers to whom they should be sent. The timber was sold almost immediately, and cutting started with the beginning of summer. The price secured was $1,800, which was slightly above the estimated value, enough to more than cover the entire cost of the work—$20. It would seem that there was considerable clear profit.

When the work is done, a young, growing forest will be left, and another tract of timber of valuable character will in a comparatively short time succeed that removed. Such work pays-pays in timber, pays in the future of the forest, pays inpresent revenue. It is work available to all in Maryland, and the State Forester, at 532 North Howard St., Baltimore, is prepared with a corps of trained Foresters to give prompt assistance.

JENNINGS

The potato crop is the smallest this year it has been for a number of years. Potatoes are selling right out of the patch for $1.00 per bushel. Apples are a pretty fair crop. The farmers are not near done picking winter apples yet. The cider and applebutter factory is snowed under with bags of apples, which the farmers have hauled in to get manufactured into cider and applebutter.

Mrs. L. A Durst, who was operated on for rupture at the Miner's Hospital, Frostburg, is convalescing. She returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Hampton Butler is undergoing a second operation in the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland.

Russell Stark, son of Chas. Stark, was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital to be operated upon for appendicitis.

George Hoover sold two Fords last week.

The pentecostal movement is gaining ground rapidly. They have prayer meeting three or four times a week at Rev. McCauley's residence. Mrs. McCauley is a good leader in prayer meeting.

Rev. Carder, pastor of M. E. charge did not return here. They sent in his place Rev. Laws who will live in the M. E. parsonage at Grantsville.

Grant Dean has purchased a lot of chickens. He is studying how to make money out of poultry.

Mr. Bouncer and wife are visiting at Henry Palmer's.

HYPOCRISY OF THE ADAMSON LAW

No better example is needed as showing the hypocrisy of the Democratic party towards labor than the very title of the Adamson bill. This measure, as it passed the House and Senate, is entitled "An act to establish an eight hour day for employes of carriers engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, and for other purposes." The framers and supporters of this act knew that they were not justified in so labeling it. They knew that it was designed to benefit but a small portion of railroad employes, and the title was so worded as deliberately to deceive the public generally and the workingman in particular.

Previous to the adoption of the administration bill Congressman Temple of Pennsylvania offered the following amendment: "Add to section 1 the following: 'Provided further, that this section shall also include and apply to the station agents, train dispatchers, trackmen, office employes, workers in railway shops, and all other employes of a railroad carrier engaged in interstate carriage of passengers and freight."

This amendment, which would have benefited five times as many persons as does the Adamson law, was rejected by the Democratic majority. The vote was 81 for and 121 against, nearly all of the latter coming from Democrats. Then the Adamson bill was passed under threat of the brotherhoods, whose representatives sat in the gallery keeping tab on the vote.

If the administration had been honest, if it really wished to benefit the railroad employes of the country, its bill would have been as wide in its scope as Mr. Temple's amendment. It did not, however, dare to father a bill which would benefit so many hundreds of thousands of unorganized employes. The Temple amendment was snowed under and the Democrats went before the country with a law whose title is a lie and whose doubtful benefits concern only a small proportion of the whole army of railroad labors.—Chicago Tribune.

THE HOUSE ON SAND

The bland assurances from the Democratic national committee that our whole prosperity is the result of legislative tinkering, with the war in no way responsible, might cause nervousness were it not for the continued reports from widely separated sections of the country. The Republican has referred to the significance of the Maine election and the New York and New Jersey primaries. The east has gone clearly on record as determined to end Democratic misrule.

Now comes the west. San Francisco's registration a week ago, for example, brought out 102,000 Republicans and 36,000 Democrats, with 30,000 voters not indicating their party affiliation. That is a fair index to northern California conditions. Southern California is reported as being strongly in favor of an immediate return to the Republican party—and the Republican tariff. What is true of California and Washington and Oregon is reported from the mountain states as well.

The answer is plain. The west wishes protection. The west has not participated so heavily in the spotted prosperity which the war has brought. The west still suffers from the sharp blow struck it in 1913, when the Democratic tariff went into and immediately pushed exports downward and raised imports. The war had no part in that. The west remembers.

It also remembers that in the two years following March, 1913, when the Democrats gained power, there were only two months when business failures throughout the country failed to show an increase. There were 18,200 in 1914. The war did not cause the merchants to fail, for the war did not start until August, 1914.

The west remembers that from the month in which the Democrat tariff went into effect for sixteen months, at the end of which time the war had finally created the present prosperity, there was only one month in which railroad earnings did not show a decrease.

The west remembers that from August, 1913, three months after the Democracy gained control and a year before the war, until the spring of 1915 there were only four months in which bank clearings did not show a decrease. The west not only remembers, but will act accordingly on November 7.

Mr. Hughes' recent Missouri speech identified accurately our current prosperity as a prosperity "built on sand" and sure to be demolished by the winds and rain which will come, unless there be a strengthening of the foundation. That strengthening he identified as the protective tariff, to which the Democratic party has been and is and will be opposed. Democracy does not believe in the protective tariff and cannot be expected to revive it.

The abandonment of the protective tariff created the demoralization of 1914. It took the great war to remedy America's ills temporarily. Will America fail to effect a permanent remedy on Nov. 7? Can America forget that it has never enjoyed a protracted prosperity except under a Republican protective tariff? Both east and west apparently remember. The voter goes to the polls on Nov. 7 with his own future in his hands. A vote for a Democratic legislator or executive is a vote for a return of hard times.

DO NOT BE MISLED.

So much that is silly passes among some Democrats for truth supporting the sophistries emanating from the White House that it would deserve no attention were it not that failure to expose it might seem to confirm its verity. No superior intelligence is necessary to understand that our prosperity is founded on war business. It is "as plain as the nose on your face."

If one of two neigboring and competing towns were suddenly to be closed to ordinary industry and the trade of the surrounding country, usually divided between them diverted to the town remaining open, would you regard its access of business as due to the statesmanship of the mayor of that place, and as assuring its permanent commercial leadership when the temporary prostration of the rival town were at an end?

Or, if 10 per cent. of the industries of a town were suddenly called upon to provide temporarily for a distant city all they could make of their special products at extraordinarily high prices and in quick time, resulting in competitive demand for raw materials, for labor at higher wages and for transportation facilities beyond normal, with an inflow of cash such as never had been known before don't you suppose that whole town would feel the impulse of the new business and become prosperous to a degree not before dreamed of? Would you attribute the good fortune to good management at home?

Or, if your town, depending upon outside sources for its labor supply, were suddenly to be deprived of a goodly number of its workers by their scurrying to distant points to engage in war and the same war prevented the customary accessions of laborers to your community, thereby causing wage advances for the limited number remaining, due to competition for their services, would you consider the mayor and common council entitled to a medal for increasing the prosperity of your town?

And, if all these conditions arose following a period of industrial stagnation in your town due as you knew to the refusal of the authorities to co-operate with the community and their imposing conditions that made it difficult or impossible for the merchants and manufacturers to conduct their enterprises in normal times because more consideration was given to outside than to home industries, would you consider the happy reversal something for which you had to thank the inept government? Would you—could you be made to—believe that when the emergency orders had been fulfilled there would not be a relapse to the previous distressing conditions if the authorities, clinging to the old policies and declaring against all common sense that they had produced the prosperity and it would endure, were they retained in office?

In the imaginary community made the subject of our interrogations the situation is fundamentally that of the United States today. Our prosperity is very real, but it is not permanent. It cannot last longer than the extraordinary demand for our goods due to the prostration of industry in belligerent lands lasts, unless we provide protection against them. They are looking forward to the economic struggle after the war of arms. They all will be out to pluck the United State. And they will strip us if we do not adopt measures of safety and security. President Wilson and his Democratic followers reject the truth. They will do nothing for America. The facts of experience and common sense appeal to them not at all. But you know, if you but stop to consider. We must prepare for the future of American industry. The Republican policy of protection is the only safe way. Wilson means misery when the war-born business ends. Hughes means permanent prosperity.

A WORD TO YOUNG MEN.

Preparedness for defense is a political issue and concerns you more directly than some others, perhaps. It is you who are under 25 who will make up in largest part whatever armed force we we will put into the field or on the seas in case of necessity to protect our country from aggressions by foreign powers. As a peace-loving people we need not consider any but a war of defense. Should war be necessary, you would go, of course, if the regular establishment were inadequate to repel invasion. You are patriotic, liberty-loving, a thoroughgoing American. Being ready to serve in case of need, what do you demand on the part of your government, first, to postpone the evil day as long as possible; second, to make sure the speedy triumph of our arms with as little sacrifice of our blood as may be? You demand preparedness of men and implements of warfare. If you must strike you want to strike hard and effectively and have it overwith. To which political porty can you look with confidence for the protection of your personal welfare as a potential soldier in the American army of defense? That's the question for you to decide now; having decided, you must back your judgment with your votes.

Protection may be a concrete policy of government or it may be a mere shibboleth shouted to catch votes.

When the European war broke out and America for the first time realized that its isolation does not afford the protection from attack that we had imagined; when for a time there was grave danger of our becoming embroiled, what was the attitude of the principal political parties? The Republicans clamored for adequate preparation for defense. President WILSON sneered at the alarm. When public opinion had crystalized for preparedness, the President suddenly made the "discovery" that the country was unprepared for defense and made a campaign to "convert" the people to it. Hundreds of millions were appropriated by Congress for strengthening the army and navy. What has been done and what can you expect from the WILSON administration in realization of the power we need? JOSEPHUS DANIELS, Secretary of the Navy, the President's most intimate cabinet minister, is opposed to a strong navy, has done nothing toward carrying out the congressional program, has not even started work on two battleships authorized on March 3, 1915. Mr. Daniels has persistently antagonized the professional men of the navy whom the nation has trained for its defense. If Mr. WILSON is re-elected Mr. DANIELS will remain in office. Our first line of defense will be neglected. More of our young men than should be will have to be sacrificed if we ever have to go to war because the WILSON administration has not prepared to protect our country and its young men—you young men who will vote, many of you for the first time, on November 7.

Congress provided money and a scheme for enlarging and strengthening the army. The better army we have the fewer American young men we will have to sacrifice in defending the country. But the Democratic scheme, in which Mr. Wilson acquiesced, has not proved effectual and holds no promise of doing so. The federalization of the National Guard was carried out against the protest of Republicans. It was a political measure, not one of defense. The idea was to make a political machine that would deliver votes to Wilson. The Volunteer Army plan was rejected. A large Regular Army was authorized, but the recruiting scheme has proved ineffective. Few men have been added to the army. Thanks to the failure of the Democratic schemes, if we are called upon to defend ourselves you will go forth raw recruits to be slaughtered because there has been no adequate preparedness.

Here are considerations for the young men who will have to do the fighting if any is to be done. Mr. Hughes and the Republican party stand for genuine preparedness. Mr. Wilson and the Democratic party have had their opportunity to provide it. They have refused and failed to do so. You, young men, will pay with your blood if we are attacked. Your safety lies in making the country safe. It will not be done through the election of Mr. Wilson. If you think that "he has kept us out of war" think also what will be your fate if war is thrust upon us before we have adequately prepared.

Mrs. Ida Lee has purchased the lots in front of her property. She has now one of the finest properties in the Park, with a charming outlook. This purchase has increased the value of her property one hundred percent.

William Edgar has sold a number of of potatoes at $1.25 per bushel, delivered at the railroad station. The farmers do not seem to be anxious to sell their potatoes, claiming that they will be worth $2 a bushel before very long. The farmers are living on Prosperity avenue just now. Everything they have bring big prices.

Turkey and Thanksgiving is a very serious thought. This great National day is coming. Very close is it, but the turkey, that is the question. Eight ounces of bread a nickle, a pound of turkey—the very question is painful to contemplate.

Coal at quoted $2.85 per ton at the mines, brings Garrett county coal in the market. The C. M. Rathbun Sons Co., have contracted for the delivery of coal, from the Harvey mine, to run their plant, at a much less figure than they can ship in coal.

The poor man has one consolation these days, and that is, "Salvation is free."

The water has been let out of the lake. When drained a fresh supply of water will be accumulated for the ice harvest of this winter.

Many of our men folks are not considering the question of the preacher, "Where will you spend eternity?" but are wondering "where they will spend the winter." Everything closed down here and no work.

Messrs. Landon, Echard & Co., have been notified to file their bond for the contract to finish the State road to the railroad station. This will be done at once. We congratulate these gentlemen in securing the contract. This means that early next summer the State road will be completed to Loch Lynn.

Plans are being made to make Mountain Lake Park, next summer, a week-end excursion point for automobiles. Mountain Lake Parks success is Garrett county's success.

Floyd White motored to Pittsburgh and spent last week in the "Smoky City."

We have the promise of a drug store in the Park next summer. It was a mistake not having one the past summer. Our two grocery stores are a great public convenience. They will be kept open all winter.

The State Department of Health, Baltimore, has made an examination of the water in Jacob's well and pronounce it "safe for use."

The deepest sympathy of this community went out to Mr. and Mrs. George Dawson, in the death of their young son, from dyphtheria. Mrs. Dawson is also sick from the same disease, but is getting along nicely.

William White is painting the Hopkins cottage. The cottage will be put in good shape for next summer by the new owner.

There is a Real Difference

Cream of tartar, derived from grapes, is used in Royal Baking Powder because it is the best and most healthful ingredient known for the purpose.

Phosphate and alum, which are derived from mineral sources, are used in some baking powders, instead of cream of tartar, because they are cheaper.

If you have been induced to use baking powders made from alum or phosphate, use Royal Baking Powder instead. You will be pleased with the results and the difference in the quality of the food.

Notice to Subscribers.

Beginning November 1st, 1916, the subscription price of The Republican will be advanced from $1.25 per year to $1.50 per year. This advance in price is made unwillingly by the publisher, but at the same time it is absolutely necessary by reason of the fact that every single item going into the making of a newspaper, including inks, paper and fixed charges has so advanced that the present subscription price of $1.25 per year is much less than the cost of production.

News print paper has advanced from $2.40 per hundred pounds to $7.00 per hundred pounds, while inks have advanced from 6 cents per pound to 15 cents per pound within the past six months. It was the hope of the management that prices would become normal and this advance in the price of subscription would not be necessary; but instead indications are that all material will become higher.

Anyone desiring to pay their subscription in advance prior to November 1st may do so at the present rate for a period of not more than one year. All subscriptions that are now paid in advance will be continued the full time paid for. All subscriptions in arrear must be promptly settled as we cannot longer carry delinquents.

HEAVY REGISTRATION IN ALLEGANY COUNTY

It Is the Banner Republican County of the State.

The total registered vote in Allegany county, which is now the banner Republican county of the State, as shown by the revised figures in the returns made to the Election Supervisors last Tuesday, show that the total vote of the county is 14,190, a gain over the 1915 vote of 828.

Of these 8,442 are registered as Republicans, a gain of 524 over the affiliated majority of 1915.

The Democrats now have a registered vote of 5,154, a gain of 261 over the 1915 registration.

There are 231 Socialists registered in the County, 127 Prohibitionists, 35 Progressives and 194 declined.

When it is considered that hundreds of young men from the Georges Creek mining region have gone to work in the munition factories of Western Pennsylvania and Ohio this is regarded as a remarkable showing.

The Republican workers of the county are jubilant over the returns.

Surprise for Pastor.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Will you permit me through your columns to extend our thanks to the good friends, who on Tuesday night brought such a pleasant and complete surprise to the manse. Without the slightest intimation a large company of the church members slipped in, bringing with them not only good cheer, but an abundance of the good things of life, enough to last us many days.

To say thank you does not express our feelings. We can only ask the Giver of all good, to abundantly bless and reward all those who were not there in person, but were by their gifts, as well as those present.

It was a handsome and cheerful expression of confidence and affection that must ever be appreciated and can not fail to lead us to pray for the richest of divine blessings to rest upon all.

The deceased lady lived practically all her life in Oakland and vicinity and had many friends to whom the news of her death is a cause for deep regret. The funeral took place last Sunday afternoon from her late home, after services conducted by Rev. Dr. Ward, assisted by Rev. W. M. Shultz, of the M. E. church. The pall bearers were Messrs. F. A. The Republican Doctrine of Tariff Protection

Means more this year than ever before to every American laborer and business man, his home, and his property, BECAUSE, after the war, in competition with cheap but efficient European labor, Tariff Protection will be the only means of UPHOLDING THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF WAGES, and will give us a chance to convert munitions plants into peace industries.

To guarantee the protection of American industries after the war it is necessary to elect not only a Republican President, but also a Republican Senate and House of Representatives.

The above illustration shows how this can be done by three X marks—one opposite Hughes and Fairbanks to vote for the entire electoral ticket, one opposite Joseph Irwin France for United States Senator and one opposite Frederick N. Zihlman for Member of Congress.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Destroying the Foundation.

May I call attention now, to another foundation of our Christion faith, that is being endangered in its stability.

There is a desire to destroy, or at least greatly weaken, one of the foundations that is as old as the Bible. The age sees no use for it. The spirit of the age is opposed to it.

It rather curtails personal liberty they think, though they do not realize that the highest form of liberty is to please to do right and obey God.

If men could but get rid of the restraints of the Sabbath they would be happy. Maybe they would be, after a manner, but it would be the unsatisfactory and false happiness of unbridled desire.

France thought so too, but she found out her mistake. When she was plunged into her awful revolution, when her streets were slippery with blood and Marat and Robertspeare swayed the frantic masses according to their own will. She reaped an awful harvest of misery and suffering, nor has she recovered from the awful blow, even to this day. She has verified in her history the truth of the Divine word "whatsoever we sow, that we also reap."

The Sabbath rest is a necessity to our physical, mental, moral and spiritual life, yet the age insists on converting the Lords day into one of self destruction. Not satisfied with six days of the weak, they want to cheat the Lord out of his one. They defy the civil law of the land, in regard to the Sabbath, and claim to be law abiding citizens, when in truth they are tories; they claim to be obedient subjects when they are rebels against themselves, their country and their God. The Maker of mankind saw the necessities of His creatures and so instituted this day to meet it.

He requires its observance and offers inducement for its proper observance, and threatens judgment against its breakers. Man full of selfishness and pride, the love of the world and avarice, rebellion and hatred of God, thinks it does not pay to keep it, but reason, experience and scripture testify that it does pay, and big dividend are attractive now days.

Properly used it prepares us for the work of the week. Six hundred physicians in England thought it paid when they petitioned Parliament to close the Royal Palace on the Sabbath, on the ground that the health and longevity of the people demanded it.

Where, let me ask, are the men who twenty-five years ago were and continued to be Sabbath breakers? They are moral or financial bankrupts or both.

Pull down the shutters of business places and open up your offices on the Sabbath and you bring down the curse of God.

Sir Matthew Hale uttered a fact, founded—not on superstition—but on natural law, when he said, "That he prospered during the week according to the degree of fidelity with which he observed the Sabbath."

Lord Castlereaugh on the contrary taxed his brain without any Sabbath rest, until his overtaxed nature broke down under the strain and he died by his own hand in the delerium of insanity.

Blackston said, "That a corruption of morals usually follows a profanation of the Sabbath." Church members are helping to destroy this foundation when they refuse to assert their rights and allow its enemies to defy the civil law, when they join Sabbath excursions and indulge in unnecessary travel on the Sabbath. Capital is striking at this foundation when, for the sake of larger dividends they demand unceasing labor which deprives the laborer of his Sabbath and its worship. It wants to control religion whereas religion ought to and must control capital.

Corporations, as carried on today, for the most part are Sabbath disecrating institutions which strike at this divine foundation. Christian people are largely responsible for the loose Sabbatarian principles, for instead of lifting up their voices against its unlawful use, they continue at it, and so they are too often guilty of disregarding its sacred enactments.

We succumb to the demands of irreligion and by conniving at and encouraging present evils, become partners in crime.

Break down the Sabbath and you give the loose reins to avarice and blind passion. You throw down the restraints of pure religion take a long stride toward barbarism and hasten the day when the judgments of the Almighty shall be poured out, like the fire of old upon wicked Sodom. Then the glory of our land shall be dimmed, her honor trailed in the dust and the floodgates of ingdelity shall be opened upon her, and her name shall become a by word and a hissing among the nations of the world.

Inroads on the Sabbath are made by business, pleasure, open saloons, theaters, moving pictures, sports, as baseball, golf, Sunday papers, excursions, concerts, entertainments etc., in short whatever wants to have its way on the Lord's Day, enter with little or no protest.

A recent writer says, "It is appaling to note the number of accidents and disasters that are recorded in our daily papers on Monday morning. At the door of the Sunday automobile, the chief blame for this condition of affairs is laid. An editorial in one of New York's largest dailies of Sept. 7th, 1915 said:

Incomplete reports show that probably more people lost their lives on Sunday in automobile accidents and by drowning, than ever perished on a Fourth of July when the use of cannon, guns and fireworks was without restraint. With much difficulty we have established a comparatively bloodless Fourth. Must we now agitate for a safe and sane Sunday? The Presbyterian General Assembly on Sabbath observance uses these lines--

"They are killing our Sunday of long ago—
The good old Sunday we used to know,
The day of quiet when everywhere
The spirit of peace pervaded the air
And the whole world wearing its Sunday best,
Sat down by the roadside of life to rest.

They are killing our Sunday, not with a blow,
To end it suddenly, but sure and slow,
As they did the martyrs who suffered shame
On the wheel and the rack and in the flame.

They are killing our Sunday, and when it is dead,
When the last, last drop of its blood is shed,
And its spirit has gone from the knowledge of men
In their world—weary struggle for pleasure—what then?"

Memories of Eighteen Eighty Nine.

I never shall forget the time,
'Twas when we both were young,
That we first met at an old time dance,
Way down on Tolliver's Run.

'Twas on one beautiful autumn night,
In eighteen eighty-nine,
We took a stroll to Tolliver's Run
Among the lofty pine.

Where once those pines so huge and tall,
The little brook still flows,
'Tis singing just the same today
As it sang long years ago.

But we since have grown old,
Our locks are silvering o'er,
Yet memory holds a vision still
As in the days of yore.

I oft recall those golden days,
As the years go fleeting by,
Like peering through the icy mists
Of a chilled December sky.

Though looking back through the vale of time,
With a vision of those who've trod,
I see many a kind and loving face
We've laid beneath the sod.

But this I'll say, to you, dear Joe,
When we pass life's setting sun,
I hope we'll meet with those who danced
Way down on Tolliver's Run.

Note: The above poem was written at the conclusion of a letter to an old time friend by J. W. Kimmell in which he portrays in a very sentimental manner the ties of early friendship and joy mingled with sorrow and sadness, at the thought of declining years and the severance of friendship ties.

The Care of Teeth.

The United States Public Health Service issued yesterday the following bulletin: "A recent investigation made by the U. S. Public Health Service in connection with studies of rural school children showed that 49.3 per cent. had defective teeth, 21.1 per cent. had two or more missing teeth, and only 16.9 per cent. had had dental attention. Over 14 per cent. never used a tooth brush, 58.2 per cent. used one occasionally and only 27.4 per cent. used daily. Defective teeth reduce physical efficiency. Dirty, suppurating, snaggle-toothed mouths are responsible for many cases of heart disease, rheumatism, and other chronic affections. The children are not responsible for the neglected state of their teeth. The ignorant and careless parent is to blame for this condition—a condition which hampers mental and physical growth and puts a permanent handicap on our future citizens. School teachers can and are doing much in inculcating habits of personal cleanliness on the rural school child but this will fail of the highest accomplishment unless parents co-operate heartily and continuously. This is a duty which we owe our children.

LEST WE FORGET

It is astonishing what short memories some people have. To hear Democratic spellbinders talk, one would imagine that the present prosperity in certain lines of trade is due entirely to the beneficient effect of Democratic policies. Those who have had experience with industrial affairs know, however, that the present feverish activity is entirely due to the war. Charles Evans Hughes, in his talks in Nebraska, aptly described the present situation as the "false prosperity" of the Underwood tariff bill. It was less than three years ago when the Democratic party had been in power only a few months, that industries were at a very low ebb.

What happened when the Democrats began to tinker with the tariff, and before the outbreak of the European war, will happen again as soon as the war is over, if the Democratic party is in power and American industries are at the mercy of the Underwood law. That law brought disaster to our industries and idleness to labor long before the conflict in Europe began, and since that time has brought a large increase in imports accompanied with a great decrease in revenue, which has made it necessary to supplement the receipts of the government by the imposition of onerous taxes never known before in times of peace.

Dental Preparedness.

What is the most important attribute of a soldier.

Good feet?

No.

Good eyesight?

No.

Good brains?

No.

What then?

Good teeth.

A soldier may have good feet, good eyesight, and good brains but if he has bad teeth, he can't eat. If he can't eat he can't march near enough to the enemy to see him and use his brains to fight him.

How does a soldier get good teeth?

By having good teeth in childhood.

How do children keep good teeth?

Through being taught by their mother how to keep their teeth clean and having their teeth looked after while they are growing. This makes good teeth for future soldiers.

It would seem then as though the first patriotic duty of a mother was to keep her children's teeth in good condition.

It is.

ARM CAUGHT AND WAS AMPUTATED

Lorenzo Fike Met With Serious Accident Yesterday Afternoon

Rev. Lorenzo Fike, a minister of the German Baptist Church and a prominent farmer residing in Election District No. 8 of this county, met with a serious accident yesterday afternoon and as a result he is today minus his left arm that member having been caught in a corn shredder which literally ground the arm to shreds and amputation at a point just below the elbow was necessary to save the man's life, the operation being performed last night by Drs. Darby and Broadwater.

Mr. Fike was engaged with other men in operating the machine at the Henry Smouse farm just South of Oakland when the accident occurred. This morning Mr. Fike, who was placed at the Manhattan Hotel following the operation, is resting as comfortable as can be expected.

BARBER SHOP BOUGHT

Messrs. Bitner and Stahl Purchased Liller Establishment.

Yesterday morning Messrs. Floyd Stahl, of Oakland, and Harvey Bitner, of Mountain Lake Park, purchased the Liller barber shop on Second street and have taken charge of the property.

The business was established and operated by its recently deceased owner, Charles C. Liller, for many years, and since his death it has been in charge of Jerry Flanigan, who will continue in the employ of the new owners.

Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr, who spent the summer and fall at their Mountain Lake Park cottage, left here yesterday afternoon for Fairmont, West Va., where they will remain a few weeks and go from thence South to spend the winter months.

ZIHLMAN HEADS FLYINGSQUADRON

Closing Days of Campaign Are To Be Devoted to Home County.

Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican candidate for Congress, concludes his splendid campaign this week, devoting all the remaining time before the election to his home county, Allegany. On Wednesday he headed a flying squadron of twenty automobiles through the creek region where ten minute talks were made by himself, Charles Schrim, of Baltimore and other Republicans of Allegany county. At every town big enthusiastic crowds greeted him. In fact the Senator's tour of his home county is more than a campaign it is a reception and, from the manner in which he was greeted by voters regardless of party affiliations, Alleganyon Tuesday will give him one of the largest majorities ever given a candidate.

At Frostburg and Lonaconing the crowds were tremendous for the nature of the meetings. The flying squadron started at Lonaconing promptly at six o'clock and followed a regular schedule to Cumberland where the last meeting was held at 9:45 P. M.

During the closing days of the campaign Senator Zihlman has been the recipient of many laudatory remarks for his clean cut and aggressive campaign. It has been totally devoid of mire and mud slinging. Senator Zihman has criticised his opponent personally on but one feature. The Democratic candidates is from Frederick county and he has been appealing to his home district to vote for him regardless of party affiliation because he says he is best fitted to represent Frederick county, of which he is a native. Mr. Zihlman has pointed out he does not claim to be best fitted to represent any one particular county. He has pledged himself from the stump that if sent to Washington he will represent the whole district. He will do more. He will represent the nation in that he will always stand for good old G. O. P. doctrines, Peace, Protection and Prosperity. When in the Maryland Senate, Mr. Zihlman was not known as the Allegany county Senator. He was a leader for his party in the whole state. He advocated with all of his ability such bills as were paramount to the welfare of all Maryland. He supported prominently the Public Utilities Law, the Direct Primary Laws, all bills looking to election reforms, State Road Laws, Workmen's Compensation, State Care of the Insane, Pure Food Law, Two Days' Rest Bill for Railroad Telegraphers, Ten Hour Law For Women, Mothers' Pension Bill, Miners and Operators Co-Operation Relief Law (which he fathered) all measures for the reduction of the expense of legislative sessions. At the last session he abely advocated a lineal Inheritance Tax.

A vote for Zihlman, Hughes and France Tuesday is a vote for thriving industries, steady employment, a fat pay envelope.

HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATED

Some Worked Exceptionally Hard to Pile Things Up.

Hallowe'en was celebrated Tuesday evening and night by many Oaklanders, amongst whom were staid spinsters, little tots and from the appearance of the streets yesterday morning there were some strong and overgrown tots at work.

Early in the evening many masking parties were on the streets and a right royal time was had by every one. A slight shower came up about nine o'clock which dampened the ardor of the masqueraders and the streets were soon emptied. Later weather conditions improved and it was then that things begun to happen. Second street at the corner of Green and also at the corner of Alder was completely blocked by wagons and other vehicles which had been hauled to the spots by main strength, while the elevated walk leading to the railroad station from Second street was filled up with the overflow from the street barricades. A construction wagon used by the State Road Commission which has been in the railroad yards here for some months was hauled out and in it was placed a brindle cow. Yesterday morning the owner was at a loss to know what had become of his property until he was informed of its whereabouts.

ANOTHER BARN IN COUNTY BURNED

Structure on W. A. Smith's Farm, Hoyes, Destroyed.

The third barn to be burned in Garrett county during the past week was that of W. A. Smith at Hoyes, which was a prey to the flames at an early hour Sunday morning, the cause of the fire being unknown.

The building was well filled with hay, straw and corn, the latter of which had been hauled from the fields on Saturday, as well as farming implements, harness and vehicles, all of which burned with an insurance in force of $1000. Mr. Smith valued the building and contents at $3200 which makes his net loss $2200.

Mr. Smith was on a visit to his son at New Windsor, Md., where he is a student and did not arrive at his home until Monday.

New Dimes Like Buttons.

It'll be hard to tell a pocketful of dimes from a pocketful of buttons pretty soon. The new dimes which the Government will begin introducing Monday to all persons who desire to meet them, will be concave on one side, as a result of high relief on the other side. The relief is designed to increase the beauty of Miss Liberty whose face still adorns the 10-cent piece, albeit she is wearing a winged cap and looks different in other respects.

PROCLAMATION

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF MARYLAND CREATING A BUDGET SYSTEM.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1916, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 159 of said Acts, being an Act to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State; and which said Act is in words and figures following:

"CHAPTER 159.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title, Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, regulating the making of appropriations by the General Assembly of Maryland in regular session, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 52 of Article III, title Legislative Department, of the Constitution of this State, the same, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 52 of Article III of the Constitution of Maryland.

Sec. 52. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the Treasry except in accordance with the followin provisions:

Sub-Section A:

Every appropriation bill shall be either a Budget Bill, or a Supplementary Appropriation Bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B:

First. Within twenty days after the convening of the General Assembly (except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within thirty days after his inauguration,) unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the Budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any suggestion as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first part shall be designated "Governmental Appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the Executive Department; (3) for the Judiciary Department, as provided by law, certified to the Governor by the Comptroller; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of the debt of the State of Maryland in conformity with Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the establishment and maintenance throughout the State of a thorough and efficient system of public schools in conformity with Article VIII of the Constitution and with the laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution of the State.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill." The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The Genenal Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect either the obligations of the State under Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution, or the provisions made by the laws of the State for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools, or the payment of any salaries required to be paid by the State of Maryland by the Constitution thereof; and the General Assembly may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein, provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be decreased during his term of office; and such bill when and as passed by both houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or supplying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either house of the Legislature, it shall be their duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section C: Supplementary Appropriation Bills:

Neither house shall consider other appropriations until the Budget Bill has been finally acted upon by both houses, and no such other appropriation shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following: (1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purdose therein stated and called herein a Supplementary Appropriation Bill; (2) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said Bills. (3) No Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of a majority of the whole number of the members elected; and in the yeas and nays recorded on its final passage; (4) Each Supplementary Appropriation Bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said Section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the Legislature from passing at any time in accordance with the provisions of Section 28 of Article III of the Constitution and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in Section 17 of Article II of the Constitution an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Maryland within the protection of Section 10 of Article I of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D: General Provisions:

First. If the Budget Bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such Bill; but no other matter than such Bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second. The Governor for the purpose of making up his budgets shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper State Officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative offices, bureaus boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for State moneys and appropriations, such itemnized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. The estimates for the Legislative Department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the Judiciary, as provided by law, certified by the Comptroller, and for the public schools, as provided by law shall be transmitted to the Governor, in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget without revision.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and of all institutions applying for State moneys. After the hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments, and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third. The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this Section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out its provisions.

Fourth. In the event of the inconsistency between any of the provisions of this Section and any other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this Section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall in any manner affect the provisions of Section 34 of Article III of the Constution or of any laws heretofore or hereafter passed in pursuance thereof, or be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by Section 16 of Article II, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this Section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the Bill or of any other item of such Bill or Bills.

Section 2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing Section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next ensuing general election, being the Presidential and Congressional election, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in conformity with the directions contained in Article XVI of this State, and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be placed the following synopsis of said amendment under the caption of

"This amendment provides that the Governor shall present to the Legislature soon after it is convened a Budget giving a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the two succeeding fiscal years showing clearly any surplus or deficit in State funds. In these estimates he shall make provision for the interest and sinking funds of all State debts, for all salaries as fixed by law, and for the public schools as fixed by law. With regard to most other matters he may revise the estimates presented to him either by State Officers or State-aided institutions. The Legislature may not increase the estimates presented by the Governor or pass any additional appropriation act except by a majority vote and must make provision by tax for such increase or additional appropriation. The Legislature may not alter in any appropriation act the provision made by law for the State debt, or for the judiciary, but may reduce all other items in the Governor's estimates;' and the words 'for the Constitutional Amendment' and 'against the Constitutional Amendment' as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote in accordance with Article XVI of the Constitution.

Approved Marah 28, 1916."

FIFTY YEARS OF WEDDED BLISS.

The following poem was read at the banquet recently given at Oakland in honor of Capt. and Mrs. R. R. Sanner on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary:

Fresh in the memory of today
As the dew on the new mown hay,
There comes a vision of the long ago,
When two young hearts as one were beating,
Full of joy and hopeful greating.

The day of days was set;
Fancies of Boyhood's ambition rise;
'Tis time to draw and close the net
Ere some other equally fair and wise
Shall seek to wiu my bride to be
And leave behind an aching wish for me.

The hour has come and they together stand,
The man and the wedded bride;
The vows have passed and hand in hand
Are sealed forever to abide.

With faith, hope and courage strong,
Anew is life begun,
Each morn is gladdened with a song,
Each eve some task is done.

Years heve come and years have gone
Till fifty now have flown
Since the day the deed was done
And the minister made it known.

Tho' not so fleet nor yet so strong
As earlier life would show,
Their souls are just as true and young
As when wedded some fifty years ago.

Full many a joy and pleasure known
Has been to others shown,
And by generous, hopeful giving,
Came their chiefest joy of living.

'Twas not for gain of gold,
Boasted pride nor vision bold
Our honored guests have striven,
But rather for reward in heaven.

Fifty fleeting years are past,
Fifty years of wedded life;
Fifty years since the die was cast
In pronouncement of man and wife.

Fifty years of honest toil,
Fifty years of hopeful labor,
Planting fertile seed in mental soil
To help their next door neighbor.

JOS. E. HARNED.

WHERE HUGHES IS BEST KNOWN

"The most honest Governor the State ever had" is the way Mr. Hughes is greeted in Central New York, where they have had opportunity to know the character of the man. The reference to the Republican candidate's record in the Gubernatorial chair carries with it the reflection that memories in a republic are very short if any considerable part of the public is in doubt as to what sort of President Mr. Hughes would make.

For the four years Mr. Hughes was in Albany the eyes of the country were centered to an extent rarely witnessed on the struggle there for reform and for good government. The exhibition of courage, force, indefatigable industry, political foresight and executive capacity displayed earned commendation outside of New York and made Mr. Hughes one of the nation's foremost figures, a man who was admittedly of Presidential caliber—a reformer with a clear head; neither a doctrinaire nor a visionary, but eminently practical.

He fought for a direct primary, but he saw the defects of the system as it was evolving and strove to safeguard it against the very criticisms that are now being brought against it.

In a spectacular contest with the largest corporations in the United States he put through the Legislature a plan for the regulation of public utilities that has become the model for other States.

He effected reform of the great insurance companies, a work alone that would have entitled him to the gratitude of the public.

In labor legislation he earned the appreciation of wage-earners by putting on the statute books more reforms calculated to inure to their benefit than New York had ever seen before.

He gathered about him men of high character and gave the State a new ideal of public service. The politicians hated him as a foe who could not be deterred from doing his duty by intimidation from any source and whose powers of analysis and clear statement made him unbeatable on the stump.

Last of all, when he had to stand against the very forces he had been compelled to arouse and lead and protect industry and capital from unjust attack, he did not falter. When the two-cent rate bill was passed he declared he would not be a party to legislation first and investigation afterward. He vetoed the bill and turned the issue over to the Public Service Commission, where it properly belonged.

When the labor forces of the State undertook to make the full train crew effective and bulldozed the Legislature into enacting the law, once more Mr. Hughes stepped into the breach and refused to sanction the act until investigation disclosed it was fair to the railroads.

He did not hesitate at any time to risk his political fortunes in defying labor on the one side or capital on the other when conscience dictated.

No Governor of any State in this generation has left office with a higher reputation, justly earned, for integrity, ability, executive capacity and a power of doing things, coupled with rare judgment of how and when to do them. In consensus of opinion of the country at large, Mr. Hughes' Gubernatorial career marked him out as one who would reach the White House if his ambition pointed that way. When the reapproachment of the Republican and Progressive parties appeared inevitable, when there was need of a candidate whom each could support but whom neither could dominate, who would appeal to independent Democrats dissatisfied with Mr. Wilson, there was never doubt on whom the choice would fall. And the reasons that dictated the choice are as conclusive today as they were last August, when men of all parties approved it as the wisest that could be made.

THE WAGE-EARNER VOTE

The Wilson campaign managers are making advance statements, based upon no evidence that is tangible or apparent, which speak with a cock-sureness about carrying for Wilson states that are normally Republican. Some of the sporting men who are taking the Wilson end of the betting have apparently caught this feeling of cocksureness, for they are, in instances, willing to bet even money that Wilson will be elected. The theory upon which the Democratic managers and the Democratic sporting men are taking prophecies and cash is not concealed. They believe that the bulk of the organized labor vote can be and will be delivered by Samuel Gompers and various heads of labor organizations in bulk to the Democratic candidate. Can this thing be done? Are the wage-earners of these United States, whether organized into unions or not, so blind as to permit themselves to be delivered a living sacrifice? We use the phrase "to be delivered a living sacrifice" guardedly and thoughtfully, for that expresses exactly what would take place if the wage-earners could be delivered in volume, on election day, to the Democratic party.

The Democratic party in its theories, in its applied policies, has absolutely nothing but husks and delusive hopes to offer wage-earners. If the Democratic party should remain in power for four more years the industrial demoralization that had already begun during the first year under the Democratic tariff will come again as soon as the war lifts the gates to low-wage foreign products. It is only the war that has saved American industries from the terrible stagnation during the era of Democratic control from 1903 to 1907. The Democratic tariff is still in force and will stay in force if Wilson is elected, because, even though there should be a Democratic Congress, Wilson would never sign a tariff embodying the protective principle. It was the protective policy of the Republican party that raised wage scales in the United States to more than double the average of outside wage scales. Can the wage earners of this country be fooled by a pipe dream? Does Samuel Gompers carry organized labor in his vest pocket? They are not being tooled; Gompers cannot deliver the wage-earner vote as a living sacrifice to Wilson.

THE DEATH RECORD.

FRANCIS DESALES BROWNING.

Francis DeSales, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ramsy Browning, was instantly killed October 22, 1916, at 11 o'clock p. m., at Denver, Col., as he was going to meet a friend. He was coasting across the tracks on his motorcycle when a street car struck the rear wheel throwing him to the ground. A physician who was passing at the time gave the case his immediate attention to no avail. His brother, Robert, who went back to Denver to locate, was at the scene of the Accident in thirty minutes and made arrangements to ship the remains East as soon as possible.

Robert left Denver with the body at 2 p. m. Tuesday taking a through train by way of Chicago and Cumberland arriving in Oakland at 10:12 p. m., Thursday. The funeral took place at Hoyes, Md., on Saturday, Oct. 28, 1916, at 10 a. m. Mass and a short sermon was preached by Rev. James E. Connell.

The deceased was 25 years, 8 months and 1 day old, and was a boiler-maker in the Union Pacific shops at Denver.

The beautiful wreath of flowers contributed by the boys of the Union Pacific shop showed how well he was liked by his Western friends. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

The following account of his death is taken from the Denver Post of the 22d:

Francis Browning, 25 years old, a boiler maker in the Union Pacific shops, was nearly instantly killed at noon today, (Oct. 22 1916) when a Twenty-second avenue tramway car struck him as he was crossing the tracks on his motorcycle at Twenty-second avenue and Humboldt street.

Browning was going south on Humboldt street, and tried to cut across Twenty-second ahead of the car. The car fenders struck the rear of the motorcycle, throwing Browning to the ground. Death was due to concussion of the brain.

Browning roomed at 3834 Williams street. His parents live in Deer Park, Md. He returned a week ago from visiting them. His brother, Robert, a chauffer of Akron, Ohio, came to Denver with him to locate here.

A VOTE FOR ZIHLMAN IS A VOTE FOR PEACE, PROTECTION, PROSPERITY

Seldom has an electorate faced such important issues in a national election as will have to be decided at the polls next Tuesday. Upon the vote hangs the balance and the fate of the nation. The electorate will determine Tuesday whether the nation is to have four more years of Democratic misrule, through a Democratic Congress which will stand for legislation on demand; of a Congress which will open the trade of the country to foreign bidders, with their cheap labor; a Congress famous for its pork barrel proclivities; or whether by returning Republicans to control the country is to enjoy a solid prosperity founded on Republican legislation which calls for a high protective tariff; which means high wages to the laboring man; good prices to the farmer and thriving industries.

The issues are greater than what this country's foreign policy should be. There is to be elected from the sixth congressional district one Congressman and from the state of Maryland one Senator. It is paramount not only to the welfare and prosperity of Western Maryland that the people send to the halls of Congress Frederick N. Zihlman and to the Senate Dr. Jos. France, but it is vital to the life of the nation.

From all pre-election reports the Republicans are going to have a majority of both houses though indications are these majority will be slim. The election in the sixth district, therefore, assumes national importance. By sending Senator Zihlman to succeed David J. Lewis in Congress the party of peace, protection and prosperity gains one more vote—a vote which the people of the sixth district are assured by their knowledge of the man and his past performances will always be cast after due deliberation for legislation which will bring back the peace, prosperity and glory of the nation.

Senator Zihlman in his clean cut aggressive campaign has pronounced his platform. He stands for a protective tariff which will protect the industries of the sixth district.

Senator Zihlman's record alone is sufficient reason for sending him to represent this district in Washington. He has been tried and always came through with flying colors. His record as a public servant is one any man can be proud of. But national issues and the state of the country today make it all the more imperative that he be sent to Washington. A vote for Zihlman is not only a vote to send the popular State Senator to Congress but it is a vote for peace, protection and prosperity and preparedness as against pussyfooting, petty politics, and a prosperity enjoyed only by munition workers and sucked from the blood of Europe.

The sixth district of Maryland will do her share on Tuesday to assert Republican principles. This district will undoubtedly return one of the banner majorities of the nations for the straight Hughes-France-Zihlman ticket because this district realizes that four more years of Wilson and a Democratic Congress will mean a return of the soup houses and bread lines which quickly made their appearance when Democratic policies began to get in their death blows to American industries and which were only saved from a business grave by the European war.

MR. TAIT IS SURE OF MARYLAND

Republican State Chairman Sees Victory All Along Line For the Ticket.

Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, sees a Republican victory all along the line in Maryland at the election on Tuesday of next week. Mr. Tait yesterday made the following statement regarding the political outlook, the conduct of the campaign and the enthusiasm and harmony which characterize the Republicans in their determination to place Maryland in the Hughes column, to elect Dr. France senator and the several candidates for Congress:

At the beginning of this the last week of the Maryland campaign the indications are for the election of Hughes and Fairbanks, Dr. France and a strong Republican congressional representation. This opinion is based on the solid ground of known facts. The campaign waged by the Harrington-Kelly-Lewis combination has been lame and halting and has not met with the approval of the independent and liberal-minded citizens of the state, many of whom usually support the Democratic ticket.

Realization is growing upon labor-industry and business that the old adage, "In times of peace prepare for war," must be reversed. The present American version should be, "In times of war prepare for peace," the peace which means that 20,000,000 soldiers now in the trenches will at once begin to compete bitterly with and fight our people in industrial warfare with but a knee-high Democratic tariff wall between to protect us against the invasion of cheap European goods. The Republican party is united. Republican registration showed a net gain over the opposition of at least 6,000 votes. Progressives are now working shoulder to shoulder with Republicans.

All elements are together. That this is true is attested by the prominence and representative character of the executive committee, which has been working with state headquarters in this campaign and to whose faithful service the success of the big Hughes and Taft and other meetings are to be in large measure attributed. That all elements are together is further vindicated by a friendly meeting which took place Saturday afternoon atthe Belvedere Hotel, to which Governor Goldsborough, O. E. Weller, Col. C. Wilbur Miller, Gen. W. Bladen Lowndes, Senator William P. Jackson, national committeeman, and the Republican state chairman were invited, at which all phases of the Republican campaign now under way in Maryland were freely discussed and fully considered together. Governor Goldsborough, Mr. Weller, General Lowndes and Colonel Miller and their friends are all alike heartily and unitedly for the whole Republican ticket. That all elements are together is further shown by the cordial co-operation between Republican state and city headquarters and with all those of influence who work for Republicanism along independent or individual lines.

All good Republicans and very many independent citizens will follow the leadership of Governor Hughes and help elect a Senate and Congress that will support his American, foreign and domestic policies.

Notice to Subscribers.

Beginning November 1st, 1916, the subscription price of The Republican will be advanced from $1.25 per year to $1.50 per year. This advance in price is made unwillingly by the publisher, but at the same time it is absolutely necessary by reason of the fact that every single item going into the making of a newspaper, including inks, paper and fixed charges has so advanced that the present subscription price of $1.25 per year is much less than the cost of production.

News print paper has advanced from $2.40 per hundred pounds to $7.00 per hundred pounds, while inks have advanced from 6 cents per pound to 15 cents per pound within the past six months. It was the hope of the management that prices would become normal and this advance in the price of subscription would not be necessary; but instead indications are that all material will become higher.

Anyone desiring to pay their subscription in advance prior to November 1st may do so at the present rate for a period of not more than one year. All subscriptions that are now paid in advance will be continued the full time paid for. All subscriptions in arrear must be promptly settled as we cannot longer carry delinquents.

HOME STATE TOUR

Corn and Potato Club Boys To Arrive in Oakland Monday.

The boys from the Eastern Shore who win out in the corn and potato clubs, will leave Baltimore so as to arrive in Oakland on train Number 55 on Monday next, and the tour really starts from here.

There will be twenty-three boys in the party, and two or three men that will look after them during the trip through each county along the state road to Baltimore.

These boys, winners in either the corn or potato contest in each county on the Eastern Shore, will find a hearty welcome when they come to Oakland, and will be met at the train and shown the points of interest around the town.

There will be a reception in the Maryland Theatre in the evening with the High and Grammar schools as hosts to the boys and they will then be taken to the Empire Theater, which will conclude the evenings program.

Citizens of the town have agreed to take care of the boys at their homes during the stay in Oakland.

On Tuesday the Oakland citizens have agreed to furnish cars to take the party over the new State Road to Gortner, and from there to Grantsville where they will arrive at twelve o'clock and the Grantsville delegation will then take charge of their entertainment, giving them dinner, showing them interesting points around the town and country, and send them on to Frostburg.

A stop will be made at Accident on the way to Grantsville.

The boys that win in Garrett county will go to Baltimore and join the Western Shore party in a trip over the Eastern Shore, and both parties will then meet in Baltimore and will be taken to Washington to have an interview with the President and to Annapolis to call on the Governor. After this they will be entertained in Baltimore during the Maryland Week Exhibit.

The people of Garrett county are cordially invited to attend the entertainment at the Maryland Theatre on Monday evening.

O. H. S. Notes.

The high school was not in session last Friday because all of the teachers went to Cumberland to attend the Potomac Valley Round Table, which is an organization of teachers.

The High School faculty held its first professional meeting Thursday evening, Oct. 26, at 7.30. All the high school and five grammar school teachers were present. The discussion of "The Question Method of Teaching" was profitable to all. There will be another meeting soon. Prof. Ziel, principal of the grammar school, will have charge. Announcement of the same will appear in due time.

Karl Jansen, the Sweedish entertainer and humorist, will give a high class entertainment at the Maryland Theatre Friday evening, Nov. 10th. His program will be taken from "The Land of The Midnight Sun" or "Two Ways of Selling The Goods." Mr. Jansen appeared in Oakland about ten years ago, and gave a program for the benefit of the public schools. This time he will give a program for the benefit of the O. H. S. Full announcements will appear in the next issue.

Last Monday soccer was organized in the Oakland high and grammar schools by Mr. Frederick H. Bahr, representative of the Public Athletic League, Baltimore, Md., assisted by Principals Bender and Ziel. All the boys of the high school and those of the 5th, 6th and 7th grades of the grammar school were taught the game. Mr. Bahr being coach. The boys are very enthusiastic over soccer. Mr. Bahr made the following statement: "The boys turned out in large numbers for the game and made a wonderful showing. They played three games, one in the morning and two in the afternoon. The playing in the afternoon showed a big improvement over the morning practice." The boys became so interested in soccer that by the suggestion of Mr. Bender of the high school, and Mr. Ziel of the grammar school, a league was formed, with four teams taking part, 68 boys in all. The teams will play under the following names: Oakland Stars, Tigers, Wing Foot and Lions. Two games in the league have already been played and without a score, Oakland Stars playing the Tigers 0 to 0. The Lions played the Wingfoots 0 to 0. The speed of the boys and the way they handled themselves was remarkable for the first time out. In about there weeks the boys will be able to play the best team in the counties of Maryland, and be sure to make them hustle.
